Sikeston PCA Has Courses on Farm Finance Management

The Sikeston Production Credit Association conducted the first of a series of three Farm Financial Management Courses on Wednesday at the Central Office in Sikeston. In spite of the inclement weather, farmers turned out to attend the Management Courseentitled "What Affects Your Farm Profits."

The local farmer owned credit institution planned and is sponsoring a three session management information course in conjunction with the area agriculture extension staff. The association maintains offices in Advance, Jackson, Dexter, Portageville, Charleston, and Poplar Bluff in addition to Sikeston. Each area office is conducting the same Management Institute for farmers in their particular area.

The three session course is designed to bring farmers up to date on many phases on managing their finances. The instructors are using good illustrations on ways and means of improving the farmers net income.

There are presently 270 farmers enrolled in the course which runs through March 12.

Many comments were made by those in attendance regarding the organization of land, labor, and capital. John Yount, the instructor, pointed out that the proper management of these inputs determine the gross production of a farm. "With proper records and farm techniques" says Mr. Yount, "good profits can be realized from farming."

Proper know how is essential. This is the when, where, why, and how we do things. Another word for this is management. How you manage your inputs and outputs determines your profit. Farming is big business and it takes top management for the most profit. Mr. Yount pointed out that some of the things that farmers can do to improve their income is treat your seed, proper fertilizations through soil testing and proper application, control weeds and trim harvest costs.

Officers Arrest 2 For Passing of Counterfeit Bills

LILBOURN--Jimmie Dodson, of Marston, operator of "The Hut", a tavern, and Ray Eaton, of Marston, a farm laborer were arrested Tuesday night by officers from New Madrid, Lilbourn, New Madrid County sheriff's office and the Secret Service as the climax to a "cloak and dagger" investigation that rivals fiction.

The two men are alleged to have trafficked in counterfeit $10 bills, believed to be part of the counterfiet money uncovered in Chicago about two years ago but which had not been found.

An officer of the New Madrid police, some time ago, getting wind of the fact the phoney money was being passed and a tip that Dodson was the passer, ingratiated himself into Dodson's confidence on a pretext that he, the officer, wanted to make "some easy money" quick.

Dodson, it is alleged, introduced the officer to Eaton who sold him $100 worth of the counterfeits. Then, the officer told Dodson and Eaton he had a friend from Michigan really a Secret Service operater, who wanted to buy also and it is reported, they succeeded in purchasing $2,500 worth, which they paid for with marked money. As soon as the deal was closed the officers arrested Dodson and Eaton.

Gas Industry asks For Special Stamp

The American Gas Association has asked the Post Office Department to issue a stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary (in 1966) of the gas industry, the nation's sixth largest.

The first gas company in America was formed in 1816 in Baltimore, Maryland, more than 14 years before the first passenger railroad operation and 28 years before the first telephone messages were sent. Only public water supply, of all the major utility services now operating, had a previous existence.

Pope Invests 32 Cardinals At Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI invested 26 new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church today, conferring on them the red hats and rings of their princely office.

The cardinals included one American, Archbishop Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore, Md. The 27th prelate elevated by the Pope this week, Bishop Angel Herrera y Oria of Malaga, remained in Spain to receive his insignia from the Spanish chief of state, Generalissimo Franco, in accordance with tradition in that Catholic country.

The glittering public consistory in St. Peter's Basilica was attended by thousands, including presidents of African states, Prime Minister Sean Lemass of Ireland and 36 other cardinals. But the ceremony was drastically revised, reflecting the current modernization of the Church.

Today's ceremony took the place of three separate consistories previously held for new cardinals. For the first time, it opened with a Mass celebrated jointly by the Pope and the 26 new cardinals. This was to emphasize the spiritual aspects of the ritual, in line with decrees of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

After the first part of the Mass, the new cardinals stood in a semicircle around Pope Paul's throne as he told them:

"Dearest brothers, a great and lofty dignity is conferred on you. You will be, in fact, our cooperators and counselors in the ruling and the governing of the holy Catholic Church.

"Know that you are obliged in a most particular way to commit yourselves with all your energy for the exaltation of the Catholic faith, for the peace of the Christian people and of all peoples, for the defense of ecclesiastical liberty."

This formula, a new one, also stemmed from the Vatican council and its decrees emphasizing the brotherhood of all men and the sharing of power over the Church by the Pope and bishops collectively.

Storm Causes Inconvenience For City Folk

In case it hasn't been felt, "Old Man Winter" is back. This time with snow and high winds. On the level snow accumulation amounted to five inches and winds up to forty miles per hour let drifts stack up as high as seven feet in places.

Ice and high winds caused the light and telephone companies to be out all night working to put the outages on a temporary basis. All across Southeast Missouri and in the Sikeston area the high winds and ice accumulation resulted in the wires slapping together to cause shortages. But luckily nothing serious resulted. No one was left without lights or telephones for any length of time.

Taxpayer Is Given A Break

This time there seemed little hope of a reprieve.

Warden W. P. Steinhauser said he had received no word to stay the execution again. He said all preparations had been made to execute Anderson in the gas chamber a few minutes after midnight tonight.

The Missouri House apparently ended Anderson's last chance late Wednesday when it decisively killed a bill to end capital punishment in Missouri.

The governor had asked the House for a record vote to test legistive sentment on the bill. The measure was downed on a 45-12 roll call.

The bill had been tabled once on a voice vote but at the governor's request was revived long enough to be defeated a second time on the roll call.

Soon after that Anderson's attorney, James Rankin of St. Louis, said he sent an airmail request to the U.S. Supreme Court asking another stay on grounds Anderson was not told he was entitled to counsel when he signed a statement about the murder.

Anderson was convicted Sept. 28, 1961, in St. Louis Circuit Court of killing a 15-year-old drugstore delivery boy during a holdup.

Thomas E. Grupe, the delivery boy, entered the store while three Negroes were robbing the proprietor. He was led to the basement and shot.

Police said Anderson had admitted another holdup slaying and six other crimes.

The conviction was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court.

A few hours before he was to die, the governor granted a reprieve until Feb. 26 so he could get a test of legislative feeling on the capital punishment issue.

It took the House most of the day Wednesday to get a vote and tempers flared several times.

On one occasion, Rep. Monty Harlow, R-Greene County, attacked the governor and accused him of passing the responsibility to the House.

Speaker Thomas D. Graham, D-Cole County, castrigated him and ordered him to his seat when Harlow tried to continue.

Missouri taxpayers got an $800,000 break from the Senate Ways and Means Committee Wednesday.

The committee approved a bill to abolish the one-cent state property tax. It was levied originally to pay old school and seminary fund interest but those debts were retired in 1961.

Also approved was a bill to require uniform reporting to the director of Revenue all fees and funds collected by state agencies. More than $75 million is unreported now.

A proposal to provide public school bus service for private and parochial students could go before the voters in a referendum election under a plan by Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage.

Robert Blaine of Florissant, representing a Citizens Committee for Educational Freedom, said he would not object to a referendum. Blaine said since the school bus plan calls for a separate transportation fund, it would not conflict with state or federal constitutions.

Opponents of the measure will be heard next Wednesday.

A House committee heard a proposal for a statewide educational television network Wednesday night but deferred action.

The plan, recommended by an interim study committee, would cost an estimated $16 million over the next 10 years. A central production station at Columbia or elsewhere would feed 17 regional transmitters scattered around the state by microwave relay.

William J. Reagon, director of broadcast engineering at the University of Missouri, estimated the system would cost about $5.5 million a year to operate, or about $2.21 per pupil.

Another House committee heard testimony for a public authority to operate a mass transit system in the Kansas City metropolitan area. Action was deferred until next week.

The House got a new bill Wednesday to put all state Highway Department employes under the merit system.

The last 15 years have given us a wonderful example of how competition works between giant industries.

During World War II -- as during all big wars -- competition was more or less taking a holiday because of the great demand for almost everything.

Riding high, in a seemingly invulnerable position, was the coal industry which could sell every ton produced (even coal that was not much good) at an average of $4.16 at the mine, almost double pre - war prices.

Coal users, particularly the steam railroads, and the home owner, were unhappy but helpless -- for the time.

But by 1945 competition was back in high gear. In the railroad field, the newly developed Diesel locomotives offered an escape from steam locomotives that burned almost 100 tons of coal every 24 hour day. Between 1945 and 1960 the use of coal by railroads almost vanished.

Relief also came to home owners through the newly - built oil and gas pipelines, made profitable by the high price of coal. The war had brought them a choice of coal, gas, and oil. During the 15 years mentioned above, the use of coal in home heating dropped about 75%.

Even the generating plants of the electric utilities (coal's best market) were equipped to change over to gas or oil, thus posing another competitive threat to coal.

Then came the next step in this competitive battle: the coal industry -- with the cooperation of John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union -- revolutionized its production through improved automatic tools. This meant higher investment and fewer but better jobs.

Since 1947 coal production per worker has increased from 6 1/2 tons a day to about 16 tons. During this time the number of miners dropped from about 420,000 to about 120,000. Production costs kept falling, and basic wages rose 72%. Miners no longer dig coal; they run machines.

Coal was "back in business" except for one thing: most of the savings in production costs were being eaten up in higher freight charges.

But the railroads, too, had competition. The river barges were hungry for business and were able to take over about 27% of the rail tonnage.

However, the step that really sent a tremor through the railroads was the successful development of a pipe line that would transport a mixture of coal and water all ready to be sprayed into the fire box of the generating plant, and save $1.00 per ton.

This put the next step squarely up to the railroads, which responded with the fast-delivery Unit Train which, through sheer efficiency, reduced freight rates a whopping 30%.

So there the matter stands in 1965: Out of the titanic struggle between coal, gas, oil, barges, railroads and pipe lines, came the world's finest and lowest cost fuel system.

They are all making money, but as always, in free competitive situations, the big winner is the public.

"What would be the fate of government in the United States in 1960's," asks the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, if presidential illness resulted in disability but not in death?

"Would a devoted First Lady, or an uncertain Vice-President, attempt to carry out the role of Chief Executive, or would government stagger along 'as best it could' until the President regained his health, or was succeeded upon his death by the Vice-President."?

These questions, and others, have been raised in a publication entitled "A Country Without A Man: A Study of Presidential Disability," prepared and distributed by the Commission.

The study does not leave these questions unresolved. Instead, the Commission advances specific recommendations and asks the Eighty-ninth Congress to take action pursuant to resolutions approved by the Virginia General Assembly in December memorializing Congress to provide a long-needed solution, not only to the problem of presidential disability, but also to the related problem of Vice-Presidential vacancies.

In pointing up the need for a constitutional amendment to remedy the problem, rather than congressional legislation, the Commission notes that if "the problem is left solely to legislative solution, the political probabilities are that it will be solved; it is like an operation that always can be postponed."

Up to five free copies of this study may be obtained on request to the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia.

BUSINESS OFFERED CIVIL RIGHTS ACT ADJUSTMENT HELP

A nation - wide program of education to help businessmen adjust to the "new era in industrial relations" brought about by enactment of the Civil Rights Act has been announced by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Because Title VII of the new law places the federal government in the position of final arbiter of personnel practices, there is need of genuine appreciation of its implications at policy levels of management," W. P. Gullander, NAM President, said.

A series of seminars, to be held in principal cities, will be designed by the NAM to clarify the new provisions pertaining to hiring, firing, and promotion policies in industry.

SIGNIFICANT BEARING

"No piece of legislation since the Wagner Act of three decades ago will have a more significant bearing on industrial relations procedures than Title VII of the new act," Mr. Gullander said. "Much depends on how companies undertake to cope with the far - reaching ramifications of this law. The ability of American industry to adjust swiftly but wisely to new conditions will have an important effect on our nation's rate of progress."

Mr. Gullander said that the seminars will emphasize the positive techniques which management can use to adjust its procedures to the new law. He said the program will assist industry in understanding Title VII before its provisions become mandatory.

"It is fully apparent that our nation is entering a new era of industrial relations," Mr. Gullander added. "Our seminars will provide businessmen with practical suggestions as to how they can meet the variety of new situations that inevitably will develop when the law becomes effective."

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is asking the boss for a hike in pay.

This is the greatest business drama in America today, and it takes place daily in thousands of offices.

The pattern usually goes as follows:

Your name is Jack Crestfall, and you finally get tired of hearing your wife complain about how hard it is for her to make both ends meet.

"If you don't ask for a raise, I'm going to have to start taking in the neighbors' washing," she threatens.

When you tell your buddies at the office you are going to hit the boss up for more money, all work halts while they give advice. Some egg you on, others say you are foolhardy. They recall the case of a fellow in the stockroom who asked for a raise 20 years ago, got fired and wound up on the streets carrying a signboard for a pants-pressing firm.

The next step is to enlist the aid of the secretary of the boss. You butter her up by buying her flowers and candy with your lunch money.

Two months later she lets you know the stage is set.

"The boss is real pleased this morning because he had a good golf game yesterday, Jack," she says. "You'd better hit him up now — while his irons are still hot."

But the big man — old J.P. Grasper — seems in a mood of pure irony when you squirm across the thick rug up to his desk.

"Ah, Mr. Crestfall," he murmurs, "and may I inquire the purpose of your visit? I hope this is not another complaint about the lack of paper towels in the men's washroom."

"No, sir," you hesitate, and then the words blurt out, "I just got to have more money. My wife and kids —"

"You understand, of course, young man, that we are not exactly a welfare organization." This is the boss's favorite line.

"No, sir, but I have been working hard. Last month I put 20 new ideas in the office suggestion box."

"How many have we adopted?"

"None, sir."

A long, long silence.

Grasper, toying with his eyeglasses and staring dolefully out the window, then gives you management's set speech. Management itself likes to move young men ahead as fast as it can, but management has its problems, too. Management is on a raft adrift in perilous seas. Business is bad, the market is tightening, no one knows what lies ahead.

Just as your backbone melts into complete jelly and you start to volunteer to take a pay cut to keep the firm afloat, Grasper throws out a lifeline.

"Well, Mr. Crestfall," he says grudgingly, "I guess it wouldn't break us to give you a $5 increase, now, my boy" — he comes around and pats you firmly on the back — "Get in there and show us our confidence in you isn't misplaced!"

The highway commission of the State of Washington wanted to hire an information officer, but with the salary limited to $514 a month a suitable applicant could not be found. So the commission hired a part-time public - relations consultant at $800 a month -- the salary limit doesn't apply to part - time consultants. AP

SELLING IS A GAME OF SOLITAIRE

Salesmen, artists and writers have an essential common need -- the need to walk a lonely road, to overcome natural inertia and get about the business of practicing their art. The writer I'm telling you about would do everything except write. He was always preparing to write. He took every course in writing offered. He spent his evening hours browsing through bookstores looking for books on writing. When he wasn't doing that, he sought the fellowship of would-be writers to discuss writing. All the writers' conferences knew him.

One evening, as he searched through the book stalls, he found a book that looked promising, and asked the bookstore owner for his opinion. The owner had been around books for a long time and he loved them. But he knew people, too.

"You know," he said with a twinkle of understanding in his eye, "there comes a time when you must face the fact that you aren't going to learn to write by reading. Writing is a performing art. It must be practiced."

That thought took some days to sink in. Writing is a performing art. By and by the bookstore knew him no more. He took the lonely road. He set about producing.

And through the years, whenever this writer found it tough to get about his business, he recalled the little man in the book store and the words: "Writing is a performing art." So is selling.

ADMINISTRATION'S PLANS FURTHER INTRUSION IN STATES' AFFAIRS IS SEEN BY NAM

Commenting on President Johnson's State of the Union message, W. P. Gullander, president of the National Manufacturers Association, had this to say:

"President Johnson's State of the Union message was drafted so as to provide something for everyone. The message indicated clearly the desire of the President for the federal government to concern itself increasingly in areas that traditionally have been the province of the individual states and individual citizens.

"He paid tribute to the high level of economic development and prosperity of the nation, which has been achieved under circumstances which have not involved the federal government to the degree he now proposes.

CAREFUL STUDY URGED

"In the President's desire to promote greater economic growth and prosperity, he must examine carefully the possible consequences to his goals of a significant change in the source and location of the initiative and leadership that has created the most prosperous nation on earth.

"There is no evidence that these goals can be met by expanded federal direction of our lives and work. The real measure of the significance of the President's message will have to await the introduction of specific legislation aimed at accommodating his stated goal, and an indication of his success in obtaining Congressional action."

BIG BUSINESS NOW

Writing in Public Utilities Fortnightly, the head of the Rural Electrification Administration appeals for greater cooperation between investor-owned utilities and co-ops in order to develop "...effective rural electrification with maximum economy to the taxpayer." Most utility executives, he says, have always been hostile to the REA program.

The hostility--whether on the part of utility people or others--is not based on any opposition to bringing power to the farms. Private utilities pioneered rural electrification in many regions before REA was ever heard of. And private utilities deserve a goodly share of the credit for the fact that rural electrification is virtually complete in this country.

The utilities, on the other hand, oppose the efforts of co-ops to move into service areas which are nonrural, and which are served with complete adequacy by investor-owned, taxpaying companies. So is everyone who believes government should stick to the job of governing and not become involved in any commercial enterprise when private business can meet the need.

Beyond that, it would seem that if the development of rural electrification is to be achieved "...with maximum economy to the taxpayer" some fundamental changes will have to be made in the REA setup. As of now, the co-ops are directly and indirectly subsidized by the taxpayer. They are totally free of the federal income tax. And they borrow money from the Treasury at about half the rate the Treasury must pay to borrow long-term money it supplies them.

The REA program adds up to big business nowadays. It's time it was made to stand on its own feet, pay the going rate for borrowed money, and be on the same tax basis as comparable private enterprise.

They were just married, but didn't want to appear so to the hotel staff, consequently, they took all precautions to rid themselves of that "newly - wed" look. They removed the tail of old shoes from the rear of their car, they carefully eliminated all traces of rice from their clothing, and they even went so far as to have the bride carry the luggage into the hotel lobby.

Their ruse was working just as planned, until the groom stepped up to the registration desk and asked for "A double bed with a room please."

BIRTH BOOM ALARMS AMA

If the American Medical Association has decided that population growth is a problem, then the situation may be more serious than some people have claimed.

Abandoning its traditional position of neutrality on birth control and disapproval of "propaganda" groups, the organization will begin sending out information on reproduction and control to doctors this year.

"The statistics on this astound me," says Dr. Raymond T. Holden, a Roman Catholic and chairman of the AMA Committee on Human Reproduction. "It is frightening to realize that if the present trend were allowed to continue unchecked, the world population would double in 40 years and in another 40 years double again."

The AMA emphasizes, however, that none of the information it will disseminate is intended for the general public.

LOCAL PUBLIC DEBT RISES BY 237 PERCENT

Local government debts have increased by 237 per cent since 1950, the Tax Foundation reports.

Fourteen years ago, the combined public debt of all communities stood at $18.8 billion. By the end of 1963 it has grown to $63.3 billion. In 1950, local government debt accounted for less than 7 per cent of all government debt; in 1963 the share had increased to 16 per cent.

Among the reasons for the post-World War II upsurge in local debt, the Foundation lists the growth of suburbia.

"As the population increased and housing developments grew, demands for services, for more roads, for sewers, for schools intensified," the Foundation pointed out. "And, while federal and state aid has helped in some instances, the laboring oar has been held by local government."

IMPLEMENTING CONSTRUCTIVE CULTURE

Constructive culture for the United States will become great enough to embrace phases and innumerable factors.

Its enthusiasts believe a child can learn faster at the age of three than at seven. Some believe two-thirds or more the brain-capacity of many mature people is never used.

Many people will devote a major part of their time to the study of constructive culture. In doing so, they should keep up their usual activities to maintain the common touch. Theorists who do not concern themselves with making a living become high impractical.

Maria Montessori, born Ancona Province, Italy, August 31, 1870, was an only child. Dr. Maria Montessori was the first woman in Italy to receive a medical degree. She was interested in retarded children conducting intensive studies of the work of Dr. Jene Itard and Dr. Eduard Seguin of France. In 1899 she directed a school in Rome for children considered hopelessly deficient.

In January 1906 she opened the first Montessori School, attracting international attention when retarded children learned easily to read and write. Her work continued throughout her lifetime ending in 1952.

Montessori Schools have been established in the United States and other countries. They instruct parents in the knowledge they should impart to their children at home. Juvenile deliquency would not result from this practice.

Early education toward a way of life where individuals will take pride in taking care of themselves can forstall bureaucratic processes. This embraces the immortal statement from President Kennedy's Inaugural Address, "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country." HLH.

Doc. Duncan Says

If the Lords people had made half as much noise about teaching Christ in our schools as the Negroes have made about Civil Rights we would still be a Christian nation.

Officially we are not, as things stand at present, it's plain to see that too many of our office-holders and lawmakers care more for the votes than they do about the welfare of our nation, power, prestige, and the fast buck is their God.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson is in the Caribbean. The column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — The FBI has picked up disquieting reports that the Rev. Martin Luther King, like the Negro nationalist Malcolm X, has been marked for murder.

The militant Malcolm apparently was gunned down by Negro extremists. The threats against Dr. King have come from White extremists.

As long ago as last July, the FBI learned that Ku Klux Klan terrorists tried to waylay Dr. King when he came to Monroe, La., on a civil rights mission. The last minute, the plot fell through.

The latests reports claim that Klansmen are now trying to hire an ex-convict for $2,000 to do the dirty work for them.

It is one of the ironies of the civil rights struggle that the Ku Klux Klan and Black Muslims ape one another at opposite ends of the spectrum.

Both seek to segregate the white and black races. Both quote scriptures to justify their hate doctrines. Both use goon squads to carry out acts of terror and violence.

Only elite Klansmen and Muslims, sworn to secrecy, are admitted to the strong - arm squads. In both cases, they hold separate meetings under tight military security.

—"HOLY TERRORS"—

In the Klan, the terror groups go by such names as "Killer Squad," "Knock Off Group," "Secret Sixes," "Flying Squad," and "Holy Terrors."

Both Klan and Muslim goon squads specialize in dogpatch-style attacks on defenseless victims. The Klansmen like to strip their victims, beat and flog them unmercifully, then leave them in a lonely wooded area to find their own way home. The Muslims specialize in "stomping" victims after they're down.

Both Klan and Muslim terrorists are disciplined to kill. The Muslims are known to have made earlier attempts on the life of Malcolm X before a spattering of bullets finally ripped into him Sunday at a Harlem rally.

Klansmen have also been implicated in a number of civil rights murders. Not long ago, a terror squad in Southern Mississippi was summoned to a secret meeting by a message, containing only the picture of a hooded rider upon a horse and a notation of the time and place.

—$1,200 MURDER FEE—

At this super-secret tryst, a hooded leader announced conspiratorially that the Klan was sponsoring an ex-convict at $1,200 "to do a job" that would make the slaying of civil rights leader Medgar Evers "look sick."

Perhaps this is the same $2,000 plot on Dr. King's life that the FBI had learned about earlier.

Both Klansmen and Muslims have a penchant for special robes and rituals. Leaders of both organizations make a big profit selling robes to the membership.

Guard: "Ayak." (Are you a Klansman?)

Klansman: "Akia." (A Klansman am I.)

Guard: "Aog." (America on guard.)

Minister: "As - salaam - alaikum." (Peace be unto you.)

Congregation: "Wa-alaikum-salaam." (And unto you peace also.)

Perhaps the next logical step would be a merger of the Klan and the Muslims.

—LBJ'S FAVORITE JOKE—

The subtle wit of the New Frontier has been replaced by the earthy humor of the Great Society. The Kennedy crowd liked their gags wry and dry, but the Johnson gang prefers straight corn.

Not that President Johnson is incapable of sly humor. Once he was called upon to introduce Senate Dean Carl Hayden at a banquet in Arizona, a state which Hayden has represented in Congress since it was admitted to the union in 1912.

"I don't believe," commented Johnson dryly, "that Adam had to be formally introduced to Eve."

But when the President was asked recently for his favorite joke, he came up with a typical Texas tale. It had to do with a predecessor, Sen. Joseph Weldon Bailey, who was famed for his soapbox oratory.

As the President tells it, a cowpoke straggled back to the ranch with glazed eyes after listening to Bailey declaim the whole day long. The entranced cowhand bore witness that it was the most magnificent speech he had ever heard.

"What," demanded the foreman, "did Senator Bailey have to say that took all day?"

"I don't rightly know," reflected the cowpoke. "But he sure did recommend himself highly."

Note: If visitors should hear a mirthful noise at the White House, like the happy bawl of a longhorn steer, it probably is the President in full laughter. For he has brought back the belly laugh to the White House. He disdains the wry smile, the amused look. When he hears a good joke, he likes to enjoy it with all his heart and diaphragm.

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

Jimmy Hoffa Racing To Out-Match Walter Reuther's Militancy

Shouting "the honeymoon is over" the truculent Teamsters' chief has declared political war on Congress; urged that it be deluged with one million letters; demanded a four-day work-week of 32 hours; and called for an intense white collar drive by his union's 5,000 officials. Mr. Hoffa has even approved contributions to a fund for the restoration of the home of the late legendary Socialist leader, Eugene Victor Debs. The house in Terre Haute, Ind., is being turned into a Socialist Shrine.

Editorials under his signature in the Teamster's union magazine constantly bristle with class slogans.

As he whirls leftward, he has become the positive darling of such hypermilitant politicalized unions as Harry Bridges West Coast longshoremen. They call him their martyr. They run regular civil liberties rallies in his defense.

He is in regular communication with these unionists and there is persistent talk of launching a new labor federation of more than two million workers to challenge the AFL-CIO.

Let no one think this could not happen shortly. Hoffa constantly is testing the strength of the older federation with a series of raids on AFL-CIO jurisdiction.

Characteristic of his neo-militancy is an editorial in the most recent edition of the "Teamster." Despite reports of lowering joblessness, the editorial said: ". . .The chronically unemployed are still standing idle in the shadow of the 40-hour work-week. . ." The answer, he adds, is a "four-day work-week amounting to 32 hours of toil."

To show how far Mr. Hoffa has moved from his conservative position, one observer recalls that in June, 1963, the Teamsters' president described the 13-week vacation plan in the steel industry as "stupid."

This was a week after the United Steelworkers and the major steel corporations had agreed to 13 weeks of paid vacation every five years for employes with the longest service records.

"They talk about creating 20,000 to 25,000 jobs in the steel industry because of the long vacations," Hoffa sneered at that time. "Want to know what those guys will do on a 13-week vacation? They'll take part-time jobs. They'll create more unemployment."

Today, Mr. Hoffa seriously contemplates a fight for the four-day work-week for the 1,750,000 teamsters. If he won such contracts for even half that number on over-the-road runs and intra-city carting, he would affect the entire economy of the nation. But his aggressive friends are urging this upon him.

These militants cheer him when he scoffs at the rest of the union movement —as he did the other day in his nationally distributed magazine.

"For too long, timidity has marked the legislative approach of the leaders of organized labor," he said of the men now meeting in the mid-winter session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council in Bal Harbour, Fla., "And apathy has marked the attitude of the rank and file of labor.

"I urge each and every one of our officers and members to wake up to legislative fact. I urge each and every one of you to write your Congressmen and Senators, to the chairmen of the House and Senate Labor committees, demanding that they act and act now. . ."

All this worries some observers who have been disturbed by scores of recent rank and file revolts against the traditional labor leaders. Observers interpret Mr. Hoffa's words as far more than rousing rhetoric.

They see it stirring rank and file demands for an ever shortening work-week and work-year.

These observers also see the failure of labor leaders to deliver such shorter work weeks resulting in strike action across the land. Thousands of pacts, covering millons of workers expire this year.

Mr. Hoffa's vigorous militancy could be costly to the economy.

The Saint Francis Xavier Catholic Church was the scene Saturday, February 13, of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Faye Littleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Littleton, and Anthony Joseph Heckemeyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer.

Twin baskets of white mums, leaf fern, and lighted tapers appointed the altar. The traditional white bridal carpet covered the aisle.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Monsignor McGrane at 11 a.m. in the presence of many relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. F. Childress, organist, played "The Wedding March" and accompanied Mrs. Jack Mitchell, soloist, as she sang "Ava Marie" and "Blessed Mother On This Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a gown made of angel skin taffeta peau de soie. The new high rise waist line featured elbow length sleeves, and a Bateau neckline that dipped low in back. Each was outlined with tiny French cording. The bodice was lavishly trimmed with re-embroidered imported Alencon lace, which was highlighted with spirals of simulated pearls. The same lace motifs trellised down the front of the pencil slim floor-length skirt. The redingolt skirt swept to a court chapel train with the lace motifs repeated again at the bottom of the train and again at the back waist.

Her headpiece was a crown of pearls fashioned into petals and attached to this was a veil of imported English illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with white satin ribbon tied in "lovers" knots. In her attire she carried out the traditional something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, sister of the groom, served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Penny Heckemeyer, sister of the groom; Miss Jane Ella Yount; Miss Suzanne Bowing; Miss Suzanne Gilmore, and Mrs. Allen Blanton, all of Sikeston and close friends of the bride.

The attendants were identically dressed in sleeveless dresses of shocking pink made from slipper satin. The dresses featured dart-fitted bodices and three - gore, side gathered floor-length skirts with matching belts and bows. Their attire was topped with back-buttoned jackets of lace with Bateau necklines and set-in sleeves. Their headdresses were pink slipper satin with a large satin cabbage rose to one side and a veil of tulle net; each carried a cascade bouquet of white spider mums and pink roses. They also wore white kid gloves, a gift from the bride.

John Buzan of Springfield, Missouri, served as his friend's bestman. Groomsmen were Bill Lewis, Charles David Springs, Allen Blanton, John Sides, all of Sikeston, and Jimmy Largent of Lafayette, La. Ushers were David Bailey, Sonny Cowell, and John Harper. Masters Rodney and Craig Littleton, nephews of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin pillow of lace. Men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. William Littleton, mother of the bride, wore a dress of mint green silk and matching jacket; she highlighted her outfit with matching accessories. Mrs. Heckemeyer chose for her son's wedding a beige silk dress with matching jacket and beige accessories and multi-colored hat. Both mothers wore an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Immediate following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Sikeston Country Club with Mrs. Rebecca Sharp of New Madrid in charge. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth overlaid with white net. The net was gathered at each corner and caught with white satin bows.

A six tiered wedding cake tipped with spun sugar wedding bells and surrounded by flowers and greenery centered the serving table. At each end of the table punch was served from silver punch bowls. Silver candelabra holding tall white glowing tapers were placed at each end of the table. Decorated mints and nuts were served from silver compotes.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Billy Littleton, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Wanda Raper, aunt of the bride; Miss Linda Werneck and Mrs. Leo Davis.

The bride was formerly society editor of the Daily Standard and the groom is a business man and state representative of Scott County.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter about Myrtle, who couldn't recognize the apple pie in the cafeteria, it stirred up memories that had been tucked in the back of my mind for 25 years.

In the orphanage where I grew up we used to say, "You can tell when it's apple pie because it tastes like glue. The peach pie tastes like soap."

To this day I can't stand either one. -- J. G.

Dear J. G.: I love pie -- any kind -- and I have made it my business to learn where to get the best.

The finest cherry pies in the world are baked in Traverse City, Mich. Lexington, Ky., has the best pecan pie; Billings, Mont., specializes in banana cream. In Rochester, N. Y., I was served the most delicious lemon pie I ever ate. The yummiest chocolate pies are put together right here in Chicago. Ditto, coconut cream.

Yes, I love pie, but I can't make a decent pie to save my life. My crusts are positively bullet proof. If any of you gals have a sure-fire pie-crust recipe please send it on.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who is worried sick about my 19-year-old brother.

Chuck started to date this girl who said she was 17. When he found out she was only 15 he was shocked, but he kept going with her. The girl's parents are divorced and her mother works nights so nobody is home to check on her. She can (and does) go out every night of the week, and she can entertain Chuck as late as she wants.

My brother has a good job and lives at home. He pays Mom and Dad $25 a week for room and board and feels they have no right to tell him what time to be in or who to take out.

I'm worrried sick that this girl will hook Chuck, if you know what I mean. He resents it when anyone tries to tell him anything, especially his kid sister, so I am hoping you will print my letter. Chuck reads your column every day and he says you are with it.--LITTLE SIS

Dear Sis: Nobody can hook your brother, but he could hook himself. I don't think Chuck is with it -- or he would have stopped seeing the girl when he learned her age. When I was a teen-ager they called 15-year-olds "San Quentin quail."

Let's hope Chuck wakes up and smells the coffee before the pot boils over.

Dear Ann Landers: I have filed suit for divorce but it will be several months before I am legally free. My mother takes care of my four-year-old son while I work. We all live together and she is on my back constantly about my "morals". I don't know how much more I can take before I blow my stack.

Mother says I have no right to go with men until my divorce comes through. She keeps telling me my husband could make trouble and possibly take the boy away.

She forgets that a girl who has been married is second- hand merchandise. The only way I can make a new life is by going out when I have the chance. These same men may not be willing to wait until everything is legal. A girl who is damaged property can't be fussy. Besides I'm only 22-- too young to sit around the house and rot.

Please help me get my mother off my back. -- RITA

Dear Rita: Your mother is right and I hope you will listen to her. I hope, too, that you will stop thinking of yourself as damaged property and second-hand merchandise. Divorce is a tragedy, not a crime. Unless you have a decent opinion of yourself-- and behave as if you do-- nobody else will.

Young Married Class Meets With Mrs. Dorothy Williams

Those present were Mrs. Elvada Winders, Mrs. Berniece Hunott, Mrs. Betty Decker, Mrs. Eloise Shell, Mrs. Pat Phillips, Mrs. Dorothy Williams, Mrs. Betty Nall, Mrs. Lou Howell, and one new member, Mrs. Martha Fraser.

Miss Terry Waters

Terry Waters Has Part In Little Theater Play

Connie Dayton is a typical product of the New York business world -- attractive, sophisticated, intelligent and unmarried. Connie believes she has developed an immunity to the most arduous howls of the most appealing of New York City wolves.

But there is obviously a leak somewhere in her armour of independence, for strange and uncontrollable feelings begin to master Connie when she encounters Alan Baker.

Terry Waters charmingly portrays this girl in a dilemma-- can she or can she not set up a convincing resistance to Alan's persistent advances? The outcome unfolds on February 26 and 27 at 8 p.m. as the curtain rises on "Come Blow Your Horn." This is the year's second production of the Sikeston Little Theater and will be presented at the Sikeston Middle School.

Bloomfield Rolls Past Bernie Puxico Guns Through Qulin

If you don't think the Bloomfield Wildcats have more than just hope of going to the State Tournament, then think again. For again they showed that they have definite intentions of going all the way as they downed the Bernie Mules 97-34, last night in the quarter rounds of their regional. In the other game played the Puxico Indians bulled their way through Qulin to win easily 91-57. The game between Doniphan and Naylor was postponed until tonight at 5:30 due to weather conditions.

Bloomfield may not have everything, but they do have Mike Wise. He was up, and what seemed like over every backboard in the gymnasium, to grab down 18 of Bloomfield's rebounds for the night. Thirteen of his rebounds came on the offensive end of the court. Also he got 17 points on the offensive end of the court to lead the Wildcats in scoring.

This was Bloomfield's twentieth consecutive win of the season. Their last defeat was dealt by the Memphis Kingsbury Falcons way back on Dec. 19, 1964. In Missouri competition they have clipped off 30 consecutive wins for the year against no defeats.

The Wildcats again showed that they are immovable with their zone press, off which they stole the ball 40 times.

In the first period they fell out to lead 25-4 and they brought out their reserves the second frame, who managed to outscore the Mules 19-11 to come in leading at the half 44-15. As second half play begin, so did Ron White. He hit five consecutive 25 foot field goals to begin third period play. The Wildcats as a team hit the first nine out of ten from the field to begin the second half. When third period play ended the Wildcats were leading 76-21. From the field the Wildcats shot 89 field goals and connected on 40 of them for 44.9%. Bernie shot 26.3 from the field.

Other Wildcats who hit in the double figures were Ron Underwood with 16, Ron White with 15, Ron McAdoo with 10, and Danny Gaines with 10.

Reinbott with 10 points was the only Mule to reach the double figure mark. The Mules as a team could manage only 10 field goals for the game.

PULLING EM DOWN -- Mike Wise of the Bloomfield Wildcats gathered in 18 rebounds in their game last night against the Bernie Mules. He also led the Wildcats with 17 big points. One thing that is so nice is that Mike is just a junior and should be the star of the hardwoods in Southeast Missouri next season.

Missouri Is Choice To Repeat

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri is a solid choice to repeat as team champion with its middle distance star, Robin Lingle, scoring an unprecedented second straight mile — 1,000 double in the 37th Big Eight indoor track championships Friday and Saturday nights.

Missouri finished with 44 points in the Associated Press form chart prediction, Nebraska 38, Oklahoma State 35, Kansas 31, Colorado 21, Oklahoma 15, Iowa State 13 and Kansas State 13.

The Tigers seem to have too much depth and balance. They are expected to score in all but two of the 14 events. Nebraska lacks strength in the 1,000, mile and two-mile, but the Huskers might squeeze in if they score heavily in the short races and pull a surprise or two in the field events.

Oklahoma State is strong in seven events, but the Cowboys will be bucking Missouri head-to-head in all but one and OSU will be blanked in the other seven events. Kansas figures to score in 10 events, but needs more gold medal talent.

Ten meet records will be in danger. Five meet records have been surpassed and two equalled already this season by the talented field.

Lingle turned the first mile—1,000 double in league history last year. He holds the 1,000 record and it's likely OSU's Tom Ruden will pass up the 1,000 to run the 880 which comes 10 minutes later.

Von Ruden and Harold Hadley of Kansas might push Lingle past the mile record of 4:06.5 by Wes Santee of Kansas in 1954. Lingle already owns the two fastest indoor miles in league history — 4:03.2 and 4:03.6 last year.

Charlie Greene and Lynn Headley give Nebraska great dash strength.

Greene ran a 6-flat in pushing Bob Hayes to his world record 5.9 in the 60-yard dash last year at New York. The meet record is 6.1. Headley, the Big Eight outdoor champ in the 100, was an Olympic team member. Charlie Brown, Missouri's football halfback, will push both of them.

Colorado's Jim Miller, king of Big Eight hurdlers, has equalled the meet record of 6.7 in the lows and is co-holder of the 7.2 record in the highs.

The 440 field could be best in league history. Steve Carson of Iowa State has a 48.4, best indoor mark in league annals, and Bill Calhoun of Oklahoma has equalled the meet mark of 48.6. Nebraska's Dave Crook, consistent around 49 seconds this winter, could win it. Crook was the outdoor champ at 47 flat.

Von Ruden's season best of 1:51.8 in the 880 is under Santee's 12-year-old record of 1:52.5. His teammate, Dave Perry, has a 1:10.4 in the 600, best in Big Eight history. Oklahoma State has reached 3:16.4 in the mile relay and the meet mark is 3:18.

Gene Crews of Missouri, with a 59-1¼ is only eight inches off the meet shot put record set in 1956 by Bill Nieder of Kansas, later an Olympic champion at Rome. The talented high jump field includes the outdoor champ OSU's Russ Laverty. Jim Farrell of Oklahoma has a career best of 15-9¼ in the pole vault. Greene hopes for a surprise in the broad jump against two 24-footers, KU's Larry Rheams and Bob Hines, K-State.

Southeast State To Have Indoor Meet At Memphis

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. -- Southeast Missouri State College's track and squad will enter the Memphis State J. C. Indoor Relays, being held Friday and Saturday at Memphis, Tenn. A large number of schools from southern states are expected to participate in the meet.

The meet will be run in three divisions; high school, college and university. College and university preliminaries are slated for Saturday afternoon, with finals to be held in the evening.

SEMO Coach Marvin Rosengarten said that he would enter 18 men in 11 events; 60-yard dash: Dennis Harke and Mike Jordan; 60-yard low hurdles: Jerry Viverett; 60-yard high hurdles: Sam Richards; Mile: Clude Miner and Larry Schloss; 880: Jim Lay; Long Jump: Jordan and Harke; High Jump: Bob Varel and Larry Hollrah; Pole Vault: Tom Taylor; Shot Put: Norman Dockins; Two - mile Relay: Buford Austin, Jim Stoverink, Bill Becker and Len Corso; and Mile Relay: Jordan, Harke, Richards and Darrell Lewis.

Although Henri Richard knew he wouldn't be able to observe his birthday this month, he still has managed to get in quite a lot of celebrating.

The Montreal center, who will but yet won't be 29 in a few days, scored three goals and added two assists Wednesday night in the Canadiens' 6-1 triumph over New York.

Chicago edged Detroit 3- and Boston defeated Toronto 3-1 in other National Hockey League games.

Richard's problem is that he was born Feb. 29, 1936. Thus he has observed only seven birthdays instead of 28. But he was more than a mere youngster to the Rangers.

His goal midway through the first period tied the game 1-1. He fired across two more goals - his 19th and 20th of the season - in the second period, putting the contest beyond New York's reach.

Oran Rolls On Regional To Continue Winning Ways

SCOTT CITY -- The Oran Eagles, seeded first, gunned their way through the Scott City Rams 90-75. Patton, fourth seeded, pulled out to win from Delta 92-74.

Tom Anderson was the big gun for Oran with 27 points. Donnie Metz followed pursuit with 19, Jones, 16, and Robert Johnson 14. Brandt was the only man to reach the twenty mark for Scott City with 21 tallies.

The Eagles made their winning surge in the second period to outscore Scott City 30-14 to come in leading at the half 47-28.

In the second game Patton had three big scorers. Mayfield led all of them with 32 points followed by Hartle with 28 and Davis with 18.

Ron Smith again paced Delta, this time with 25 big points. He has been averaging 22 points per game over the season and was on the Scott-Mississippi All-Conference Team.

New London, Mo., Courthouse Recalls Dramatic Chapter of State History

Classic Greek Architecture of Structure at County Seat Often is Photographed--County of Diversified Terrain and Industry Was Named for Daniel Ralls, Whose Vote Sent Thomas Hart Benton to U. S. Senate.

By Chester A. Bradley
In the Kansas City Star

One of the most photographed buildings in Missouri is the Ralls County courthouse at New London. It is one of the few remaining examples of pure Greek architecture in the Middle West, and both professional and amateur cameramen have found it a most photogenic model.

But there is more than meets the eye in this old courthouse, more than beauty alone. It is a symbol dear to the hearts of the natives in one of the most interesting areas of Missouri—the Mark Twain country along the Missouri river near Hannibal. Ralls County is even more. It represents Missouri since the days of the Spanish and French explorers and the English who came later.

The federal government made a survey of the area in 1818, and one member of the party, an English engineer, founded the village of New London in 1819, two years before Missouri became a state. Not long afterwards it became the county seat as it is today.

Ralls County came into being officially as the direct result of one of Missouri's most dramatic political incidents. The first General Assembly of Missouri was only fourteen days old when it undertook the election of Missouri's first United States senators on October 2, 1820. David Barton was virtually assured of election and he helped obtain votes for Thomas Hart Benton, one of six candidates. Barton received 34 of the 52 votes.

TOUGH GOING FOR BENTON

Benton had tough going. He was a strong figure, but nevertheless unpopular with many Missourians, partly because he had killed Charles Lucas, the son of one of the six candidates, in a duel. On the day before the election, Benton's friends campaigned vigorously against great odds. It seemed virtually impossible to get twenty-seven votes for Benton, the smallest number that would give him a bare majority and election.

The popular Barton was asked to state his choice, that strategy being expected to tip the scales. But Benton still needed two votes. French friends of Marie Philip Leduc of St. Louis talked to him all night, and, although Leduc is said to have hated Benton, he finally pleged his vote for him. One vote was still needed.

Daniel Ralls, who lived near New London, then a representative of Pike County, was desperately ill and had been unable to attend assembly sessions. But he favored Barton and Benton and, hearing of the circumstances, insisted that he be taken to the session where votes were cast orally. Four Negro men carried Ralls to the meeting. A newspaper account at the time says he told them in emphatic tones, "If I should faint in the house, endeavor to recover me there, and by no means take me out before I have given my vote."

Benton was nominated by Jesse B. Boone, a son of Daniel Boone. Ralls cast his vote, along with Leduc, and Benton won with twenty-seven votes, the minimum required.

COUNTY NAMED FOR RALLS

It was the last official act of Ralls. He never recovered from his illness or attended another assembly session. He died on October 30, 1820, at Benton's home in St. Louis. On November 16, 1820, writes Floyd C. Shoemaker in his "Missouri Day by Day," a bill was approved creating the County of Ralls from the County of Pike in honor of Daniel Ralls.

Benton went to Washington and became the first 30-year senator in American history, a powerful figure who served with distinction along with such contemporaries as Calhoun, Clay and Webster. He was in the forefront in all issues of his times. At least nine counties in the United States are named for him.

The new Ralls County extended to the Iowa line and New London became the virtual capital of Northeast Missouri. Eventually, nine other counties and parts of four others were formed from the original Ralls, which assumed its present boundaries in 1836.

The first courthouse, a log building erected in 1822, still stands on its original site as a part of a remodeled dwelling. A brick structure, built in 1835, served the county for twenty-three years and was torn down to make way for the present building in 1858. Two wings, conforming to the original architecture, were added in 1936.

OLD WALLS STILL UNTARNISHED

The building is of native stone, quarried near the site and fitted and cut by hand. The timeless architecture and age of the building are enhanced in beauty by the fact that it remains untarnished. Being in a rural area, free of industrial smoke, the old walls have retained their youthful color.

The facade of four Tuscan columns supporting a pediment and surmounted by an octagonal cupola, was reproduced on the Missouri buildings at both the New York and San Francisco world fairs in 1939, and has been used in other presentations of Missouri scenes. Large fireplaces, attractive stairways, and hand-hewn woodwork are interesting interior features.

Ralls County also presents a microcosm of the great diversification for which Missouri is known, as well as much of its history. It is said to have the greatest variety of soils in the state. One may see everything from flattest prairie to the steepest hill land and the variety of agriculture that goes with it. Many creeks water the area besides the storied Salt river and the even more famous Mississippi, which forms one of its boundaries.

A big federal lock and dam are at Saverton; also a large camp producing maple syrup in the old-fashioned way. The world's largest cement plant is at Ilasco, where the finished product from limestone bluffs is shipped out on the river. Much of the cement used in the Panama canal came from Ilasco.

MARK TWAIN RELICS

The Mark Twain Research foundation has offices in Perry where many personal belongings of the Clemens family will be shown on request. A collection of Mark Twain first editions is on display in the Perry State bank and files of the foundation are open to those engaged in serious research. Perry is near the Mark Twain State park and the town of Florida, where the great author was born.

Responding to the interest of visitors and home pride as well, the Ralls County court, co-operating with civic groups, recently published a leaflet on the county's "historic past and prosperous present." It outlines some of the county's interesting places and scenes.

For instance, china of the type popular in grandmother's day, is handpainted and fired to order in Center and Perry. Center was so named because it was the center of the original county. Linens in tapestry or any pattern are hand-loomed in New London. Fine show and parade harness also is made by hand in the same town. Added to this diversity of products and a solid agricultural economy, the county also produces tarpaulins, bags, dairy supplies, potato chips and fish bait, besides its great output of cement.

There are several historic buildings including old Van Rensselaer academy, and the Brush Creek, St. Paul and St. Joseph's Catholic churches, noted for their aging charm.

Spalding Springs, first found by the Spanish and developed later by the French who shipped salt to St. Louis, remains as one of the pleasure spots of the county today. Indian pictures may be seen on the Salt river bluffs at Cincinnati, a historic point in the county. The county is primarily an agricultural area as it has been since the first English settlers started growing crops as early as 1800. There are many scenic views along good highways, in addition to the historic and attractive courthouse.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER IV
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The Department of Education is specifically provided for in the state constitution. No departmental head is provided for in the constitution, but the organizational structure of the Division of Public Schools, which is made a part of the department, is set out in considerable detail. Other units of the state government have been assigned to the Department of Education by statute or by executive order (Chap. 160, RSMo 1959).

During the decade 1955-1965 changes in the organization of two agencies were made. The State Soil Districts Commission was reorganized and renamed the State Soil and Water Districts Commission. The State Library Advisory Board was replaced by the State Library Commission.

Recognizing the ever-increasing importance of higher education to the State of Missouri and its citizens, the General Assembly in 1963, following the recommendation of the 1955 State Reorganization Commission, created the Commission on Higher Education. The Commission consists of ten members appointed by the Governor and an Advisory Council to the Commission appointed by the Commission.

The chief functions of the Commission include:

1. Designing a coordinated plan for higher education in Missouri.

2. Reviewing any proposed changes or additions in the facilities of the state-supported institutions of higher education.

3. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher education development, consolidation, or elimination of policies, programs or facilities when in the best interests of the state educational system.

4. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher learning formulas to be used in developing plans for operation and development, and for requests for appropriations from the General Assembly.

Recommendations made by the 1955 State Reorganization Commission concerning the fiscal year of the Division of Public Schools and the State Library were implemented generally along the lines suggested by the Commission. No changes were recommended in 1955 for the State Anatomical Board, the State Historical Society, the Public School Retirement System, or the Soil Districts Commission (in 1965, the Soil and Water Districts Commission), and no recommendations are made here concerning these agencies.

TRANSFER OF STATE MUSEUM

26. Recommendation:

That the State Museum be transferred from the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to the Department of Education, under a curator to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and that there be created an Advisory Board for the State Museum.

The primary function of the State Museum is most directly related to the education of the citizens of the state of Missouri. The evidence made available to the Commission suggests that this primary function is removed from the mainstream of the activities of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, and that the Museum's main contribution to the activities of the division was primarily in the construction of exhibits. Autonomous status for the Museum in the Department of Education will direct the Museum's primary activities towards its educational tasks, while permitting the Museum to respond, as its circumstances allow, to requests for assistance from other state agencies and offices.

Existence of an Advisory Board will broaden the opportunities the Museum has for securing valuable materials and collections, and will provide a source of informed and dedicated advice and support for the curator on broad and continuing matters of Museum policy, while permitting administrative responsibility to be located definitely in the curator.

The administrative structure of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development will also be simplified, and its functional responsibilities more obviously integrated along developmental lines.

SURVEY OF EXPERIMENT STATIONS

27. Recommendation:

That an evaluation of the research products of the Poultry and Fruit Experiment Stations be undertaken by teams of professional research experts in each field from neighboring agricultural states before any further action is recommended.

The 1955 Commission recommended that the stations be transferred to the University of Missouri, and that they be operated at their present locations as units of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the College of Agriculture. More evidence as to their present and potential future research productivity is needed before it can validly be asserted that the stations should be continued in operation. Inasmuch as the University of Missouri stands to be affected by the results of such a research survey, it is deemed to be both ethically correct and scientifically objective that the research evaluation of the stations not be made by University of Missouri personnel. Utilization of neutral out-of-state experts will be in the best interests of both the stations and the University personnel, and obviate the possibility of a conflict of interest.

Chevy II 100 Station Wagon

Chevy II 100 2-Door Sedan

Chevy II

With aluminized exhausts that discourage corrosion . . . Delcotron generators that encourage longer battery life . . . brakes that adjust themselves . . . rocker panels that flush themselves free of dirt and salt. Tight? They're downright miserly!

They're roomy. The sedan seats six. The wagon gives you a full nine feet from the back of the front seat to the tip of the lowered tailgate.

They're rugged. The unitized body is by Fisher. Up front, there's an independent suspension system and in the rear, Mono-Plate (you'll never hear a squeak) springs.

They're good looking. Clean. Functional. Foam-cushioned front seats, padded front armrests and color-keyed front seat belts are among many unexpected standard equipment features.

You can get an economical 4-cylinder engine in the sedan or in both cars, a 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six. It's fast to warm up, idles almost silently and is very, very easy on gas.

For even more power, there's a special Six you can order: the 230-cubic-inch Turbo-Thrift job.

As we said earlier, these are our lowest priced cars. But you'll never know just how economical they are until you own one.

TEACHING IN THE PEACE CORPS

To Help Shape Eternity

A teacher affects eternity;
he can never tell where his influence stops.

Henry Adams, The Education of Henry Adams

The cool June morning predicts a pleasant day. Inside the small classroom the children go through the non-academic calisthenics shared by children everywhere — excited Spring laughter, the hum of conversation, the irrepressible shuffle of small feet.

This schoolroom could be in any American community. It isn't. It's located on the outskirts of Enugu in the sprawling West African country of Nigeria. The teacher these children await is a Peace Corps Volunteer, one of several thousand now teaching in 46 countries around the world.

Since the early days of the Peace Corps, over half the Volunteers overseas have been engaged in some type of teaching. Working in universities, teacher training colleges, junior and senior highs and elementary schools, they are helping ease a teacher shortage that will exist until they themselves have trained enough of their hosts to staff the classrooms.

Are they succeeding? A beginning can be seen in the thousands they have already trained. Another measure of their success is the fact that every country where they work has doubled or tripled its original request for educational aid.

Most Volunteer teachers find their work extremely gratifying. They report that new — and not so new — nations are striving mightily to keep pace with rapid changes in technology and that many of the young people of these nations thirst for the knowledge which will enable them to play productive roles in their society.

The Volunteers represent every hue in the American rainbow. In a new university in Nigeria, a married couple, both in their seventies, both long retired, teach side by side; several thousand miles away, a 22-year-old girl — a recent college graduate — leads a group of Colombian school children through a complicated chemistry exercise.

Some Peace Corps teachers have had prior experience, but most are liberal arts graduates who learned the basics of their new profession during intensive Peace Corps training sessions. The common denominator that links them is teaching itself — the challenges, complexities and rewards.

One Volunteer wrote: "The nations have entrusted to us their most precious raw material. Their future — the future of the free world — begins in these classrooms today, because we are teaching the leaders of tomorrow."

If you're interested in playing a small role in shaping tomorrow, write the Peace Corps, Washington, D. C., 20525. You and your future students will be glad you did.

"For many of my students school is not an obligation — it is an opportunity. Their gratitude and attentiveness make my days most satisfying."

"The work we're doing here isn't easily measured . . . but how do you measure a child's smile as the words on a printed page slowly begin to take on meaning?"

Pork Chops Get Saucy with Soup Plus Seasonings

Like a sauce that makes itself? Then you'll like these pork chops which have a gravy-sauce as soon as they've finished cooking.

There's flavor a-plenty in this sauce, too, which uses half of a can of condensed cream of celery soup. Chili and Worcestershire sauces are added for zip before pouring over browned pork rib or loin chops.

Serving pork chops regularly is a good way to get high quality protein and thiamine into the diet claims Reba Staggs, noted meat authority. Pork is the richest natural source of this important vitamin which contributes to healthy nerves and good digestion.

Saucy Pork Chops

- 6 pork rib or loin chops, cut ¾-inch thick
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ can (10½ ounces or approximately ⅘ cup) condensed cream of celery soup
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

DOUSING SHIRLEY—To make certain film star Shirley MacLaine is sufficiently wet for a scene in which she emerges from water, she is thoroughly watered down first. The scene is in "The Yellow Rolls-Royce," now before the cameras in Europe.

LBJ Runs into Trouble after Comparatively Easy Sailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unhappy side of the presidency finally caught up with Lyndon B. Johnson who had it fairly nice, coping with the predictable, in his first 14 months in the White House.

There had been some annoyances abroad but most of his time, talent, and tenacity were concentrated on problems at home, like winning an election, getting a civil rights bill passed, pushing through a tax cut.

This was where he was an expert, after his long years in Washington. He had an acute sensitivity to politicians, understood the machinery of government, knew when to shift gears, throw switches, and turn the heat on.

Time was extraordinarily kind in allowing him so long a stretch in which to deal with what he knew best. No president since Franklin D. Roosevelt had such little critical trouble overseas in his first 14 months.

It couldn't last, and it didn't. Trouble finally piled up on him when the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam attacked U.S. bases and shocked Americans into a vivid realization of what they were up against.

Anyone paying attention to the news these past two years knew the American-backed war against the Communists was going to pot and that the guerrillas were taking over more and more of a country the United States was helping defend.

All this news was spread over many months and no single episode, until U.S. bases were hit in South Viet Nam, illustrated so well the developing disaster.

The whole wretched condition of the war became clear with the attacks and Johnson's retaliation by ordering the bombing of some North Vietnamese bases. Johnson was repeatedly urged to talk to the nation about it. He didn't.

It isn't difficult to understand why he is reluctant to talk to the world directly on all this.

It might limit his freedom of maneuver in dealing with the Communists, now or later, and he may have reason, not clear now to outsiders, for thinking that just watchful waiting by itself is good medicine.

But Wednesday, U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, suggested the United States pull out of Viet Nam although he acknowledged, for American face-saving reasons, this could be done only after some kind of settlement.

And then he threw in a strange statement: "I am sure that the great American people, if only they know the true facts will agree with me that further bloodshed is unnecessary."

What facts don't the American people know? He didn't say. Nor did he say anyone was withholding facts from them.

If the United States did try to pull out suddenly — Johnson has no such thought, judging from the stories coming out of Washington — it would be an admitted defeat, costing the United States influence in Asia and elsewhere.

Nor, according to such stories, does Johnson think this is the time to talk negotiations with the Communists.

But Viet Nam, where American lives have been lost and billions of dollars spent if not wasted, is becoming topsy-turvy, with the generals competing for power among themselves and one government after another being overturned.

If this goes on much longer, Johnson will have a hard time convincing Americans this country should stay in Viet Nam to fight a war the Vietnamese are not fighting.

This is his first major foreign affairs dilemma. He knows more about it than the rest of the country. Therfore, and since there has been no climax and no solution, neither his caution nor his silence should be criticized.

Sooner or later there will be the climax and how Johnson emerges from it will affect his leadership here and abroad. It's no wonder he's watching his step.

Neither Ireland nor New Zealand have snakes.

Wallpapers Help Add or Subtract Room Proportion

Room too small or too large? Use wallpaper to help you create a look that seems to add or subtract space.

An airy, light paper seems to add an amazing amount of space in a small room. The scale of the design isn't the important part of this eye-deceiver — a fairly large motif will look fine if it is widely spaced on a light background.

Another good way to add a spacious feeling is to cover one wall with a scenic mural. There are country meadows, seascapes, views of the Orient, quaint pastoral scenes of ancient Greece, Colonial villages with tree-lined streets — an elegant variety to give focus to any room in the home.

To pull the room down in size, choose darker colors in a close, all-over design for the walls, and a deeper tone for the ceiling.

Unclog Ball-Point Pens

Polly

DEAR POLLY—Every now and then a ball-point pen tip becomes clogged with excessive ink and fuzz. The quickest and easiest way to clean such a point is to insert it in the filter portion of a cigarette. Just a few quick turns and it is ready to use.—ROSE ANN

GIRLS—You do not have to waste a fresh cigarette as an already-smoked one works just as well.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Inside our clothes chute I have tacked a strong cord with a clip type clothespin tied to it. When some of the dirty clothes are damp I clip them in the pin and they hang inside the chute, out of sight, until dry.—C. B.

DEAR POLLY—Rub the surface of a typing eraser with a fingernail emery board to keep it clean and your typing neat.

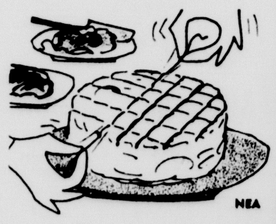
Our new home has a built-in vanity in the bathroom and I decided to store our toothbrushes out of sight. I had an old kitchen cutlery tray (plastic) and found it fit into one vanity drawer. Now each person has his own section of the tray for his toothbrush. This tray is easily washed.—MRS. O. F. C.

DEAR POLLY—I have a good way to decorate a cake without any special tools or skill. It works on fluffy or sugar icing. Recently I made a white cake with white icing to take to a church luncheon. It looked very drab so I tinted some of the icing—two colors in two saucers. I took two pieces of thread that were each longer than the cake was wide and soaked the thread in the icing, then held a piece taut. cut through the icing in a straight line, leaving a thin line of coloring. I kept doing this with the two colors until a plaid design was made. I am sure those with more originality can think of many patterns and designs.—MRS. F. E. D.



NEA

GIRLS—Don't you agree that Mrs. F. E. D. has the MOST originality in thinking of the idea?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When cleaning out drawers and cupboards have an old nylon stocking with you. You will be surprised at the amount of rubbish it will hold and the stuffed stocking takes little room in the trash can. Also eliminates all those little loose bits that could be scattered around when the can is emptied.—A READER FROM ENGLAND.

Armed Forces

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark.--Major Byrum W. Cooper, 340th Bomb Squadron recently passed his 3000th B-52 flying hour.

Major Cooper is assigned to the 340th as radar navigator on the chief of standardization crew.

Among his many memorable experiences was a "Round the World" flight of three B-52's in 1955. As it was explained by him, "one of the genuine thrills of my life."

Also included in his 10 year career with the B-52 are three years with the Strategic Air Command, (SAC), Standardization Group. The group was responsible for the insurance of standardization throughout the entire SAC crew force.

Prior to flying B-52 aircraft, Major Cooper flew B-47's at March AFB, Calif., for four years and accrued 1000 hours in flying that aircraft.

Before entering the Air Force, Major Cooper attended the University of Florida for three years, majoring in biology. He and his wife, Gwen, reside on base with their three children.

Only one other crew member of the 340th Bomb Squadron has established the 3000 hour flying record. He is Major Edward J. Cihak.

The famous comment, "What this country needs is a really good five-cent cigar," was made by Thomas Riley Marshall, the 28th vice president of the United States, one day while presiding over the Senate during a particularly tedious debate on the floor. Marshall was elected to the vice presidency along with President Woodrow Wilson in 1913. When he was re-elected during the next term he became the first vice president to succeed himself in office in almost a century.

Spanish Vegetable Platter For Buffet Supper

Here's a Spanish secret for making buffet suppers easy. Separately cook a variety of vegetables (selecting them for contrast of color), marinate each in Salsa Vinagreta, serve at room temperature to accompany a hot casserole. The vegetables can be prepared and set out on the serving table hours ahead, eliminating last minute fussing and they make a colorful assortment. Much easier than tossed salad, for there's no need to worry about wilting.

Salsa Vinagreta

1 cup Spanish olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup red wine vinegar
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 garlic clove, crushed
¼ cup minced parsley

Combine ingredients, blending well. Makes 1-½ cups sauce.

Good vegetable platter combination: artichoke hearts, tender whole beans, zucchini squash, small white potatoes, carrots. Cut tomato into "flower shape" to place in center of platter. Marinate each cooked vegetable separately; drain before placing on platter. Sprinkle mixture chopped sliced olives, capers and minced parsley for garnish over top.

The United States government purchased its first airplane on July 30, 1909.

A TREE I REMEMBER

A tree I remember -- a long time ago --
Grew on my Grandmother's farm,
At the edge of the field, by the fence row,
And cast a spell on me like a charm
Like a giant mushroom, this magic tree --
Or an umbrella running wild.
I asked my Granny what could it be:
She said, "A money tree, my child."
---Julia Henson

During the wartime manpower shortage, our college hired an elderly retired farmer as a groundskeeper. He was such a diligent worker that his supervisor cautioned him to take it easier and rest occasionally. The warnings went unheeded. Finally, worried about the man's health, the supervisor visited his wife to see if she couldn't persuade him to slow down. "I'll try," she said sympathetically, "but I don't think it will do much good. You see, he's always worked for himself, never for someone else. So he's just never learned to work slow." —Robert L. 'Operation Facelift' Raises Home Value

When it's time to plan remodeling projects, "Operation Facelift" should be one of the first on the list, say building experts. Applying a new "face" to a home's exterior, with the use of siding, does more than add lasting beauty.

By making a house safe against the elements, siding outside provides protection inside, thus guarding the appearance and value of any interior renovations and improvements. Then, too, an exterior remodeling job is an investment for the future and a real enhancement of property values.

"Operation Facelift" might begin with the choice of siding [illegible] and there are many, each with its own advantages. Anything from personal preference to local climate could be the deciding factor.

There's the familiar standby, wood — practical, economical, easy to shape to fit any wall. Wood siding is available in many types, to create many architectural effects, and can be painted to carry out any color scheme preferred or stained for a rustic look. It does, however, require maintenance, through painting or varnishing, so the question of upkeep should be considered.

Modern low-maintenance materials include aluminum siding. Among its advantages are: no warping, rotting, rusting or cracking and no danger from termites. In addition, it is available today in a variety of finishes and colors.

Easy to maintain, too, and long-wearing, is asbestos-cement siding. A fireproof, weatherproof substance made from a mixture of asbestos fibers and portland cement, it is resistant to rot, rust, decay, chemical fumes or corrosive salt air, and hardens through exposure.

It's made in a selection of shapes and textures, and in a range of colors from traditional whites to deep hues and soft pastels.

Thin masonry veneers are often used in combination with other types of siding. They include brick, stone and simulated stone. Here, too, color and pattern choice is excellent.

Durable and easy to handle, plywood siding is becoming a popular resurfacing material. Speed of application is one of its advantages, as it comes in large panels.

Reds Aren't Spoiling for All-Out Viet Nam War

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Despite Russian and Red Chinese promises of support to North Viet Nam and shouts against "imperialistic" U.S. bombings, the evidence here is:

1. Peking's Mao Tse-tung isn't prepared to get into another Korea in Viet Nam.

2. Moscow's Brezhnev and Kosygin are not ready to jump into a Cuba-type showdown in Asia.

Moscow statements after the raids were milder than Premier Kosygin's speeches beforehand. Translated out of the peculiar code language used by the Communist powers, Peking's reactions have been equally cautious.

Neither Red China nor Soviet Russia can afford economically or militarily to commit ground forces to action in South Viet Nam.

THE RED CHINESE TODAY can't be certain of the safe-haven arrangement they had during the Korean war of the 1950s. Then they had received assurances that China wouldn't be bombed. Peking has received no such assurances in this war. In fact, hints have been dropped to Mao that in case his Chinese do enter the Viet Nam war with Korea-type "volunteers," he can expect bombing raids on mainland China's industrial and military installations.

The Russians can't risk getting bogged down in Viet Nam, so far from home logistically. Neither can they risk now an open confrontation with the U.S. militarily in view of defense and economic weaknesses at home.

Nevertheless, reports reaching government analysts here indicate the Communists will step up the war in South Viet Nam.

These step-up decisions were made before the Kosygin visit to Asia—and before the U.S.-South Vietnamese attacks on Dong Hoi and Vinh Linh.

SOME TIME BACK, U.S. government analysts had deduced from the composition of the Kosygin delegation to Hanoi that Moscow was getting ready to give North Viet Nam anti-aircraft weapons and possibly fighter planes.

As in Cuba, the Russians may well put in modern ground-to-air (anti-aircraft) missiles and provide Russian troops to train North Vietnamese in missile use.

There is also evidence the Russians have offered the North Vietnamese a variety of technicians, including a limited number of advisers for the Viet Cong.

For additional effect, it is conceivable Brezhnev and Kosygin could cancel out President Johnson's projected visit to the Soviet Union and a possible return visit by one or another of the Soviet leaders.

CAPTURED DOCUMENTS and prisoner interrogations indicate the Red Chinese some months ago committed themselves to stepped-up aid for North Viet Nam.

The number of Chinese advisers serving with the Viet Cong has increased sharply. There are reportedly a growing number of Chinese technical advisers in Hanoi.

But these step-ups will be a far cry from another Korea invasion by Chinese "volunteers" and far less than the Soviet missile crisis in Cuba.

Idiotic American Aid Can Cause Trouble Instead Of Good--
We Wind Up Paying Our Blackmailers.

By JENKIN LLOYD JONES

A few months ago units of the Atlantic fleet arrived at Rio de Janeiro. Some genius in our embassy dreamed up a great public relations gimmick. A volunteer crew of American sailors would go up into one of the "favelas," or slum communities that cling to the beautiful Rio mountains. The sailors would paint a few shacks. And a Navy boilermaker would be sent to repair the leaky boiler in a Rio hospital.

No charge, of course. Just good will. Neighborliness.

Well, what the Communists did to this Boy Scout performance was pathetic. "What," they asked the citizens of Rio, "can the Americans be up to? And how stupid do they think we are if they believe that we cannot see that there is a trick in this somewhere?"

And, sure enough, in a short time not only most of Rio, but most of Brazil was asking, "What is the American trick?"

Now, where the embassy went wrong was in its failure to realize that nowhere does such altruism as painting a building or fixing a boiler free exist in the philosophy of the average Brazilian. To do these things a man must be either crazy or devious. And since the American sailors didn't look crazy their deviousness was easy to believe.

It's The Philosophy We Must Examine

There are plenty of examples of idiotic foreign aid. Like the 20-million-dollar plastics plant we gave Yugoslavia at the dedication of which both Mr. Tito and Mr. Khrushchev made glowing speeches about this example of the triumph of socialism!

Or the three-million-dollar air-conditioned yacht for Emperor Haile Selassie.

But it is a mistake to pick over bits of lint. Even if foreign aid were the greatest discovery since the tinder box, the passing out of about 100 billion American dollars would naturally include boo-boos. It is the philosophy, itself, we should re-examine.

Aided Nations Hate Role Of Beggar

Our aid program got started reasonably and wisely under the Marshall Plan. It was designed to rebuild the war-wrecked industrial economies of Europe and Japan, without which there would have been chaos, starvation and a probable Communist take-over.

But then the whole world, including nations which had not only sacrificed nothing in the war but which had profited handsomely from it began rattling the cup and our global charity got under way.

Nations hate to look upon themselves as mendicants. They like to imagine that they are giving something in return for what they are getting. And, in the case of American aid, rationalizations were not slow in coming, particularly since Communist propaganda helped all it could. Samples:

Americans are embarrassed by their food surplus.

Americans are contempuous of other nations, and think they can buy their friendship.

Americans are trying to control other governments for their own selfish purposes, and aid is the Trojan Horse.

Louder They Yelled, More We Gave

So Phase Two followed. Foreign politicians, in an effort to prove to their people that they were not subservient to the Americans began to make it a point to be critical of American policies.

This brought on Phase Three. The louder foreign statesmen yelled about the United States, the more foreign aid we rushed to them. You could get more American dollars by insulting Uncle Sam than by pumping his hand in gratitude.

And so we have come to Phase Four--blackmail. A recent issue of U. S. News & World Report asserts that the chief reason why American aid continues to Egypt after Mr. Nasser made no move to stop the burning of our libraries, refused to apoligize for shooting down an American plane, and told our ambassador to jump in the Nile, is because we fear, if aid is cut off, Nasser will attack Israel.

Somebody ought to send the State Department a history of ancient Rome. When the Romans began paying peace tributes the end of the empire was near. For the savage chieftains milked the Roman treasury for all they could get and then invaded anyway.

Foreign aid has some uses. Our wheat can stave off starvation in India for a limited time. Technical assistance can help some backward countries increase their gross national products. But the lavish outshoveling of American wealth to friends and enemies alike in the face of continued American balance of payments deficits, will not only not strengthen us in foreign affairs, but it will wreck the dollar.

It's that simple and it's time for another look.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 6
Reading time 3 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Repetition is a child's main tool in learning. An ant always uses the same entrance and exit to and from its colony. A child always uses the sounds that he knows will work, then he goes about the business of adding new words to what he already knows. Soon, he finds that he can employ, "do we all? — "key" No. 5 — with the first person singular, and produce the first person plural. So, using what he already knows, he simply adds "do we all?" to "I want to eat". In Spanish, it is not necessary to say, 'comemos', which is the conjugation of the verb, 'comer' (to eat), in the first person plural. By simply saying, "Quiero comer, y nosotros todos?" (key-AIR-o--co-MARE--e--no-SO-trose--TOE-dose), the child can say, "Do we all want to eat?" More important still, he can add, 'y nosotros todos' (e--no-SO-trose--TOE-dose) to 'voy a comer' (voy-ah--co'MARE) and say, "I am going to eat, are we all?" Or, using the same "key", he can say, "I ate, did we all?" — 'Ful a comer, y nosotros todos?' (foo - EE -- ah -- co-MARE--e -- no-SO-TROSE -- TOE-dose). Simple, you think!

Yes, but remember that nature is the architect, and, in nature, there is no wasted effort — everything follows in order, just as the night follows the day. Soon we will show you how the child finds "keys" that will begin to expand his vocabulary by leagues.

Tomorrow, we will give you "key" No. 6, and then you will be able to express yourself, in Spanish, in the present, past and future tenses, using all persons. From this point forward, you will need only to add the infinitives of new verbs to expand your knowledge at an accelerated rate. For example, the verb 'to build', is 'construir' (cone-stroo-EAR). Associate it with the English verb, 'to construct'. All you need do is use the "keys" that you know with your new verb and you can say, "I want to build". — 'Quiero construcir' (key-AIR-o--con-stroo-EAR). Then add, "do you", "do we all", "do they"; and the one new verb has given you a vast new latitude considering that, with your "keys", you can say, "I want to build", "I am going to build," "I built".

Tomorrow — "key" No. 6.

Carmine is a red or purplish-red pigment obtained from cochineal, a red dye extracted from the dried bodies of female scale insects that live in tropical and subtropical America—mainly Mexico and Central America—and feed on a species of cactus. It takes 70,000 insects to make one pound of cochineal and a 100-square-mile plantation to yield 600 pounds.

Khanh Gloomy Regarding War Prospects in Viet Nam

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh is headed for the United States with some gloomy views about the prospects for the war in South Viet Nam.

Those who know the deposed strongman of Saigon report that he feels the war will be lost — this year — unless the Americans decide to extend it directly to the Communist North, even at the risk of hostilities with Red China.

Khanh, now designated an ambassador-at-large to lay Saigon's case against the North before the U.N. Security Council, is known to believe that the only chance to save Viet Nam from a Communist takeover is to convert the limited war in Indochina to a general war between Red China and the West.

Inside South Viet Nam he probably is far from alone in this viewpoint. Thus, in coming to the United States, he is pictured as seeing his prime role as diplomatic and his goal to bring the United States into open hostilities with North Viet Nam and even Red China.

Khanh has clashed sharply with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor. Those who know the former strongman say he resents Taylor for opposing his assessment of the prospects. He is said to want to see President Johnson in person and lay his case on the line, confident that his views would be supported by many Americans — including military advisers with whom he has had contact in South Viet Nam.

Khanh preferred to deal with Taylor's predecessor, Henry Cabot Lodge, and when Lodge left to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination last year, Khanh was quoted as advising Washington to "send me another Lodge."

For one thing, Khanh is represented by those who know him well as arguing that the Americans bungle, blunder into internal political situations which are none of their business. Such intervention, he is said to feel, often causes Vietnamese leaders to oppose the Americans as a matter of principle, on the basis of sovereignty, whether or not their opposition represents wisdom.

As for the stability the Americans have been seeking so long in South Viet Nam's government, people who have talked with Khanh believe he would insist such stability could come only through cooperation with the predominant Buddhists.

Khanh is known to have complained that the Americans in Saigon insist upon thinking of Viet Nam as a case all to itself, without taking into consideration what the Red Chinese may be planning. He is represented as believing that there is little time left, that this is the year of decision in Southeast Asia.

Khanh is apparently of the opinion that eventually war between China and America is inevitable, if oriental communism is not to engulf all the Orient. This opinion argues that the longer the China - West conflict is delayed, the worse it will be for the West, as China continues to build a nuclear arsenal.

Ease Paint Plans With These Tips

When a can of paint is being stirred by an electric drill with paint mixing attachment, prevent spatter by making a temporary lid of heavy cardboard. Push mixing rod through hole punched in cardboard.

Spinning the handle of a paint brush between the hands after cleaning will remove excess solvent or thinner effectively.

PRACTICE FOR PANCAKE RACE -- Taking advantage of fair weather, Liberal, Kan., housewives practice for the international pancake race to be held March 2. The race has been an annual Shrove Tuesday event since 1950. Liberal housewives compete with housewives from Olney, England, and the score now stands at 8-7 in favor of Olney. Yesterday in Missouri's Assembly

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House made little headway yesterday as it opened first round debate on a bill to abolish the death penalty in Missouri.

But the House did adda couple of amendments, one corrective and one to preserve the death penalty only for persons who kill law enforcement officers or guards in a prison or jail.

Other amendments were pending as the House broke for lunch. It appeared the debate would consume most of today and perhaps even longer.

As the debate went on the Missouri Supreme Court denied a stay of execution for Lloyd Leo Anderson, convicted of killing a St. Louis drugstore delivery boy and scheduled to die in the gas chamber just after Thursday midnight.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes gave Anderson one five-week stay to see what the legislature's attitude might be on the abolition of the death penalty.

The imminence of Anderson's death troubled some members of the House during the debate but it was not mentioned by anyone. Still members could see that radio station KMOC, St. Louis was broadcasting the arguments.

The closest reference was when Rep. Monty Harlow, R-Greene County, moved that the debate be delayed until next Wednesday. It was defeated 31-118.

The situation apparently resolved to a point that only action by the governor could further delay Anderson's execution.

The Senate passed once again a bill to set up a legislative fiscal officer to act as a watchdog on state spending. Similar bills have been vetoed three times by former governors.

The bill now goes back to the House for acceptance of Senate changes, including one to end the experimental fiscal check Jan. 1, 1970.

The vote on passage was 28-2 with Sens. Michael Kinney, D-St. Louis and Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, the only dissenters.

Under the plan a permanent committee on fiscal affairs would be set up with seven members of the Appropriation Committee of each house plus the president pro tem of the Senate and House speaker.

They would hire a fiscal director and a staff to work between legislative sessions.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, sponsoring the bill, called it a step in the direction of fiscal responsibility and a long needed legislative tool.

It was offered by Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, a lawyer and a member of the State Bar board of governors.

A new insurance bill would grant a witness immunity from prosecution in testifying before the state insurance superintendent or his staff.

Others would provide penalties for insurance companies which continue to receive premiums while insolvent and one to give the superintendent power to audit and financial report from a failing company.

Another would require the state to withhold St. Louis and Kansas City earnings tax from state employes in those areas.

Bills had an easy time moving ahead in the House Tuesday.

The practice of scalping has been known at least as far back as Herodotus in the fifth century B.C. Greg Hulme, of Lilbourn, Is Awarded a Scholarship

LILBOURN — Greg Hulme, 18, son of Reverend and Mrs. Gilbert N. Hulme of Lilbourn and a senior at Lilbourn High School recently received notice that he will receive a Presidential Scholarship for Music in the amount of tuition and fees at the Ouachita Baptist University, Arkadelphia, Ark.

A letter written to young Hulme by Ralph A. Phelps, Jr., president of the University, termed the youngster as outstanding and stated that the scholarship will be renewable annually for four years.

An accomplished pianist, Greg has won numerous honors for his performances. His honors include: a one rating at the District Music Festival, Central Missouri State College, for 1962-63-64; a one rating at the State Music Festival, University of Missouri, Columbia, 1963; a two rating at the same Festival in 1962 and 1964; third place winner of the Missouri State Fair Piano Contest in 1962; and finalist and third place winner in the Coke Ensemble Competition, Conservatory of Music, University of Missouri at Kansas City, 1964.

In addition, Greg was selected for honors by the State Music Department, Jefferson City, after earning an E plus on an examination of applied music in 1963 and 1964. This qualified him to perform in a Master Class Concert at the annual State Piano Teacher's Convention held in Columbia in 1963 and in Jefferson City in 1964.

He has auditioned and won third place in a competition to represent Missouri at the National Piano Teacher's Convention to be held later in Dallas, Texas. Also, he has performed in numerous recitals under the direction of the Conservatory of Music in Kansas City. These were recitals featuring only students from the Center Division of the Conservatory.

Cook Ahead, Plan to Serve With Sauce

This is wise when you're using a meat cut such as tongue that needs slow simmering from three to five hours. Tongue needs no pot-watching. Just cover it with water, cover the cooking utensil tightly and simmer until tender.

After cooking, plunge this variety meat into cold water and slip off the skin. It can then be refrigerated and sliced as directed in this recipe and served with a zesty sauce.

Tongue with Nippy Sauce

½ can (10½ ounces) or approximately ⅔ cup condensed tomato soup
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ cup sliced stuffed olives

Combine tomato soup, water, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, mustard and olives. Cook just until heated through. Serve sauce with tongue slices. 4 to 6 servings.

Details of a proposed educational television system for Missouri were outlined Wednesday night for a House Committee on Education.

A bill drafted as a result of an interim committee study during the past two years asks for $16 million over a 10-year period to construct an open circuit UHF system reaching all parts of the state.

The measure calls for immediate appointment of a five-member commission to work with the FCC to obtain necessary channels.

Missouri, according to the testimony, is the only state without such an agency.

Explaining the plan was William J. Reagan, director of broadcast engineering at the University of Missouri. He was a member of the interim committee formed at the behest of former Gov. John M. Dalton, who made educational television one of his major programs.

Reagan said the cost and efficiency studies indicate the open circuit system to be best suited to Missouri's needs. It would require construction of 17 broadcasting facilities strategically located throughout the state, and fed by a central production facility located at Columbia or elsewhere.

The facilities would be linked by a microwave network.

Cost would be about $5.5 million a year when the full system is operative, Reagan said, or about $2.21 per pupil.

"It's not a bad poem, Homer—but 'Iliad' is the silliest title I ever did hear of!"

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1965. There are 309 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, George Rogers Clark captured Ft. Vincennes from the British.

On this date

In 1746, revolutionary soldier-statesman Charles Pinckney was born.

In 1836, Samuel Colt patented the six-shooter, or revolving pistol.

In 1783, Denmark recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1901, the United States Steel Corp. was incorporated.

In 1913, the income tax amendment to the Constitution was declared in force.

Ten years ago — A House bill approving an income tax cut across the board was defeated in the Senate.

Five years ago — Israel protested to the U.N. Security Council against what it called warlike threats by the United Arab Republic.

One year ago — Fifty-eight persons were killed in the crash of an Eastern Air Lines jet shortly after taking off from New Orleans.

Would Provide More Safety For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cabinet committee on presidential safety is expected to recommend shortly that more money, manpower and investigative authority be devoted to the protection of presidents.

The commission, it is understood, will reject proposals that the responsibility for guarding the life of the president by shifted from the Secret Service to the FBI or some other agency.

Informed official sources said the four-man group headed by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon also has reached substantial agreement on other problems of presidential security and will deliver its report to the White House shortly.

The Cabinet committee was named by President Johnson last Sept. 28. The Warren Commission, in its report that day on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, urged that such a body be established to review and oversee presidential protective activities.

In addition to Dillon, whose department embraces the Secret Service, the members are Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency and McGeorge Bundy, presidential assistant for national security affairs.

The White House is expected to make the report public, since the findings will have a significant bearing on the action to be taken by Congress on pending and proposed protective measures.

Government sources have indicated that these will be among the recommendations:

— Legislation making it a federal crime to attempt the assassination of a president or vice president of the United States.

This proposal was embodied in several bills in the last session of Congress. Some officials believe it could be enacted quickly if recommended by the President and the Cabinet committee.

— A substantial manpower build-up for the Secret Service.

—Greatly improved liaison between the Secret Service and the FBI and other federal investigative agencies, without shifting to the FBI any major Secret Service responsibility.

— A massive step-up in the service's protective research section — the unit which seeks to spot potential assassins in advance.

KILL BILL ABOLISHING CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

JOHN YOUNT, area farm management specialist, University of Missouri, shown addressing area farmers at meeting Wednesday at the Sikeston Production Association. (Standard Photo)

Sikeston PCA Has Courses on Farm Finance Management

The Sikeston Production Credit Association conducted the first of a series of three Farm Financial Management Courses on Wednesday at the Central Office in Sikeston. In spite of the inclement weather, farmers turned out to attend the Management Course entitled "What Affects Your Farm Profits."

The local farmer owned credit institution planned and is sponsoring a three session management information course in conjunction with the area agriculture extension staff. The association maintains offices in Advance, Jackson, Dexter, Portageville, Charleston, and Poplar Bluff in addition to Sikeston. Each area office is conducting the same Management Institute for farmers in their particular area.

The three session course is designed to bring farmers up to date on many phases on managing their finances. The instructors are using good illustrations on ways and means of improving the farmers net income.

There are presently 270 farmers enrolled in the course which runs through March 12.

Many comments were made by those in attendance regarding the organization of land, labor, and capital. John Yount, the instructor, pointed out that the proper management of these inputs determine the gross production of a farm. "With proper records and farm techniques" says Mr. Yount, "good profits can be realized from farming."

Proper know how is essential. This is the when, where, why, and how we do things. Another word for this is management. How you manage your inputs and outputs determines your profit. Farming is big business and it takes top management for the most profit. Mr. Yount pointed out that some of the things that farmers can do to improve their income is treat your seed, proper fertilizations through soil testing and proper application, control weeds and trim harvest costs.

LILBOURN--Jimmie Dodson, of Marston, operator of "The Hut", a tavern, and Ray Eaton, of Marston, a farm laborer were arrested Tuesday night by officers from New Madrid, Lilbourn, New Madrid County sheriff's office and the Secret Service as the climax to a "cloak and dagger" investigation that rivals fiction.

The two men are alleged to have trafficked in counterfeit $10 bills, believed to be part of the counterfiet money uncovered in Chicago about two years ago but which had not been found.

An officer of the New Madrid police, some time ago, getting wind of the fact the phoney money was being passed and a tip that Dodson was the passer, ingratiated himself into Dodson's confidence on a pretext that he, the officer, wanted to make "some easy money" quick.

Dodson, it is alleged, introduced the officer to Eaton who sold him $100 worth of the counterfeits. Then, the officer told Dodson and Eaton he had a friend from Michigan really a Secret Service operater, who wanted to buy also and it is reported, they succeeded in purchasing $2,500 worth, which they paid for with marked money. As soon as the deal was closed the officers arrested Dodson and Eaton.

Pope Invests 32 Cardinals At Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI invested 26 new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church today, conferring on them the red hats and rings of their princely office.

The cardinals included one American, Archbishop Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore, Md. The 27th prelate elevated by the Pope this week, Bishop Angel Herrera y Oria of Malaga, remained in Spain to receive his insignia from the Spanish chief of state, Generalissimo Franco, in accordance with tradition in that Catholic country.

The glittering public consistory in St. Peter's Basilica was attended by thousands, including presidents of African states, Prime Minister Sean Lemass of Ireland and 36 other cardinals. But the ceremony was drastically revised, reflecting the current modernization of the Church.

Today's ceremony took the place of three separate consistories previously held for new cardinals. For the first time, it opened with a Mass celebrated jointly by the Pope and the 26 new cardinals. This was to emphasize the spiritual aspects of the ritual, in line with decrees of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

After the first part of the Mass, the new cardinals stood in a semicircle around Pope Paul's throne as he told them:

"Dearest brothers, a great and lofty dignity is conferred on you. You will be, in fact, our cooperators and counselors in the ruling and the governing of the holy Catholic Church.

"Know that you are obliged in a most particular way to commit yourselves with all your energy for the exaltation of the Catholic faith, for the peace of the Christian people and of all peoples, for the defense of ecclesiastical liberty."

This formula, a new one, also stemmed from the Vatican council and its decrees emphasizing the brotherhood of all men and the sharing of power over the Church by the Pope and bishops collectively.

Taxpayer Is Given A Break

This time there seemed little hope of a reprieve.

Warden W. P. Steinhauser said he had received no word to stay the execution again. He said all preparations had been made to execute Anderson in the gas chamber a few minutes after midnight tonight.

The Missouri House apparently ended Anderson's last chance late Wednesday when it decisively killed a bill to end capital punishment in Missouri.

The governor had asked the House for a record vote to test legistive sentment on the bill. The measure was downed on a 45-12 roll call.

The bill had been tabled once on a voice vote but at the governor's request was revived long enough to be defeated a second time on the roll call.

Soon after that Anderson's attorney, James Rankin of St. Louis, said he sent an airmail request to the U.S. Supreme Court asking another stay on grounds Anderson was not told he was entitled to counsel when he signed a statement about the murder.

Anderson was convicted Sept. 28, 1961, in St. Louis Circuit Court of killing a 15-year-old drugstore delivery boy during a holdup.

Thomas E. Grupe, the delivery boy, entered the store while three Negroes were robbing the proprietor. He was led to the basement and shot.

Police said Anderson had admitted another holdup slaying and six other crimes.

The conviction was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Anderson has lived through several execution dates, the latest Jan. 22.

A few hours before he was to die, the governor granted a reprieve until Feb. 26 so he could get a test of legislative feeling on the capital punishment issue.

It took the House most of the day Wednesday to get a vote and tempers flared several times.

On one occasion, Rep. Monty Harlow, R-Greene County, attacked the governor and accused him of passing the responsibility to the House.

Speaker Thomas D. Graham, D-Cole County, castrigated him and ordered him to his seat when Harlow tried to continue.

Missouri taxpayers got an $800,000 break from the Senate Ways and Means Committee Wednesday.

The committee approved a bill to abolish the one-cent state property tax. It was levied originally to pay old school and seminary fund interest but those debts were retired in 1961.

Also approved was a bill to require uniform reporting to the director of Revenue all fees and funds collected by state agencies. More than $75 million is unreported now.

A proposal to provide public school bus service for private and parochial students could go before the voters in a referendum election under a plan by Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage.

Robert Blaine of Florissant, representing a Citizens Committee for Educational Freedom, said he would not object to a referendum. Blaine said since the school bus plan calls for a separate transportation fund, it would not conflict with state or federal constitutions.

Opponents of the measure will be heard next Wednesday.

A House committee heard a proposal for a statewide educational television network Wednesday night but deferred action.

The plan, recommended by an interim study committee, would cost an estimated $16 million over the next 10 years. A central production station at Columbia or elsewhere would feed 17 regional transmitters scattered around the state by microwave relay.

William J. Reagon, director of broadcast engineering at the University of Missouri, estimated the system would cost about $5.5 million a year to operate, or about $2.21 per pupil.

Another House committee heard testimony for a public authority to operate a mass transit system in the Kansas City metropolitan area. Action was deferred until next week.

The House got a new bill Wednesday to put all state Highway Department employes under the merit system.

KILL BILL ABOLISHING CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Sikeston PCA Has Courses on Farm Finance Management

The Sikeston Production Credit Association conducted the first of a series of three Farm Financial Management Courses on Wednesday at the Central Office in Sikeston. In spite of the inclement weather, farmers turned out to attend the Management Course entitled "What Affects Your Farm Profits."

The local farmer owned credit institution planned and is sponsoring a three session management information course in conjunction with the area agriculture extension staff. The association maintains offices in Advance, Jackson, Dexter, Portageville, Charleston, and Poplar Bluff in addition to Sikeston. Each area office is conducting the same Management Institute for farmers in their particular area.

The three session course is designed to bring farmers up to date on many phases on managing their finances. The instructors are using good illustrations on ways and means of improving the farmers net income.

There are presently 270 farmers enrolled in the course which runs through March 12.

Many comments were made by those in attendance regarding the organization of land, labor, and capital. John Yount, the instructor, pointed out that the proper management of these inputs determine the gross production of a farm. "With proper records and farm techniques" says Mr. Yount, "good profits can be realized from farming."

Proper know how is essential. This is the when, where, why, and how we do things. Another word for this is management. How you manage your inputs and outputs determines your profit. Farming is big business and it takes top management for the most profit. Mr. Yount pointed out that some of the things that farmers can do to improve their income is treat your seed, proper fertilizations through soil testing and proper application, control weeds and trim harvest costs.

All across Southeast Missouri and in the Sikeston area the high winds and ice accumulation resulted in the wires slapping together to cause shortages. But luckily nothing serious resulted. No one was left without lights or telephones for any length of time.

EUREKA, Calif. AP --Municipal Judge Robert Conners was mystified Wednesday when Delton Pardue asked for some other judge to try Mrs. Pardue's assault charges against him.

"You married us," Pardue reminded the judge, adding:

"You got me into this and I want somebody else to get me out."

Taxpayer Is Given A Break

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lloyd Leo Anderson had another "last day" of his life in death row of Missouri's penitentiary today.

This time there seemed little hope of a reprieve.

Warden W. P. Steinhauser said he had received no word to stay the execution again. He said all preparations had been made to execute Anderson in the gas chamber a few minutes after midnight tonight.

The Missouri House apparently ended Anderson's last chance late Wednesday when it decisively killed a bill to end capital punishment in Missouri.

The governor had asked the House for a record vote to test legistive sentment on the bill. The measure was downed on a 45-12 roll call.

The bill had been tabled once on a voice vote but at the governor's request was revived long enough to be defeated a second time on the roll call.

Soon after that Anderson's attorney, James Rankin of St. Louis, said he sent an airmail request to the U.S. Supreme Court asking another stay on grounds Anderson was not told he was entitled to counsel when he signed a statement about the murder.

Anderson was convicted Sept. 28, 1961, in St. Louis Circuit Court of killing a 15-year-old drugstore delivery boy during a holdup.

Thomas E. Grupe, the delivery boy, entered the store while three Negroes were robbing the proprietor. He was led to the basement and shot.

Police said Anderson had admitted another holdup slaying and six other crimes.

The conviction was upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court.

Anderson has lived through several execution dates, the latest Jan. 22.

A few hours before he was to die, the governor granted a reprieve until Feb. 26 so he could get a test of legislative feeling on the capital punishment issue.

It took the House most of the day Wednesday to get a vote and tempers flared several times.

On one occasion, Rep. Monty Harlow, R-Cole County, castigated him and ordered him to his seat when Harlow tried to continue.

Missouri taxpayers got an $800,000 break from the Senate Ways and Means Committee Wednesday.

The committee approved a bill to abolish the one-cent state property tax. It was levied originally to pay old school and seminary fund interest but those debts were retired in 1961.

Also approved was a bill to require uniform reporting to the director of Revenue all fees and funds collected by state agencies. More than $75 million is unreported now.

A proposal to provide public school bus service for private and parochial students could go before the voters in a referendum election under a plan by Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage.

Robert Blaine of Florissant, representing a Citizens Committee for Educational Freedom, said he would not object to a referendum. Blaine said since the school bus plan calls for a separate transportation fund, it would not conflict with state or federal constitutions.

Opponents of the measure will be heard next Wednesday.

A House committee heard a proposal for a statewide educational television network Wednesday night but deferred action.

The plan, recommended by an interim study committee, would cost an estimated $16 million over the next 10 years. A central production station at Columbia or elsewhere would feed 17 regional transmitters scattered around the state by microwave relay.

William J. Reagon, director of broadcast engineering at the University of Missouri, estimated the system would cost about $5.5 million a year to operate, or about $2.21 per pupil.

Another House committee heard testimony for a public authority to operate a mass transit system in the Kansas City metropolitan area. Action was deferred until next week.

The House got a new bill Wednesday to put all state Highway Department employes under the merit system.

The last 15 years have given us a wonderful example of how competition works between giant industries.

During World War II -- as during all big wars -- competition was more or less taking a holiday because of the great demand for almost everything.

Riding high, in a seemingly invulnerable position, was the coal industry which could sell every ton produced (even coal that was not much good) at an average of $4.16 at the mine, almost double pre - war prices.

Coal users, particularly the steam railroads, and the home owner, were unhappy but helpless -- for the time.

But by 1945 competition was back in high gear. In the railroad field, the newly developed Diesel locomotives offered an escape from steam locomotives that burned almost 100 tons of coal every 24 hour day. Between 1945 and 1960 the use of coal by railroads almost vanished.

Relief also came to home owners through the newly - built oil and gas pipelines, made profitable by the high price of coal. The war had brought them a choice of coal, gas, and oil. During the 15 years mentioned above, the use of coal in home heating dropped about 75%.

Even the generating plants of the electric utilities (coal's best market) were equipped to change over to gas or oil, thus posing another competitive threat to coal.

Then came the next step in this competitive battle: the coal industry -- with the cooperation of John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union -- revolutionized its production through improved automatic tools. This meant higher investment and fewer but better jobs.

Since 1947 coal production per worker has increased from 6 1/2 tons a day to about 16 tons. During this time the number of miners dropped from about 420,000 to about 120,000. Production costs kept falling, and basic wages rose 72%. Miners no longer dig coal; they run machines.

Coal was "back in business" except for one thing: most of the savings in production costs were being eaten up in higher freight charges. But the railroads, too, had competition. The river barges were hungry for business and were able to take over about 27% of the rail tonnage.

However, the step that really sent a tremor through the railroads was the successful development of a pipe line that would transport a mixture of coal and water all ready to be sprayed into the fire box of the generating plant, and save $1.00 per ton.

This put the next step squarely up to the railroads, which responded with the fast-delivery Unit Train which, through sheer efficiency, reduced freight rates a whopping 30%.

So there the matter stands in 1965: Out of the titanic struggle between coal, gas, oil, barges, railroads and pipe lines, came the world's finest and lowest cost fuel system.

They are all making money, but as always, in free competitive situations, the big winner is the public.

"What would be the fate of government in the United States in 1960's," asks the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, if presidential illness resulted in disability but not in death?

"Would a devoted First Lady, or an uncertain Vice-President, attempt to carry out the role of Chief Executive, or would government stagger along 'as best it could' until the President regained his health, or was succeeded upon his death by the Vice-President."?

These questions, and others, have been raised in a publication entitled "A Country Without A Man: A Study of Presidential Disability," prepared and distributed by the Commission.

The study does not leave these questions unresolved. Instead, the Commission advances specific recommendations and asks the Eighty-ninth Congress to take action pursuant to resolutions approved by the Virginia General Assembly in December memorializing Congress to provide a long-needed solution, not only to the problem of presidential disability, but also to the related problem of Vice-Presidential vacancies.

In pointing up the need for a constitutional amendment to remedy the problem, rather than congressional legislation, the Commission notes that if "the problem is left solely to legislative solution, the political probabilities are that it will be solved; it is like an operation that always can be postponed."

Up to five free copies of this study may be obtained on request to the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia.

BUSINESS OFFERED CIVIL RIGHTS ACT ADJUSTMENT HELP

A nation - wide program of education to help businessmen adjust to the "new era in industrial relations" brought about by enactment of the Civil Rights Act has been announced by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Because Title VII of the new law places the federal government in the position of final arbiter of personnel practices, there is need of genuine appreciation of its implications at policy levels of management," W. P. Gullander, NAM President, said.

A series of seminars, to be held in principal cities, will be designed by the NAM to clarify the new provisions pertaining to hiring, firing, and promotion policies in industry.

SIGNIFICANT BEARING

"No piece of legislation since the Wagner Act of three decades ago will have a more significant bearing on industrial relations procedures than Title VII of the new act," Mr. Gullander said. "Much depends on how companies undertake to cope with the far - reaching ramifications of this law. The ability of American industry to adjust swiftly but wisely to new conditions will have an important effect on our nation's rate of progress."

Mr. Gullander said that the seminars will emphasize the positive techniques which management can use to adjust its procedures to the new law. He said the program will assist industry in understanding Title VII before its provisions become mandatory.

"It is fully apparent that our nation is entering a new era of industrial relations," Mr. Gullander added. "Our seminars will provide businessmen with practical suggestions as to how they can meet the variety of new situations that inevitably will develop when the law becomes effective."

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is asking the boss for a hike in pay.

This is the greatest business drama in America today, and it takes place daily in thousands of offices.

The pattern usually goes as follows:

Your name is Jack Crestfall, and you finally get tired of hearing your wife complain about how hard it is for her to make both ends meet.

"If you don't ask for a raise, I'm going to have to start taking in the neighbors' washing," she threatens.

When you tell your buddies at the office you are going to hit the boss up for more money, all work halts while they give advice. Some egg you on, others say you are foolhardy. They recall the case of a fellow in the stockroom who asked for a raise 20 years ago, got fired and wound up on the streets carrying a signboard for a pants-pressing firm.

The next step is to enlist the aid of the secretary of the boss. You butter her up by buying her flowers and candy with your lunch money.

Two months later she lets you know the stage is set.

"The boss is real pleased this morning because he had a good golf game yesterday, Jack," she says. "You'd better hit him up now — while his irons are still hot."

But the big man — old J.P. Grasper — seems in a mood of pure irony when you squirm across the thick rug up to his desk.

"Ah, Mr. Crestfall," he murmurs, "and may I inquire the purpose of your visit? I hope this is not another complaint about the lack of paper towels in the men's washroom."

"No, sir," you hesitate, and then the words blurt out, "I just got to have more money. My wife and kids —"

"You understand, of course, young man, that we are not exactly a welfare organization." This is the boss's favorite line.

"No, sir, but I have been working hard. Last month I put 20 new ideas in the office suggestion box."

"How many have we adopted?"

"None, sir."

A long, long silence.

Grasper, toying with his eyeglasses and staring dolefully out the window, then gives you management's set speech. Management itself likes to move young men ahead as fast as it can, but management has its problems, too. Management is on a raft adrift in perilous seas. Business is bad, the market is tightening, no one knows what lies ahead.

Just as your backbone melts into complete jelly and you start to volunteer to take a pay cut to keep the firm afloat, Grasper throws out a lifeline.

"Well, Mr. Crestfall," he says grudgingly, "I guess it wouldn't break us to give you a $5 increase, now, my boy" — he comes around and pats you firmly on the back — "Get in there and show us our confidence in you isn't misplaced!"

The highway commission of the State of Washington wanted to hire an information officer, but with the salary limited to $514 a month a suitable applicant could not be found. So the commission hired a part-time public - relations consultant at $800 a month -- the salary limit doesn't apply to part - time consultants. AP

Salesmen, artists and writers have an essential common need -- the need to walk a lonely road, to overcome natural inertia and get about the business of practicing their art. The writer I'm telling you about would do everything except write. He was always preparing to write. He took every course in writing offered. He spent his evening hours browsing through bookstores looking for books on writing. When he wasn't doing that, he sought the fellowship of would-be writers to discuss writing. All the writers' conferences knew him.

One evening, as he searched through the book stalls, he found a book that looked promising, and asked the bookstore owner for his opinion. The owner had been around books for a long time and he loved them. But he knew people, too.

"You know," he said with a twinkle of understanding in his eye, "there comes a time when you must face the fact that you aren't going to learn to write by reading. Writing is a performing art. It must be practiced."

That thought took some days to sink in. Writing is a performing art. By and by the bookstore knew him no more. He took the lonely road. He set about producing.

And through the years, whenever this writer found it tough to get about his business, he recalled the little man in the book store and the words: "Writing is a performing art." So is selling.

ADMINISTRATION'S PLANS FURTHER INTRUSION IN STATES' AFFAIRS IS SEEN BY NAM

Commenting on President Johnson's State of the Union message, W. P. Gullander, president of the National Manufacturers Association, had this to say:

"President Johnson's State of the Union message was drafted so as to provide something for everyone. The message indicated clearly the desire of the President for the federal government to concern itself increasingly in areas that traditionally have been the province of the individual states and individual citizens.

"He paid tribute to the high level of economic development and prosperity of the nation, which has been achieved under circumstances which have not involved the federal government to the degree he now proposes.

CAREFUL STUDY URGED

"In the President's desire to promote greater economic growth and prosperity, he must examine carefully the possible consequences to his goals of a significant change in the source and location of the initiative and leadership that has created the most prosperous nation on earth.

"There is no evidence that these goals can be met by expanded federal direction of our lives and work. The real measure of the significance of the President's message will have to await the introduction of specific legislation aimed at accommodating his stated goal, and an indication of his success in obtaining Congressional action."

BIG BUSINESS NOW

Writing in Public Utilities Fortnightly, the head of the Rural Electrification Administration appeals for greater co-operation between investor-owned utilities and co-ops in order to develop "...effective rural electrification with maximum economy to the taxpayer." Most utility executives, he says, have always been hostile to the REA program.

The hostility--whether on the part of utility people or others--is not based on any opposition to bringing power to the farms. Private utilities pioneered rural electrification in many regions before REA was ever heard of. And private utilities deserve a goodly share of the credit for the fact that rural electrification is virtually complete in this country.

The utilities, on the other hand, oppose the efforts of co-ops to move into service areas which are nonrural, and which are served with complete adequacy by investor-owned, tax-paying companies. So is everyone who believes government should stick to the job of governing and not become involved in any commercial enterprise when private business can meet the need.

Beyond that, it would seem that if the development of rural electrification is to be achieved "...with maximum economy to the taxpayer" some fundamental changes will have to be made in the REA setup. As of now, the co-ops are directly and indirectly subsidized by the taxpayer. They are totally free of the federal income tax. And they borrow money from the Treasury at about half the rate the Treasury must pay to borrow long-term money it supplies them.

The REA program adds up to big business nowadays. It's time it was made to stand on its own feet, pay the going rate for borrowed money, and be on the same tax basis as comparable private enterprise.

BIRTH BOOM ALARMS AMA

If the American Medical Association has decided that population growth is a problem, then the situation may be more serious than some people have claimed.

Abandoning its traditional position of neutrality on birth control and disapproval of "propaganda" groups, the organization will begin sending out information on reproduction and control to doctors this year.

"The statistics on this astound me," says Dr. Raymond T. Holden, a Roman Catholic and chairman of the AMA Committee on Human Reproduction. "It is frightening to realize that if the present trend were allowed to continue unchecked, the world population would double in 40 years and in another 40 years double again."

The AMA emphasizes, however, that none of the information it will disseminate is intended for the general public.

LOCAL PUBLIC DEBT RISES BY 237 PERCENT

Local government debts have increased by 237 per cent since 1950, the Tax Foundation reports.

Fourteen years ago, the combined public debt of all communities stood at $18.8 billion. By the end of 1963 it has grown to $63.3 billion. In 1950, local government debt accounted for less than 7 per cent of all government debt; in 1963 the share had increased to 16 per cent.

Among the reasons for the post-World War II upsurge in local debt, the Foundation lists the growth of suburbia.

"As the population increased and housing developments grew, demands for services, for more roads, for sewers, for schools intensified," the Foundation pointed out. "And, while federal and state aid has helped in some instances, the laboring oar has been held by local government."

IMPLEMENTING CONSTRUCTIVE CULTURE

Constructive culture for the United States will become great enough to embrace phases and innumerable factors.

Its enthusiasts believe a child can learn faster at the age of three than at seven. Some believe two-thirds or more the brain-capacity of many mature people is never used.

Many people will devote a major part of their time to the study of constructive culture. In doing so, they should keep up their usual activities to maintain the common touch. Theorists who do not concern themselves with making a living become high impractical.

Maria Montessori, born Ancona Province, Italy, August 31, 1870, was an only child. Dr. Maria Montessori was the first woman in Italy to receive a medical degree. She was interested in retarded children conducting intensive studies of the work of Dr. Jene Itard and Dr. Eduard Seguin of France. In 1899 she directed a school in Rome for children considered hopelessly deficient.

In January 1906 she opened the first Montessori School, attracting international attention when retarded children learned easily to read and write. Her work continued throughout her lifetime ending in 1952.

Montessori Schools have been established in the United States and other countries. They instruct parents in the knowledge they should impart to their children at home. Juvenile deliquency would not result from this practice.

Early education toward a way of life where individuals will take pride in taking care of themselves can forstall bureaucratic processes. This embraces the immortal statement from President Kennedy's Inaugural Address, "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country." HLH.

If the Lords people had made half as much noise about teaching Christ in our schools as the Negroes have made about Civil Rights we would still be a Christian nation.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson is in the Caribbean. The column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — The FBI has picked up disquieting reports that the Rev. Martin Luther King, like the Negro nationalist Malcolm X, has been marked for murder.

The militant Malcolm apparently was gunned down by Negro extremists. The threats against Dr. King have come from White extremists.

As long ago as last July, the FBI learned that Ku Klux Klan terrorists tried to waylay Dr. King when he came to Monroe, La., on a civil rights mission. The last minute, the plot fell through.

The latests reports claim that Klansmen are now trying to hire an ex-convict for $2,000 to do the dirty work for them.

It is one of the ironies of the civil rights struggle that the Ku Klux Klan and Black Muslims ape one another at opposite ends of the spectrum.

Both seek to segregate the white and black races. Both quote scriptures to justify their hate doctrines. Both use goon squads to carry out acts of terror and violence.

Only elite Klansmen and Muslims, sworn to secrecy, are admitted to the strong - arm squads. In both cases, they hold separate meetings under tight military security.

—"HOLY TERRORS"—

Instead of the traditional white hoods, they usually wear dark, tight-fitting nods. Some simply use silk stockings pulled over their heads.

Both Klan and Muslim goon squads specialize in dogpatch-style attacks on defenseless victims. The Klansmen like to strip their victims, beat and flog them unmercifully, then leave them in a lonely wooded area to find their own way home. The Muslims specialize in "stomping" victims after they're down.

Both Klan and Muslim terrorists are disciplined to kill. The Muslims are known to have made earlier attempts on the life of Malcolm X before a spattering of bullets finally ripped into him Sunday at a Harlem rally.

Klansmen have also been implicated in a number of civil rights murders. Not long ago, a terror squad in Southern Mississippi was summoned to a secret meeting by a message, containing only the picture of a hooded rider upon a horse and a notation of the time and place.

—$1,200 MURDER FEE—

At this super-secret tryst, a hooded leader announced conspiratorially that the Klan was sponsoring an ex-convict at $1,200 "to do a job" that would make the slaying of civil rights leader Medgar Evers "look sick."

Perhaps this is the same $2,000 plot on Dr. King's life that the FBI had learned about earlier.

Both Klansmen and Muslims have a penchant for special robes and rituals. Leaders of both organizations make a big profit selling robes to the membership.

Guard: "Ayak." (Are you a Klansman?)

Guard: "Aog." (America on guard.)

Similarly, a Muslim meeting might open like this:

Minister: "As - salaam - alaikum." (Peace be unto you.)

Congregation: "Wa-salaikum-salaam." (And unto you peace also.)

Perhaps the next logical step would be a merger of the Klan and the Muslims.

—LBJ'S FAVORITE JOKE—

The subtle wit of the New Frontier has been replaced by the earthy humor of the Great Society. The Kennedy crowd liked their gags wry and dry, but the Johnson gang prefers straight corn.

Not that President Johnson is incapable of sly humor. Once he was called upon to introduce Senate Dean Carl Hayden at a banquet in Arizona, a state which Hayden has represented in Congress since it was admitted to the union in 1912.

"I don't believe," commented Johnson dryly, "that Adam had to be formally introduced to Eve."

But when the President was asked recently for his favorite joke, he came up with a typical Texas tale. It had to do with a predecessor, Sen. Joseph Weldon Bailey, who was famed for his soapbox oratory.

As the President tells it, a cowpoke straggled back to the ranch with glazed eyes after listening to Bailey declaim the whole day long. The entranced cowhand bore witness that it was the most magnificent speech he had ever heard.

"What," demanded the foreman, "did Senator Bailey have to say that took all day?"

"I don't rightly know," reflected the cowpoke. "But he sure did recommend himself highly."

Note: If visitors should hear a mirthful noise at the White House, like the happy bawl of a longhorn steer, it probably is the President in full laughter. For he has brought back the belly laugh to the White House. He disdains the wry smile, the amused look. When he hears a good joke, he likes to enjoy it with all his heart and diaphragm.

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

Shouting "the honeymoon is over" the truculent Teamsters' chief has declared political war on Congress; urged that it be deluged with one million letters; demanded a four-day work-week of 32 hours; and called for an intense white collar drive by his union's 5,000 officials. Mr. Hoffa has even approved contributions to a fund for the restoration of the home of the late legendary Socialist leader, Eugene Victor Debs. The house in Terre Haute, Ind., is being turned into a Socialist Shrine.

Editorials under his signature in the Teamster's union magazine constantly bristle with class slogans.

As he whirls leftward, he has become the positive darling of such hypermilitant politicalized unions as Harry Bridges West Coast longshoremen. They call him their martyr. They run regular civil liberties rallies in his defense.

He is in regular communication with these unionists and there is persistent talk of launching a new labor federation of more than two million workers to challenge the AFL-CIO.

Let no one think this could not happen shortly. Hoffa constantly is testing the strength of the older federation with a series of raids on AFL-CIO jurisdiction.

Characteristic of his neo-militancy is an editorial in the most recent edition of the "Teamster." Despite reports of lowering joblessness, the editorial said: ". . .The chronically unemployed are still standing idle in the shadow of the 40-hour work-week. . ." The answer, he adds, is a "four-day work-week amounting to 32 hours of toil."

To show how far Mr. Hoffa has moved from his conservative position, one observer recalls that in June, 1963, the Teamsters' president described the 13-week vacation plan in the steel industry as "stupid."

This was a week after the United Steelworkers and the major steel corporations had agreed to 13 weeks of paid vacation every five years for employes with the longest service records.

"They talk about creating 20,000 to 25,000 jobs in the steel industry because of the long vacations," Hoffa sneered at that time. "Want to know what those guys will do on a 13-week vacation? They'll take part-time jobs. They'll create more unemployment."

Today, Mr. Hoffa seriously contemplates a fight for the four-day work-week for the 1,750,000 teamsters. If he won such contracts for even half that number on over-the-road runs and intra-city carting, he would affect the entire economy of the nation. But his aggressive friends are urging this upon him.

These militants cheer him when he scoffs at the rest of the union movement —as he did the other day in his nationally distributed magazine.

"For too long, timidity has marked the legislative approach of the leaders of organized labor," he said of the men now meeting in the mid-winter session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council in Bal Harbour, Fla., "And apathy has marked the attitude of the rank and file of labor.

"I urge each and every one of our officers and members to wake up to legislative fact. I urge each and every one of you to write your Congressmen and Senators, to the chairmen of the House and Senate Labor committees, demanding that they act and act now. . ."

All this worries some observers who have been disturbed by scores of recent rank and file revolts against the traditional labor leaders. Observers interpret Mr. Hoffa's words as far more than rousing rhetoric.

They see it stirring rank and file demands for an ever shortening work-week and work-year.

These observers also see the failure of labor leaders to deliver such shorter work weeks resulting in strike action across the land. Thousands of pacts, covering millons of workers expire this year.

Mr. Hoffa's vigorous militancy could be costly to the economy.

Remember the "do gooders" had the Hanging penalty repealed once but the citizens of the state soon got their belly full and brought back the death penalty by Gas.

We hope our Southeast Missouri Representatives and Senators vote against the repeal.

The last 15 years have given us a wonderful example of how competition works between giant industries.

During World War II -- as during all big wars -- competition was more or less taking a holiday because of the great demand for almost everything.

Riding high, in a seemingly invulnerable position, was the coal industry which could sell every ton produced (even coal that was not much good) at an average of $4.16 at the mine, almost double pre - war prices.

Coal users, particularly the steam railroads, and the home owner, were unhappy but helpless -- for the time.

But by 1945 competition was back in high gear. In the railroad field, the newly developed Diesel locomotives offered an escape from steam locomotives that burned almost 100 tons of coal every 24 hour day. Between 1945 and 1960 the use of coal by railroads almost vanished.

Relief also came to home owners through the newly - built oil and gas pipelines, made profitable by the high price of coal. The war had brought them a choice of coal, gas, and oil. During the 15 years mentioned above, the use of coal in home heating dropped about 75%.

Even the generating plants of the electric utilities (coal's best market) were equipped to change over to gas or oil, thus posing another competitive threat to coal.

Then came the next step in this competitive battle: the coal industry -- with the cooperation of John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union -- revolutionized its production through improved automatic tools. This meant higher investment and fewer but better jobs.

Since 1947 coal production per worker has increased from 6 1/2 tons a day to about 16 tons. During this time the number of miners dropped from about 420,000 to about 120,000. Production costs kept falling, and basic wages rose 72%. Miners no longer dig coal; they run machines.

Coal was "back in business" except for one thing: most of the savings in production costs were being eaten up in higher freight charges. But the railroads, too, had competition. The river barges were hungry for business and were able to take over about 27% of the rail tonnage.

However, the step that really sent a tremor through the railroads was the successful development of a pipe line that would transport a mixture of coal and water all ready to be sprayed into the fire box of the generating plant, and save $1.00 per ton.

This put the next step squarely up to the railroads, which responded with the fast-delivery Unit Train which, through sheer efficiency, reduced freight rates a whopping 30%.

So there the matter stands in 1965: Out of the titanic struggle between coal, gas, oil, barges, railroads and pipe lines, came the world's finest and lowest cost fuel system.

They are all making money, but as always, in free competitive situations, the big winner is the public.

"What would be the fate of government in the United States in 1960's," asks the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, if presidential illness resulted in disability but not in death?

"Would a devoted First Lady, or an uncertain Vice-President, attempt to carry out the role of Chief Executive, or would government stagger along 'as best it could' until the President regained his health, or was succeeded upon his death by the Vice-President."?

These questions, and others, have been raised in a publication entitled "A Country Without A Man: A Study of Presidential Disability," prepared and distributed by the Commission.

The study does not leave these questions unresolved. Instead, the Commission advances specific recommendations and asks the Eighty-ninth Congress to take action pursuant to resolutions approved by the Virginia General Assembly in December memorializing Congress to provide a long-needed solution, not only to the problem of presidential disability, but also to the related problem of Vice-Presidential vacancies.

In pointing up the need for a constitutional amendment to remedy the problem, rather than congressional legislation, the Commission notes that if "the problem is left solely to legislative solution, the political probabilities are that it will be solved; it is like an operation that always can be postponed."

Up to five free copies of this study may be obtained on request to the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia.

BUSINESS OFFERED CIVIL RIGHTS ACT ADJUSTMENT HELP

A nation - wide program of education to help businessmen adjust to the "new era in industrial relations" brought about by enactment of the Civil Rights Act has been announced by the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Because Title VII of the new law places the federal government in the position of final arbiter of personnel practices, there is need of genuine appreciation of its implications at policy levels of management," W. P. Gullander, NAM President, said.

A series of seminars, to be held in principal cities, will be designed by the NAM to clarify the new provisions pertaining to hiring, firing, and promotion policies in industry.

SIGNIFICANT BEARING

"No piece of legislation since the Wagner Act of three decades ago will have a more significant bearing on industrial relations procedures than Title VII of the new act," Mr. Gullander said. "Much depends on how companies undertake to cope with the far - reaching ramifications of this law. The ability of American industry to adjust swiftly but wisely to new conditions will have an important effect on our nation's rate of progress."

Mr. Gullander said that the seminars will emphasize the positive techniques which management can use to adjust its procedures to the new law. He said the program will assist industry in understanding Title VII before its provisions become mandatory.

"It is fully apparent that our nation is entering a new era of industrial relations," Mr. Gullander added. "Our seminars will provide businessmen with practical suggestions as to how they can meet the variety of new situations that inevitably will develop when the law becomes effective."

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is asking the boss for a hike in pay.

This is the greatest business drama in America today, and it takes place daily in thousands of offices.

The pattern usually goes as follows:

Your name is Jack Crestfall, and you finally get tired of hearing your wife complain about how hard it is for her to make both ends meet.

"If you don't ask for a raise, I'm going to have to start taking in the neighbors' washing," she threatens.

When you tell your buddies at the office you are going to hit the boss up for more money, all work halts while they give advice. Some egg you on, others say you are foolhardy. They recall the case of a fellow in the stockroom who asked for a raise 20 years ago, got fired and wound up on the streets carrying a signboard for a pants-pressing firm.

The next step is to enlist the aid of the secretary of the boss. You butter her up by buying her flowers and candy with your lunch money.

Two months later she lets you know the stage is set.

"The boss is real pleased this morning because he had a good golf game yesterday, Jack," she says. "You'd better hit him up now — while his irons are still hot."

But the big man — old J.P. Grasper — seems in a mood of pure irony when you squirm across the thick rug up to his desk.

"Ah, Mr. Crestfall," he murmurs, "and may I inquire the purpose of your visit? I hope this is not another complaint about the lack of paper towels in the men's washroom."

"No, sir," you hesitate, and then the words blurt out, "I just got to have more money. My wife and kids —"

"You understand, of course, young man, that we are not exactly a welfare organization." This is the boss's favorite line.

"No, sir, but I have been working hard. Last month I put 20 new ideas in the office suggestion box."

"How many have we adopted?"

"None, sir."

A long, long silence.

Grasper, toying with his eyeglasses and staring dolefully out the window, then gives you management's set speech. Management itself likes to move young men ahead as fast as it can, but management has its problems, too. Management is on a raft adrift in perilous seas. Business is bad, the market is tightening, no one knows what lies ahead.

Just as your backbone melts into complete jelly and you start to volunteer to take a pay cut to keep the firm afloat, Grasper throws out a lifeline.

"Well, Mr. Crestfall," he says grudgingly, "I guess it wouldn't break us to give you a $5 increase, now, my boy" — he comes around and pats you firmly on the back — "Get in there and show us our confidence in you isn't misplaced!"

The highway commission of the State of Washington wanted to hire an information officer, but with the salary limited to $514 a month a suitable applicant could not be found. So the commission hired a part-time public - relations consultant at $800 a month -- the salary limit doesn't apply to part - time consultants. AP

Salesmen, artists and writers have an essential common need -- the need to walk a lonely road, to overcome natural inertia and get about the business of practicing their art. The writer I'm telling you about would do everything except write. He was always preparing to write. He took every course in writing offered. He spent his evening hours browsing through bookstores looking for books on writing. When he wasn't doing that, he sought the fellowship of would-be writers to discuss writing. All the writers' conferences knew him.

One evening, as he searched through the book stalls, he found a book that looked promising, and asked the bookstore owner for his opinion. The owner had been around books for a long time and he loved them. But he knew people, too.

"You know," he said with a twinkle of understanding in his eye, "there comes a time when you must face the fact that you aren't going to learn to write by reading. Writing is a performing art. It must be practiced."

That thought took some days to sink in. Writing is a performing art. By and by the bookstore knew him no more. He took the lonely road. He set about producing.

And through the years, whenever this writer found it tough to get about his business, he recalled the little man in the book store and the words: "Writing is a performing art." So is selling.

Commenting on President Johnson's State of the Union message, W. P. Gullander, president of the National Manufacturers Association, had this to say:

"President Johnson's State of the Union message was drafted so as to provide something for everyone. The message indicated clearly the desire of the President for the federal government to concern itself increasingly in areas that traditionally have been the province of the individual states and individual citizens.

"He paid tribute to the high level of economic development and prosperity of the nation, which has been achieved under circumstances which have not involved the federal government to the degree he now proposes.

CAREFUL STUDY URGED

"In the President's desire to promote greater economic growth and prosperity, he must examine carefully the possible consequences to his goals of a significant change in the source and location of the initiative and leadership that has created the most prosperous nation on earth.

"There is no evidence that these goals can be met by expanded federal direction of our lives and work. The real measure of the significance of the President's message will have to await the introduction of specific legislation aimed at accommodating his stated goal, and an indication of his success in obtaining Congressional action."

BIG BUSINESS NOW

Writing in Public Utilities Fortnightly, the head of the Rural Electrification Administration appeals for greater co-operation between investor-owned utilities and co-ops in order to develop "...effective rural electrification with maximum economy to the taxpayer." Most utility executives, he says, have always been hostile to the REA program.

The hostility--whether on the part of utility people or others--is not based on any opposition to bringing power to the farms. Private utilities pioneered rural electrification in many regions before REA was ever heard of. And private utilities deserve a goodly share of the credit for the fact that rural electrification is virtually complete in this country.

The utilities, on the other hand, oppose the efforts of co-ops to move into service areas which are nonrural, and which are served with complete adequacy by investor-owned, tax-paying companies. So is everyone who believes government should stick to the job of governing and not become involved in any commercial enterprise when private business can meet the need.

Beyond that, it would seem that if the development of rural electrification is to be achieved "...with maximum economy to the taxpayer" some fundamental changes will have to be made in the REA setup. As of now, the co-ops are directly and indirectly subsidized by the taxpayer. They are totally free of the federal income tax. And they borrow money from the Treasury at about half the rate the Treasury must pay to borrow long-term money it supplies them.

The REA program adds up to big business nowadays. It's time it was made to stand on its own feet, pay the going rate for borrowed money, and be on the same tax basis as comparable private enterprise.

BIRTH BOOM ALARMS AMA

If the American Medical Association has decided that population growth is a problem, then the situation may be more serious than some people have claimed.

Abandoning its traditional position of neutrality on birth control and disapproval of "propaganda" groups, the organization will begin sending out information on reproduction and control to doctors this year.

"The statistics on this astound me," says Dr. Raymond T. Holden, a Roman Catholic and chairman of the AMA Committee on Human Reproduction. "It is frightening to realize that if the present trend were allowed to continue unchecked, the world population would double in 40 years and in another 40 years double again."

The AMA emphasizes, however, that none of the information it will disseminate is intended for the general public.

LOCAL PUBLIC DEBT RISES BY 237 PERCENT

Local government debts have increased by 237 per cent since 1950, the Tax Foundation reports.

Fourteen years ago, the combined public debt of all communities stood at $18.8 billion. By the end of 1963 it has grown to $63.3 billion. In 1950, local government debt accounted for less than 7 per cent of all government debt; in 1963 the share had increased to 16 per cent.

Among the reasons for the post-World War II upsurge in local debt, the Foundation lists the growth of suburbia.

"As the population increased and housing developments grew, demands for services, for more roads, for sewers, for schools intensified," the Foundation pointed out. "And, while federal and state aid has helped in some instances, the laboring oar has been held by local government."

IMPLEMENTING CONSTRUCTIVE CULTURE

Constructive culture for the United States will become great enough to embrace phases and innumerable factors.

Its enthusiasts believe a child can learn faster at the age of three than at seven. Some believe two-thirds or more the brain-capacity of many mature people is never used.

Many people will devote a major part of their time to the study of constructive culture. In doing so, they should keep up their usual activities to maintain the common touch. Theorists who do not concern themselves with making a living become high impractical.

Maria Montessori, born Ancona Province, Italy, August 31, 1870, was an only child. Dr. Maria Montessori was the first woman in Italy to receive a medical degree. She was interested in retarded children conducting intensive studies of the work of Dr. Jene Itard and Dr. Eduard Seguin of France. In 1899 she directed a school in Rome for children considered hopelessly deficient.

In January 1906 she opened the first Montessori School, attracting international attention when retarded children learned easily to read and write. Her work continued throughout her lifetime ending in 1952.

Montessori Schools have been established in the United States and other countries. They instruct parents in the knowledge they should impart to their children at home. Juvenile deliquency would not result from this practice.

Early education toward a way of life where individuals will take pride in taking care of themselves can forstall bureaucratic processes. This embraces the immortal statement from President Kennedy's Inaugural Address, "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country." HLH.

If the Lords people had made half as much noise about teaching Christ in our schools as the Negroes have made about Civil Rights we would still be a Christian nation.

Officially we are not, as things stand at present, it's plain to see that too many of our office-holders and lawmakers care more for the votes than they do about the welfare of our nation, power, prestige, and the fast buck is their God.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson is in the Caribbean. The column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — The FBI has picked up disquieting reports that the Rev. Martin Luther King, like the Negro nationalist Malcolm X, has been marked for murder.

The militant Malcolm apparently was gunned down by Negro extremists. The threats against Dr. King have come from White extremists.

As long ago as last July, the FBI learned that Ku Klux Klan terrorists tried to waylay Dr. King when he came to Monroe, La., on a civil rights mission. The last minute, the plot fell through.

The latests reports claim that Klansmen are now trying to hire an ex-convict for $2,000 to do the dirty work for them.

It is one of the ironies of the civil rights struggle that the Ku Klux Klan and Black Muslims ape one another at opposite ends of the spectrum.

Both seek to segregate the white and black races. Both quote scriptures to justify their hate doctrines. Both use goon squads to carry out acts of terror and violence.

Only elite Klansmen and Muslims, sworn to secrecy, are admitted to the strong - arm squads. In both cases, they hold separate meetings under tight military security.

—"HOLY TERRORS"—

Both Klan and Muslim goon squads specialize in dogpatch-style attacks on defenseless victims. The Klansmen like to strip their victims, beat and flog them unmercifully, then leave them in a lonely wooded area to find their own way home. The Muslims specialize in "stomping" victims after they're down.

Both Klan and Muslim terrorists are disciplined to kill. The Muslims are known to have made earlier attempts on the life of Malcolm X before a spattering of bullets finally ripped into him Sunday at a Harlem rally.

Klansmen have also been implicated in a number of civil rights murders. Not long ago, a terror squad in Southern Mississippi was summoned to a secret meeting by a message, containing only the picture of a hooded rider upon a horse and a notation of the time and place.

—$1,200 MURDER FEE—

At this super-secret tryst, a hooded leader announced conspiratorially that the Klan was sponsoring an ex-convict at $1,200 "to do a job" that would make the slaying of civil rights leader Medgar Evers "look sick."

Perhaps this is the same $2,000 plot on Dr. King's life that the FBI had learned about earlier.

Both Klansmen and Muslims have a penchant for special robes and rituals. Leaders of both organizations make a big profit selling robes to the membership.

Guard: "Ayak." (Are you a Klansman?)

Guard: "Aog." (America on guard.)

Similarly, a Muslim meeting might open like this:

Minister: "As - salaam - alaikum." (Peace be unto you.)

Congregation: "Wa-alaikum-salaam." (And unto you peace also.)

Perhaps the next logical step would be a merger of the Klan and the Muslims.

—LBJ'S FAVORITE JOKE—

The subtle wit of the New Frontier has been replaced by the earthy humor of the Great Society. The Kennedy crowd liked their gags wry and dry, but the Johnson gang prefers straight corn.

Not that President Johnson is incapable of sly humor. Once he was called upon to introduce Senate Dean Carl Hayden at a banquet in Arizona, a state which Hayden has represented in Congress since it was admitted to the union in 1912.

"I don't believe," commented Johnson dryly, "that Adam had to be formally introduced to Eve."

But when the President was asked recently for his favorite joke, he came up with a typical Texas tale. It had to do with a predecessor, Sen. Joseph Weldon Bailey, who was famed for his soapbox oratory.

As the President tells it, a cowpoke straggled back to the ranch with glazed eyes after listening to Bailey declaim the whole day long. The entranced cowhand bore witness that it was the most magnificent speech he had ever heard.

"What," demanded the foreman, "did Senator Bailey have to say that took all day?"

"I don't rightly know," reflected the cowpoke. "But he sure did recommend himself highly."

Note: If visitors should hear a mirthful noise at the White House, like the happy bawl of a longhorn steer, it probably is the President in full laughter. For he has brought back the belly laugh to the White House. He disdains the wry smile, the amused look. When he hears a good joke, he likes to enjoy it with all his heart and diaphragm.

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

Shouting "the honeymoon is over" the truculent Teamsters' chief has declared political war on Congress; urged that it be deluged with one million letters; demanded a four-day work-week of 32 hours; and called for an intense white collar drive by his union's 5,000 officials. Mr. Hoffa has even approved contributions to a fund for the restoration of the home of the late legendary Socialist leader, Eugene Victor Debs. The house in Terre Haute, Ind., is being turned into a Socialist Shrine.

Editorials under his signature in the Teamster's union magazine constantly bristle with class slogans.

As he whirls leftward, he has become the positive darling of such hypermilitant politicalized unions as Harry Bridges West Coast longshoremen. They call him their martyr. They run regular civil liberties rallies in his defense.

He is in regular communication with these unionists and there is persistent talk of launching a new labor federation of more than two million workers to challenge the AFL-CIO.

Let no one think this could not happen shortly. Hoffa constantly is testing the strength of the older federation with a series of raids on AFL-CIO jurisdiction.

Characteristic of his neo-militancy is an editorial in the most recent edition of the "Teamster." Despite reports of lowering joblessness, the editorial said: ". . .The chronically unemployed are still standing idle in the shadow of the 40-hour work-week. . ." The answer, he adds, is a "four-day work-week amounting to 32 hours of toil."

To show how far Mr. Hoffa has moved from his conservative position, one observer recalls that in June, 1963, the Teamsters' president described the 13-week vacation plan in the steel industry as "stupid."

This was a week after the United Steelworkers and the major steel corporations had agreed to 13 weeks of paid vacation every five years for employes with the longest service records.

"They talk about creating 20,000 to 25,000 jobs in the steel industry because of the long vacations," Hoffa sneered at that time. "Want to know what those guys will do on a 13-week vacation? They'll take part-time jobs. They'll create more unemployment."

Today, Mr. Hoffa seriously contemplates a fight for the four-day work-week for the 1,750,000 teamsters. If he won such contracts for even half that number on over-the-road runs and intra-city carting, he would affect the entire economy of the nation. But his aggressive friends are urging this upon him.

These militants cheer him when he scoffs at the rest of the union movement —as he did the other day in his nationally distributed magazine.

"For too long, timidity has marked the legislative approach of the leaders of organized labor," he said of the men now meeting in the mid-winter session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council in Bal Harbour, Fla., "And apathy has marked the attitude of the rank and file of labor.

"I urge each and every one of our officers and members to wake up to legislative fact. I urge each and every one of you to write your Congressmen and Senators, to the chairmen of the House and Senate Labor committees, demanding that they act and act now. . ."

All this worries some observers who have been disturbed by scores of recent rank and file revolts against the traditional labor leaders. Observers interpret Mr. Hoffa's words as far more than rousing rhetoric.

They see it stirring rank and file demands for an ever shortening work-week and work-year.

These observers also see the failure of labor leaders to deliver such shorter work weeks resulting in strike action across the land. Thousands of pacts, covering millons of workers expire this year.

Mr. Hoffa's vigorous militancy could be costly to the economy.

The Saint Francis Xavier Catholic Church was the scene Saturday, February 13, of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Faye Littleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Littleton, and Anthony Joseph Heckemeyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer.

Twin baskets of white mums, leaf fern, and lighted tapers appointed the altar. The traditional white bridal carpet covered the aisle.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Monsignor McGrane at 11 a.m. in the presence of many relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. E. Childress, organist, played "The Wedding March" and accompanied Mrs. Jack Mitchell, soloist, as she sang "Ava Marie" and "Blessed Mother On This Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a gown made of angel skin taffeta peau de soie. The new high rise waist line featured elbow length sleeves, and a Bateau neckline that dipped low in back. Each was outlined with tiny French cording. The bodice was lavishly trimmed with re-embroidered imported Alencon lace, which was highlighted with spirals of simulated pearls. The same lace motifs trellised down the front of the pencil slim floor-length skirt. The redingolt skirt swept to a court chapel train with the lace motifs repeated again at the bottom of the train and again at the back waist.

Her headpiece was a crown of pearls fashioned into petals and attached to this was a veil of imported English illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with white satin ribbon tied in "lovers" knots. In her attire she carried out the traditional something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, sister of the groom, served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Penny Heckemeyer, sister of the groom; Miss Jane Ella Yount; Miss Suzanne Bowing; Miss Suzanne Gilmore, and Mrs. Allen Blanton, all of Sikeston and close friends of the bride.

The attendants were identically dressed in sleeveless dresses of shocking pink made from slipper satin. The dresses featured dart-fitted bodices and three - gore, side gathered floor-length skirts with matching belts and bows. Their attire was topped with back-buttoned jackets of lace with Bateau necklines and set-in sleeves. Their headdresses were pink slipper satin with a large satin cabbage rose to one side and a veil of tulle net; each carried a cascade bouquet of white spider mums and pink roses. They also wore white kid gloves, a gift from the bride.

John Buzan of Springfield, Missouri, served as his friend's bestman. Groomsmen were Bill Lewis, Charles David Springs, Allen Blanton, John Sides, all of Sikeston, and Jimmy Largent of Lafayette, La. Ushers were David Bailey, Sonny Cowell, and John Harper. Masters Rodney and Craig Littleton, nephews of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin pillow of lace. Men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. William Littleton, mother of the bride, wore a dress of mint green silk and matching jacket; she highlighted her outfit with matching accessories. Mrs. Heckemeyer chose for her son's wedding a beige silk dress with matching jacket and beige accessories and multi-colored hat. Both mothers wore an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Immediate following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Sikeston Country Club with Mrs. Rebecca Sharp of New Madrid in charge. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth overlaid with white net. The net was gathered at each corner and caught with white satin bows.

A six tiered wedding cake tipped with spun sugar wedding bells and surrounded by flowers and greenery centered the serving table. At each end of the table punch was served from silver punch bowls. Silver candelabra holding tall white glowing tapers were placed at each end of the table. Decorated mints and nuts were served from silver compotes.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Billy Littleton, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Wanda Raper, aunt of the bride; Miss Linda Werneck and Mrs. Leo Davis.

The bride was formerly society editor of the Daily Standard and the groom is a business man and state representative of Scott County.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter about Myrtle, who couldn't recognize the apple pie in the cafeteria, it stirred up memories that had been tucked in the back of my mind for 25 years.

In the orphanage where I grew up we used to say, "You can tell when it's apple pie because it tastes like glue. The peach pie tastes like soap."

To this day I can't stand either one. -- J. G.

Dear J. G.: I love pie -- any kind -- and I have made it my business to learn where to get the best.

The finest cherry pies in the world are baked in Traverse City, Mich. Lexington, Ky., has the best pecan pie; Billings, Mont., specializes in banana cream. In Rochester, N. Y., I was served the most delicious lemon pie I ever ate. The yummiest chocolate pies are put together right here in Chicago. Ditto, coconut cream.

Yes, I love pie, but I can't make a decent pie to save my life. My crusts are positively bullet proof. If any of you gals have a sure-fire pie-crust recipe please send it on.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who is worried sick about my 19-year-old brother.

Chuck started to date this girl who said she was 17. When he found out she was only 15 he was shocked, but he kept going with her. The girl's parents are divorced and her mother works nights so nobody is home to check on her. She can (and does) go out every night of the week, and she can entertain Chuck as late as she wants.

My brother has a good job and lives at home. He pays Mom and Dad $25 a week for room and board and feels they have no right to tell him what time to be in or who to take out.

I'm worried sick that this girl will hook Chuck, if you know what I mean. He resents it when anyone tries to tell him anything, especially his kid sister, so I am hoping you will print my letter. Chuck reads your column every day and he says you are with it.--LITTLE SIS

Dear Sis: Nobody can hook your brother, but he could hook himself. I don't think Chuck is with it -- or he would have stopped seeing the girl when he learned her age. When I was a teen-ager they called 15-year-olds "San Quentin quail."

Let's hope Chuck wakes up and smells the coffee before the pot boils over.

Dear Ann Landers: I have filed suit for divorce but it will be several months before I am legally free. My mother takes care of my four-year-old son while I work. We all live together and she is on my back constantly about my "morals". I don't know how much more I can take before I blow my stack.

Mother says I have no right to go with men until my divorce comes through. She keeps telling me my husband could make trouble and possibly take the boy away.

She forgets that a girl who has been married is second- hand merchandise. The only way I can make a new life is by going out when I have the chance. These same men may not be willing to wait until everything is legal. A girl who is damaged property can't be fussy. Besides I'm only 22-- too young to sit around the house and rot.

Please help me get my mother off my back. -- RITA

Dear Rita: Your mother is right and I hope you will listen to her. I hope, too, that you will stop thinking of yourself as damaged property and second-hand merchandise. Divorce is a tragedy, not a crime. Unless you have a decent opinion of yourself-- and behave as if you do-- nobody else will.

Mrs. Anthony Joseph Heckemeyer

The Saint Francis Xavier Catholic Church was the scene Saturday, February 13, of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Faye Littleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Littleton, and Anthony Joseph Heckemeyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer.

Twin baskets of white mums, leaf fern, and lighted tapers appointed the altar. The traditional white bridal carpet covered the aisle.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Monsignor McGrane at 11 a.m. in the presence of many relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. E. Childress, organist, played "The Wedding March" and accompanied Mrs. Jack Mitchell, soloist, as she sang "Ava Marie" and "Blessed Mother On This Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a gown made of angel skin taffeta peau de soie. The new high rise waist line featured elbow length sleeves, and a Bateau neckline that dipped low in back. Each was outlined with tiny French cording. The bodice was lavishly trimmed with re-embroidered imported Alencon lace, which was highlighted with spirals of simulated pearls. The same lace motifs trellised down the front of the pencil slim floor-length skirt. The redingolt skirt swept to a court chapel train with the lace motifs repeated again at the bottom of the train and again at the back waist.

Her headpiece was a crown of pearls fashioned into petals and attached to this was a veil of imported English illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with white satin ribbon tied in "lovers" knots. In her attire she carried out the traditional something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Vicky Heckemeyer, sister of the groom, served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Penny Heckemeyer, sister of the groom; Miss Jane Ella Yount; Miss Suzanne Bowing; Miss Suzanne Gilmore, and Mrs. Allen Blanton, all of Sikeston and close friends of the bride.

The attendants were identically dressed in sleeveless dresses of shocking pink made from slipper satin. The dresses featured dart-fitted bodices and three - gore, side gathered floor-length skirts with matching belts and bows. Their attire was topped with back-buttoned jackets of lace with Bateau necklines and set-in sleeves. Their headdresses were pink slipper satin with a large satin cabbage rose to one side and a veil of tulle net; each carried a cascade bouquet of white spider mums and pink roses. They also wore white kid gloves, a gift from the bride.

John Buzan of Springfield, Missouri, served as his friend's bestman. Groomsmen were Bill Lewis, Charles David Springs, Allen Blanton, John Sides, all of Sikeston, and Jimmy Largent of Lafayette, La. Ushers were David Bailey, Sonny Cowell, and John Harper. Masters Rodney and Craig Littleton, nephews of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin pillow of lace. Men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. William Littleton, mother of the bride, wore a dress of mint green silk and matching jacket; she highlighted her outfit with matching accessories. Mrs. Heckemeyer chose for her son's wedding a beige silk dress with matching jacket and beige accessories and multi-colored hat. Both mothers wore an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

Immediate following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Sikeston Country Club with Mrs. Rebecca Sharp of New Madrid in charge. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth overlaid with white net. The net was gathered at each corner and caught with white satin bows.

A six tiered wedding cake tipped with spun sugar wedding bells and surrounded by flowers and greenery centered the serving table. At each end of the table punch was served from silver punch bowls. Silver candelabra holding tall white glowing tapers were placed at each end of the table. Decorated mints and nuts were served from silver compotes.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Billy Littleton, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Wanda Raper, aunt of the bride; Miss Linda Werneck and Mrs. Leo Davis.

The bride was formerly society editor of the Daily Standard and the groom is a business man and state representative of Scott County.

Bloomfield Rolls Past Bernie Puxico Guns Through Qulin

If you don't think the Bloomfield Wildcats have more than just hope of going to the State Tournament, then think again. For again they showed that they have definite intentions of going all the way as they downed the Bernie Mules 97-34, last night in the quarter rounds of their regional. In the other game played the Puxico Indians bulled their way through Qulin to win easily 91-57. The game between Doniphan and Naylor was postponed until tonight at 5:30 due to weather conditions.

Bloomfield may not have everything, but they do have Mike Wise. He was up, and what seemed like over every backboard in the gymnasium, to grab down 18 of Bloomfield's rebounds for the night. Thirteen of his rebounds came on the offensive end of the court. Also he got 17 points on the offensive end of the court to lead the Wildcats in scoring.

This was Bloomfield's twentieth consecutive win of the season. Their last defeat was dealt by the Memphis Kingsbury Falcons way back on Dec. 19, 1964. In Missouri competition they have clipped off 30 consecutive wins for the year against no defeats.

The Wildcats again showed that they are immovable with their zone press, off which they stole the ball 40 times.

In the first period they fell out to lead 25-4 and they brought out their reserves the second frame, who managed to outscore the Mules 19-11 to come in leading at the half 44-15. As second half play begin, so did Ron White. He hit five consecutive 25 foot field goals to begin third period play. The Wildcats as a team hit the first nine out of ten from the field to begin the second half. When third period play ended the Wildcats were leading 76-21. From the field the Wildcats shot 89 field goals and connected on 40 of them for 44.9%. Bernie shot 26.3 from the field.

Other Wildcats who hit in the double figures were Ron Underwood with 16, Ron White with 15, Ron McAdoo with 10, and Danny Gaines with 10.

Reinbott with 10 points was the only Mule to reach the double figure mark. The Mules as a team could manage only 10 field goals for the game.

PULLING EM DOWN -- Mike Wise of the Bloomfield Wildcats gathered in 18 rebounds in their game last night against the Bernie Mules. He also led the Wildcats with 17 big points. One thing that is so nice is that Mike is just a junior and should be the star of the hardwoods in Southeast Missouri next season.

Missouri Is Choice To Repeat

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri is a solid choice to repeat as team champion with its middle distance star, Robin Lingle, scoring an unprecedented second straight mile — 1,000 double in the 37th Big Eight indoor track championships Friday and Saturday nights.

Missouri finished with 44 points in the Associated Press form chart prediction, Nebraska 38, Oklahoma State 35, Kansas 31, Colorado 21, Oklahoma 15, Iowa State 13 and Kansas State 13.

The Tigers seem to have too much depth and balance. They are expected to score in all but two of the 14 events. Nebraska lacks strength in the 1,000, mile and two-mile, but the Huskers might squeeze in if they score heavily in the short races and pull a surprise or two in the field events.

Oklahoma State is strong in seven events, but the Cowboys will be bucking Missouri head-to-head in all but one and OSU will be blanked in the other seven events. Kansas figures to score in 10 events, but needs more gold medal talent.

Ten meet records will be in danger. Five meet records have been surpassed and two equalled already this season by the talented field.

Lingle turned the first mile—1,000 double in league history last year. He holds the 1,000 record and it's likely OSU's Tom Ruden will pass up the 1,000 to run the 880 which comes 10 minutes later.

Von Ruden and Harold Hadley of Kansas might push Lingle past the mile record of 4:06.5 by Wes Santee of Kansas in 1954. Lingle already owns the two fastest indoor miles in league history — 4:03.2 and 4:03.6 last year.

Greene ran a 6-flat in pushing Bob Hayes to his world record 5.9 in the 60-yard dash last year at New York. The meet record is 6.1. Headley, the Big Eight outdoor champ in the 100, was an Olympic team member. Charlie Brown, Missouri's football halfback, will push both of them.

Colorado's Jim Miller, king of Big Eight hurdlers, has equalled the meet record of 6.7 in the lows and is co-holder of the 7.2 record in the highs.

The 440 field could be best in league history. Steve Carson of Iowa State has a 48.4, best indoor mark in league annals, and Bill Calhoun of Oklahoma has equalled the meet mark of 48.6. Nebraska's Dave Crook, consistent around 49 seconds this winter, could win it. Crook was the outdoor champ at 47 flat.

Von Ruden's season best of 1:51.8 in the 880 is under Santee's 12-year-old record of 1:52.5. His teammate, Dave Perry, has a 1:10.4 in the 600, best in Big Eight history. Oklahoma State has reached 3:16.4 in the mile relay and the meet mark is 3:18.

Gene Crews of Missouri, with a 59-1¼ is only eight inches off the meet shot put record set in 1956 by Bill Nieder of Kansas, later an Olympic champion at Rome. The talented high jump field includes the outdoor champ OSU's Russ Laverty. Jim Farrell of Oklahoma has a career best of 15-9½ in the pole vault. Greene hopes for a surprise in the broad jump against two 24-footers, KU's Larry Rheams and Bob Hines, K-State.

Southeast State To Have Indoor Meet At Memphis

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. -- Southeast Missouri State College's track and squad will enter the Memphis State J. C. Indoor Relays, being held Friday and Saturday at Memphis, Tenn. A large number of schools from southern states are expected to participate in the meet.

The meet will be run in three divisions; high school, college and university. College and university preliminaries are slated for Saturday afternoon, with finals to be held in the evening.

SEMO Coach Marvin Rosengarten said that he would enter 18 men in 11 events; 60-yard dash; Dennis Harke and Mike Jordan; 60-yard low hurdles; Jerry Viverett; 60-yard high hurdles; Sam Richards; Mile; Clude Miner and Larry Schloss; 880; Jim Lay; Long Jump; Jordan and Harke; High Jump; Bob Varel and Larry Hollrah; Pole Vault; Tom Taylor; Shot Put; Norman Dockins; Two - mile Relay; Buford Austin, Jim Stoverink, Bill Becker and Len Corso; and Mile Relay; Jordan, Harke, Richards and Darrell Lewis.

Oran Rolls On Regional To Continue Winning Ways

SCOTT CITY -- The Oran Eagles, seeded first, gunned their way through the Scott City Rams 90-75. Patton, fourth seeded, pulled out to win from Delta 92-74.

Tom Anderson was the big gun for Oran with 27 points. Donnie Metz followed pursuit with 19, Jones, 16, and Robert Johnson 14. Brandt was the only man to reach the twenty mark for Scott City with 21 tallies.

The Eagles made their winning surge in the second period to outscore Scott City 30-14 to come in leading at the half 47-28.

In the second game Patton had three big scorers. Mayfield led all of them with 32 points followed by Hartle with 28 and Davis with 18.

Ron Smith again paced Delta, this time with 25 big points. He has been averaging 22 points per game over the season and was on the Scott-Mississippi All-Conference Team.

Howardsville And South Pemiscot Post Wins

PORTAGEVILLE -- The first seeded Howardsville Hawks almost got unseeded last night by the New Madrid Indians 58-56. New Madrid was down by 14 points going into the fourth period. Portageville had their season ended with a 85-61 loss to South Pemiscot.

Howardsville pulled out to a small lead in the first period 14-12. New Madrid still proved tough the second frame and was down at the half 27-26. The Hawks opened up in the third period to zip out to lead 50-36, but the Indians were a long way from being out of the ballgame. They scored 20 points while allowing Howardsville 8 in the last frame, just two short of going into an overtime period.

Although Henri Richard knew he wouldn't be able to observe his birthday this month, he still has managed to get in quite a lot of celebrating.

The Montreal center, who will but yet won't be 29 in a few days, scored three goals and added two assists Wednesday night in the Canadiens' 6-1 triumph over New York.

Chicago edged Detroit 3- and Boston defeated Toronto 3-1 in other National Hockey League games.

Richard's problem is that he was born Feb. 29, 1936. Thus he has observed only seven birthdays instead of 28. But he was more than a mere youngster to the Rangers.

His goal midway through the first period tied the game 1-1. He fired across two more goals - his 19th and 20th of the season - in the second period, putting the contest beyond New York's reach.

Bloomfield Rolls Past Bernie Puxico Guns Through Qulin

If you don't think the Bloomfield Wildcats have more than just hope of going to the State Tournament, then think again. For again they showed that they have definite intentions of going all the way as they downed the Bernie Mules 97-34, last night in the quarter rounds of their regional. In the other game played the Puxico Indians bulled their way through Qulin to win easily 91-57. The game between Doniphan and Naylor was postponed until tonight at 5:30 due to weather conditions.

Bloomfield may not have everything, but they do have Mike Wise. He was up, and what seemed like over every backboard in the gymnasium, to grab down 18 of Bloomfield's rebounds for the night. Thirteen of his rebounds came on the offensive end of the court. Also he got 17 points on the offensive end of the court to lead the Wildcats in scoring.

This was Bloomfield's twentieth consecutive win of the season. Their last defeat was dealt by the Memphis Kingsbury Falcons way back on Dec. 19, 1964. In Missouri competition they have clipped off 30 consecutive wins for the year against no defeats.

The Wildcats again showed that they are immovable with their zone press, off which they stole the ball 40 times.

In the first period they fell out to lead 25-4 and they brought out their reserves the second frame, who managed to outscore the Mules 19-11 to come in leading at the half 44-15. As second half play begin, so did Ron White. He hit five consecutive 25 foot field goals to begin third period play. The Wildcats as a team hit the first nine out of ten from the field to begin the second half. When third period play ended the Wildcats were leading 76-21. Other Wildcats who hit in the double figures were Ron Underwood with 16, Ron White with 15, Ron McAdoo with 10, and Danny Gaines with 10.

Although Henri Richard knew he wouldn't be able to observe his birthday this month, he still has managed to get in quite a lot of celebrating.

The Montreal center, who will but yet won't be 29 in a few days, scored three goals and added two assists Wednesday night in the Canadiens' 6-1 triumph over New York.

Chicago edged Detroit 3- and Boston defeated Toronto 3-1 in other National Hockey League games.

Richard's problem is that he was born Feb. 29, 1936. Thus he has observed only seven birthdays instead of 28. But he was more than a mere youngster to the Rangers.

His goal midway through the first period tied the game 1-1. He fired across two more goals - his 19th and 20th of the season - in the second period, putting the contest beyond New York's reach.

SCOTT CITY -- The Oran Eagles, seeded first, gunned their way through the Scott City Rams 90-75. Patton, fourth seeded, pulled out to win from Delta 92-74.

Tom Anderson was the big gun for Oran with 27 points. Donnie Metz followed pursuit with 19, Jones, 16, and Robert Johnson 14. Brandt was the only man to reach the twenty mark for Scott City with 21 tallies.

The Eagles made their winning surge in the second period to outscore Scott City 30-14 to come in leading at the half 47-28.

In the second game Patton had three big scorers. Mayfield led all of them with 32 points followed by Hartle with 28 and Davis with 18.

Ron Smith again paced Delta, this time with 25 big points. He has been averaging 22 points per game over the season and was on the Scott-Mississippi All-Conference Team.

New London, Mo., Courthouse Recalls Dramatic Chapter of State History

Classic Greek Architecture of Structure at County Seat Often is Photographed--County of Diversified Terrain and Industry Was Named for Daniel Ralls, Whose Vote Sent Thomas Hart Benton to U. S. Senate.

By Chester A. Bradley
In the Kansas City Star

One of the most photographed buildings in Missouri is the Ralls County courthouse at New London. It is one of the few remaining examples of pure Greek architecture in the Middle West, and both professional and amateur cameramen have found it a most photogenic model.

But there is more than meets the eye in this old courthouse, more than beauty alone. It is a symbol dear to the hearts of the natives in one of the most interesting areas of Missouri—the Mark Twain country along the Missouri river near Hannibal. Ralls County is even more. It represents Missouri since the days of the Spanish and French explorers and the English who came later.

The federal government made a survey of the area in 1818, and one member of the party, an English engineer, founded the village of New London in 1819, two years before Missouri became a state. Not long afterwards it became the county seat as it is today.

Ralls County came into being officially as the direct result of one of Missouri's most dramatic political incidents. The first General Assembly of Missouri was only fourteen days old when it undertook the election of Missouri's first United States senators on October 2, 1820. David Barton was virtually assured of election and he helped obtain votes for Thomas Hart Benton, one of six candidates. Barton received 34 of the 52 votes.

TOUGH GOING FOR BENTON

Benton had tough going. He was a strong figure, but nevertheless unpopular with many Missourians, partly because he had killed Charles Lucas, the son of one of the six candidates, in a duel. On the day before the election, Benton's friends campaigned vigorously against great odds. It seemed virtually impossible to get twenty-seven votes for Benton, the smallest number that would give him a bare majority and election.

The popular Barton was asked to state his choice, that strategy being expected to tip the scales. But Benton still needed two votes. French friends of Marie Philip Leduc of St. Louis talked to him all night, and, although Leduc is said to have hated Benton, he finally pleged his vote for him. One vote was still needed.

Daniel Ralls, who lived near New London, then a representative of Pike County, was desperately ill and had been unable to attend assembly sessions. But he favored Barton and Benton and, hearing of the circumstances, insisted that he be taken to the session where votes were cast orally. Four Negro men carried Ralls to the meeting. A newspaper account at the time says he told them in emphatic tones, "If I should faint in the house, endeavor to recover me there, and by no means take me out before I have given my vote."

Benton was nominated by Jesse B. Boone, a son of Daniel Boone. Ralls cast his vote, along with Leduc, and Benton won with twenty-seven votes, the minimum required.

COUNTY NAMED FOR RALLS

It was the last official act of Ralls. He never recovered from his illness or attended another assembly session. He died on October 30, 1820, at Benton's home in St. Louis. On November 16, 1820, writes Floyd C. Shoemaker in his "Missouri Day by Day," a bill was approved creating the County of Ralls from the County of Pike in honor of Daniel Ralls.

Benton went to Washington and became the first 30-year senator in American history, a powerful figure who served with distinction along with such contemporaries as Calhoun, Clay and Webster. He was in the forefront in all issues of his times. At least nine counties in the United States are named for him.

The new Ralls County extended to the Iowa line and New London became the virtual capital of Northeast Missouri. Eventually, nine other counties and parts of four others were formed from the original Ralls, which assumed its present boundaries in 1836.

The first courthouse, a log building erected in 1822, still stands on its original site as a part of a remodeled dwelling. A brick structure, built in 1835, served the county for twenty-three years and was torn down to make way for the present building in 1858. Two wings, conforming to the original architecture, were added in 1936.

OLD WALLS STILL UNTARNISHED

The building is of native stone, quarried near the site and fitted and cut by hand. The timeless architecture and age of the building are enhanced in beauty by the fact that it remains untarnished. Being in a rural area, free of industrial smoke, the old walls have retained their youthful color.

The facade of four Tuscan columns supporting a pediment and surmounted by an octagonal cupola, was reproduced on the Missouri buildings at both the New York and San Francisco world fairs in 1939, and has been used in other presentations of Missouri scenes. Large fireplaces, attractive stairways, and hand-hewn woodwork are interesting interior features.

Ralls County also presents a microcosm of the great diversification for which Missouri is known, as well as much of its history. It is said to have the greatest variety of soils in the state. One may see everything from flattest prairie to the steepest hill land and the variety of agriculture that goes with it. Many creeks water the area besides the storied Salt river and the even more famous Mississippi, which forms one of its boundaries.

A big federal lock and dam are at Saverton; also a large camp producing maple syrup in the old-fashioned way. The world's largest cement plant is at Ilasco, where the finished product from limestone bluffs is shipped out on the river. Much of the cement used in the Panama canal came from Ilasco.

MARK TWAIN RELICS

The Mark Twain Research foundation has offices in Perry where many personal belongings of the Clemens family will be shown on request. A collection of Mark Twain first editions is on display in the Perry State bank and files of the foundation are open to those engaged in serious research. Perry is near the Mark Twain State park and the town of Florida, where the great author was born.

Responding to the interest of visitors and home pride as well, the Ralls County court, co-operating with civic groups, recently published a leaflet on the county's "historic past and prosperous present." It outlines some of the county's interesting places and scenes.

For instance, china of the type popular in grandmother's day, is handpainted and fired to order in Center and Perry. Center was so named because it was the center of the original county. Linens in tapestry or any pattern are hand-loomed in New London. Fine show and parade harness also is made by hand in the same town. Added to this diversity of products and a solid agricultural economy, the county also produces tarpaulins, bags, dairy supplies, potato chips and fish bait, besides its great output of cement.

There are several historic buildings including old Van Rensselaer academy, and the Brush Creek, St. Paul and St. Joseph's Catholic churches, noted for their aging charm.

Spalding Springs, first found by the Spanish and developed later by the French who shipped salt to St. Louis, remains as one of the pleasure spots of the county today. Indian pictures may be seen on the Salt river bluffs at Cincinnati, a historic point in the county. The county is primarily an agricultural area as it has been since the first English settlers started growing crops as early as 1800. There are many scenic views along good highways, in addition to the historic and attractive courthouse.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER IV
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The Department of Education is specifically provided for in the state constitution. No departmental head is provided for in the constitution, but the organizational structure of the Division of Public Schools, which is made a part of the department, is set out in considerable detail. Other units of the state government have been assigned to the Department of Education by statute or by executive order (Chap. 160, RSMo 1959).

During the decade 1955-1965 changes in the organization of two agencies were made. The State Soil Districts Commission was reorganized and renamed the State Soil and Water Districts Commission. The State Library Advisory Board was replaced by the State Library Commission.

Recognizing the ever-increasing importance of higher education to the State of Missouri and its citizens, the General Assembly in 1963, following the recommendation of the 1955 State Reorganization Commission, created the Commission on Higher Education. The Commission consists of ten members appointed by the Governor and an Advisory Council to the Commission appointed by the Commission.

The chief functions of the Commission include:

1. Designing a coordinated plan for higher education in Missouri.
2. Reviewing any proposed changes or additions in the facilities of the state-supported institutions of higher education.
3. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher education development, consolidation, or elimination of policies, programs or facilities when in the best interests of the state educational system.
4. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher learning formulas to be used in developing plans for operation and development, and for requests for appropriations from the General Assembly.

Recommendations made by the 1955 State Reorganization Commission concerning the fiscal year of the Division of Public Schools and the State Library were implemented generally along the lines suggested by the Commission. No changes were recommended in 1955 for the State Anatomical Board, the State Historical Society, the Public School Retirement System, or the Soil Districts Commission (in 1965, the Soil and Water Districts Commission), and no recommendations are made here concerning these agencies.

TRANSFER OF STATE MUSEUM

26. Recommendation:

That the State Museum be transferred from the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to the Department of Education, under a curator to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and that there be created an Advisory Board for the State Museum.

The primary function of the State Museum is most directly related to the education of the citizens of the state of Missouri. The evidence made available to the Commission suggests that this primary function is removed from the mainstream of the activities of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, and that the Museum's main contribution to the activities of the division was primarily in the construction of exhibits. Autonomous status for the Museum in the Department of Education will direct the Museum's primary activities towards its educational tasks, while permitting the Museum to respond, as its circumstances allow, to requests for assistance from other state agencies and offices.

Existence of an Advisory Board will broaden the opportunities the Museum has for securing valuable materials and collections, and will provide a source of informed and dedicated advice and support for the curator on broad and continuing matters of Museum policy, while permitting administrative responsibility to be located definitely in the curator.

The administrative structure of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development will also be simplified, and its functional responsibilities more obviously integrated along developmental lines.

SURVEY OF EXPERIMENT STATIONS

27. Recommendation:

That an evaluation of the research products of the Poultry and Fruit Experiment Stations be undertaken by teams of professional research experts in each field from neighboring agricultural states before any further action is recommended.

The 1955 Commission recommended that the stations be transferred to the University of Missouri, and that they be operated at their present locations as units of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the College of Agriculture. More evidence as to their present and potential future research productivity is needed before it can validly be asserted that the stations should be continued in operation. Inasmuch as the University of Missouri stands to be affected by the results of such a research survey, it is deemed to be both ethically correct and scientifically objective that the research evaluation of the stations not be made by University of Missouri personnel. Utilization of neutral out-of-state experts will be in the best interests of both the stations and the University personnel, and obviate the possibility of a conflict of interest.

Chevy II 100 2-Door Sedan

Chevy II

With aluminized exhausts that discourage corrosion . . . Delcotron generators that encourage longer battery life . . . brakes that adjust themselves . . . rocker panels that flush themselves free of dirt and salt. Tight? They're downright miserly!

They're roomy. The sedan seats six. The wagon gives you a full nine feet from the back of the front seat to the tip of the lowered tailgate.

They're rugged. The unitized body is by Fisher. Up front, there's an independent suspension system and in the rear, Mono-Plate (you'll never hear a squeak) springs.

You can get an economical 4-cylinder engine in the sedan or in both cars, a 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six. It's fast to warm up, idles almost silently and is very, very easy on gas.

For even more power, there's a special Six you can order: the 230-cubic-inch Turbo-Thrift job.

As we said earlier, these are our lowest priced cars. But you'll never know just how economical they are until you own one.

One of the most photographed buildings in Missouri is the Ralls County courthouse at New London. It is one of the few remaining examples of pure Greek architecture in the Middle West, and both professional and amateur cameramen have found it a most photogenic model.

But there is more than meets the eye in this old courthouse, more than beauty alone. It is a symbol dear to the hearts of the natives in one of the most interesting areas of Missouri—the Mark Twain country along the Missouri river near Hannibal. Ralls County is even more. It represents Missouri since the days of the Spanish and French explorers and the English who came later.

The federal government made a survey of the area in 1818, and one member of the party, an English engineer, founded the village of New London in 1819, two years before Missouri became a state. Not long afterwards it became the county seat as it is today.

Ralls County came into being officially as the direct result of one of Missouri's most dramatic political incidents. The first General Assembly of Missouri was only fourteen days old when it undertook the election of Missouri's first United States senators on October 2, 1820. David Barton was virtually assured of election and he helped obtain votes for Thomas Hart Benton, one of six candidates. Barton received 34 of the 52 votes.

TOUGH GOING FOR BENTON

Benton had tough going. He was a strong figure, but nevertheless unpopular with many Missourians, partly because he had killed Charles Lucas, the son of one of the six candidates, in a duel. On the day before the election, Benton's friends campaigned vigorously against great odds. It seemed virtually impossible to get twenty-seven votes for Benton, the smallest number that would give him a bare majority and election.

The popular Barton was asked to state his choice, that strategy being expected to tip the scales. But Benton still needed two votes. French friends of Marie Philip Leduc of St. Louis talked to him all night, and, although Leduc is said to have hated Benton, he finally pleged his vote for him. One vote was still needed.

Daniel Ralls, who lived near New London, then a representative of Pike County, was desperately ill and had been unable to attend assembly sessions. But he favored Barton and Benton and, hearing of the circumstances, insisted that he be taken to the session where votes were cast orally. Four Negro men carried Ralls to the meeting. A newspaper account at the time says he told them in emphatic tones, "If I should faint in the house, endeavor to recover me there, and by no means take me out before I have given my vote."

Benton was nominated by Jesse B. Boone, a son of Daniel Boone. Ralls cast his vote, along with Leduc, and Benton won with twenty-seven votes, the minimum required.

COUNTY NAMED FOR RALLS

It was the last official act of Ralls. He never recovered from his illness or attended another assembly session. He died on October 30, 1820, at Benton's home in St. Louis. On November 16, 1820, writes Floyd C. Shoemaker in his "Missouri Day by Day," a bill was approved creating the County of Ralls from the County of Pike in honor of Daniel Ralls.

Benton went to Washington and became the first 30-year senator in American history, a powerful figure who served with distinction along with such contemporaries as Calhoun, Clay and Webster. He was in the forefront in all issues of his times. At least nine counties in the United States are named for him.

The new Ralls County extended to the Iowa line and New London became the virtual capital of Northeast Missouri. Eventually, nine other counties and parts of four others were formed from the original Ralls, which assumed its present boundaries in 1836.

The first courthouse, a log building erected in 1822, still stands on its original site as a part of a remodeled dwelling. A brick structure, built in 1835, served the county for twenty-three years and was torn down to make way for the present building in 1858. Two wings, conforming to the original architecture, were added in 1936.

OLD WALLS STILL UNTARNISHED

The building is of native stone, quarried near the site and fitted and cut by hand. The timeless architecture and age of the building are enhanced in beauty by the fact that it remains untarnished. Being in a rural area, free of industrial smoke, the old walls have retained their youthful color.

The facade of four Tuscan columns supporting a pediment and surmounted by an octagonal cupola, was reproduced on the Missouri buildings at both the New York and San Francisco world fairs in 1939, and has been used in other presentations of Missouri scenes. Large fireplaces, attractive stairways, and hand-hewn woodwork are interesting interior features.

Ralls County also presents a microcosm of the great diversification for which Missouri is known, as well as much of its history. It is said to have the greatest variety of soils in the state. One may see everything from flattest prairie to the steepest hill land and the variety of agriculture that goes with it. Many creeks water the area besides the storied Salt river and the even more famous Mississippi, which forms one of its boundaries.

A big federal lock and dam are at Saverton; also a large camp producing maple syrup in the old-fashioned way. The world's largest cement plant is at Ilasco, where the finished product from limestone bluffs is shipped out on the river. Much of the cement used in the Panama canal came from Ilasco.

MARK TWAIN RELICS

The Mark Twain Research foundation has offices in Perry where many personal belongings of the Clemens family will be shown on request. A collection of Mark Twain first editions is on display in the Perry State bank and files of the foundation are open to those engaged in serious research. Perry is near the Mark Twain State park and the town of Florida, where the great author was born.

Responding to the interest of visitors and home pride as well, the Ralls County court, co-operating with civic groups, recently published a leaflet on the county's "historic past and prosperous present." It outlines some of the county's interesting places and scenes.

For instance, china of the type popular in grandmother's day, is handpainted and fired to order in Center and Perry. Center was so named because it was the center of the original county. Linens in tapestry or any pattern are hand-loomed in New London. Fine show and parade harness also is made by hand in the same town. Added to this diversity of products and a solid agricultural economy, the county also produces tarpaulins, bags, dairy supplies, potato chips and fish bait, besides its great output of cement.

There are several historic buildings including old Van Rensselaer academy, and the Brush Creek, St. Paul and St. Joseph's Catholic churches, noted for their aging charm.

Spalding Springs, first found by the Spanish and developed later by the French who shipped salt to St. Louis, remains as one of the pleasure spots of the county today. Indian pictures may be seen on the Salt river bluffs at Cincinnati, a historic point in the county. The county is primarily an agricultural area as it has been since the first English settlers started growing crops as early as 1800. There are many scenic views along good highways, in addition to the historic and attractive courthouse.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER IV
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The Department of Education is specifically provided for in the state constitution. No departmental head is provided for in the constitution, but the organizational structure of the Division of Public Schools, which is made a part of the department, is set out in considerable detail. Other units of the state government have been assigned to the Department of Education by statute or by executive order (Chap. 160, RSMo 1959).

During the decade 1955-1965 changes in the organization of two agencies were made. The State Soil Districts Commission was reorganized and renamed the State Soil and Water Districts Commission. The State Library Advisory Board was replaced by the State Library Commission.

Recognizing the ever-increasing importance of higher education to the State of Missouri and its citizens, the General Assembly in 1963, following the recommendation of the 1955 State Reorganization Commission, created the Commission on Higher Education. The Commission consists of ten members appointed by the Governor and an Advisory Council to the Commission appointed by the Commission.

The chief functions of the Commission include:

1. Designing a coordinated plan for higher education in Missouri.
2. Reviewing any proposed changes or additions in the facilities of the state-supported institutions of higher education.
3. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher education development, consolidation, or elimination of policies, programs or facilities when in the best interests of the state educational system.
4. Recommending to state-supported institutions of higher learning formulas to be used in developing plans for operation and development, and for requests for appropriations from the General Assembly.

Recommendations made by the 1955 State Reorganization Commission concerning the fiscal year of the Division of Public Schools and the State Library were implemented generally along the lines suggested by the Commission. No changes were recommended in 1955 for the State Anatomical Board, the State Historical Society, the Public School Retirement System, or the Soil Districts Commission (in 1965, the Soil and Water Districts Commission), and no recommendations are made here concerning these agencies.

TRANSFER OF STATE MUSEUM

26. Recommendation:

That the State Museum be transferred from the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to the Department of Education, under a curator to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and that there be created an Advisory Board for the State Museum.

The primary function of the State Museum is most directly related to the education of the citizens of the state of Missouri. The evidence made available to the Commission suggests that this primary function is removed from the mainstream of the activities of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, and that the Museum's main contribution to the activities of the division was primarily in the construction of exhibits. Autonomous status for the Museum in the Department of Education will direct the Museum's primary activities towards its educational tasks, while permitting the Museum to respond, as its circumstances allow, to requests for assistance from other state agencies and offices.

Existence of an Advisory Board will broaden the opportunities the Museum has for securing valuable materials and collections, and will provide a source of informed and dedicated advice and support for the curator on broad and continuing matters of Museum policy, while permitting administrative responsibility to be located definitely in the curator.

The administrative structure of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development will also be simplified, and its functional responsibilities more obviously integrated along developmental lines.

SURVEY OF EXPERIMENT STATIONS

27. Recommendation:

That an evaluation of the research products of the Poultry and Fruit Experiment Stations be undertaken by teams of professional research experts in each field from neighboring agricultural states before any further action is recommended.

The 1955 Commission recommended that the stations be transferred to the University of Missouri, and that they be operated at their present locations as units of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the College of Agriculture. More evidence as to their present and potential future research productivity is needed before it can validly be asserted that the stations should be continued in operation. Inasmuch as the University of Missouri stands to be affected by the results of such a research survey, it is deemed to be both ethically correct and scientifically objective that the research evaluation of the stations not be made by University of Missouri personnel. Utilization of neutral out-of-state experts will be in the best interests of both the stations and the University personnel, and obviate the possibility of a conflict of interest.

Chevy II 100 Station Wagon

Chevy II 100 2-Door Sedan

big tightwads

Chevy II

With aluminized exhausts that discourage corrosion . . . Delcotron generators that encourage longer battery life . . . brakes that adjust themselves . . . rocker panels that flush themselves free of dirt and salt. Tight? They're downright miserly!

They're roomy. The sedan seats six. The wagon gives you a full nine feet from the back of the front seat to the tip of the lowered tailgate.

They're rugged. The unitized body is by Fisher. Up front, there's an independent suspension system and in the rear, Mono-Plate (you'll never hear a squeak) springs.

You can get an economical 4-cylinder engine in the sedan or in both cars, a 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six. It's fast to warm up, idles almost silently and is very, very easy on gas.

For even more power, there's a special Six you can order: the 230-cubic-inch Turbo-Thrift job.

As we said earlier, these are our lowest priced cars. But you'll never know just how economical they are until you own one.

TEACHING IN THE PEACE CORPS

To Help Shape Eternity

A teacher affects eternity;
he can never tell where his influence stops.

Henry Adams, The Education of Henry Adams

The cool June morning predicts a pleasant day. Inside the small classroom the children go through the non-academic calisthenics shared by children everywhere — excited Spring laughter, the hum of conversation, the irrepressible shuffle of small feet.

This schoolroom could be in any American community. It isn't. It's located on the outskirts of Enugu in the sprawling West African country of Nigeria. The teacher these children await is a Peace Corps Volunteer, one of several thousand now teaching in 46 countries around the world.

Since the early days of the Peace Corps, over half the Volunteers overseas have been engaged in some type of teaching. Working in universities, teacher training colleges, junior and senior highs and elementary schools, they are helping ease a teacher shortage that will exist until they themselves have trained enough of their hosts to staff the classrooms.

Are they succeeding? A beginning can be seen in the thousands they have already trained. Another measure of their success is the fact that every country where they work has doubled or tripled its original request for educational aid.

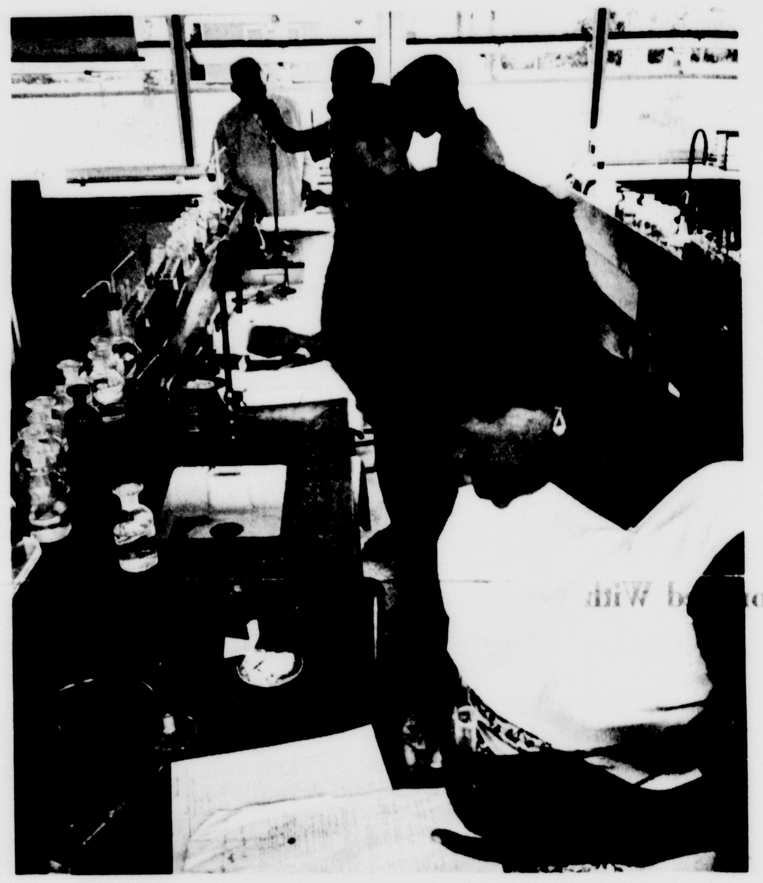
Most Volunteer teachers find their work extremely gratifying. They report that new — and not so new — nations are striving mightily to keep pace with rapid changes in technology and that many of the young people of these nations thirst for the knowledge which will enable them to play productive roles in their society.

The Volunteers represent every hue in the American rainbow. In a new university in Nigeria, a married couple, both in their seventies, both long retired, teach side by side; several thousand miles away, a 22-year-old girl — a recent college graduate — leads a group of Colombian school children through a complicated chemistry exercise.

Some Peace Corps teachers have had prior experience, but most are liberal arts graduates who learned the basics of their new profession during intensive Peace Corps training sessions. The common denominator that links them is teaching itself — the challenges, complexities and rewards.

One Volunteer wrote: "The nations have entrusted to us their most precious raw material. Their future — the future of the free world — begins in these classrooms today, because we are teaching the leaders of tomorrow."

If you're interested in playing a small role in shaping tomorrow, write the Peace Corps, Washington, D. C., 20525. You and your future students will be glad you did.



"For many of my students school is not an obligation — it is an opportunity. Their gratitude and attentiveness make my days most satisfying."

"The work we're doing here isn't easily measured . . . but how do you measure a child's smile as the words on a printed page slowly begin to take on meaning?"

"We are using our classroom as an instrument to cut across class lines wherever they exist and as a medium to expand the outlook of our students."

Pork Chops Get Saucy with Soup Plus Seasonings

Like a sauce that makes itself? Then you'll like these pork chops which have a gravy-sauce as soon as they've finished cooking.

There's flavor a-plenty in this sauce, too, which uses half of a can of condensed cream of celery soup. Chili and Worcestershire sauces are added for zip before pouring over browned pork rib or loin chops.

Serving pork chops regularly is a good way to get high quality protein and thiamine into the diet claims Reba Staggs, noted meat authority. Pork is the richest natural source of this important vitamin which contributes to healthy nerves and good digestion.

Saucy Pork Chops

- 6 pork rib or loin chops, cut ¾-inch thick
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ can (10½ ounces or approximately ⅔ cup) condensed cream of celery soup
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 small onion, sliced

Brown chops in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Combine soup, chili sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Pour over chops. Top chops with onion slices. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes to 1 hour or until done. 6 servings.

LBJ Runs into Trouble after Comparatively Easy Sailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unhappy side of the presidency finally caught up with Lyndon B. Johnson who had it fairly nice, coping with the predictable, in his first 14 months in the White House.

There had been some annoyances abroad but most of his time, talent, and tenacity were concentrated on problems at home, like winning an election, getting a civil rights bill passed, pushing through a tax cut.

This was where he was an expert, after his long years in Washington. He had an acute sensitivity to politicians, understood the machinery of government, knew when to shift gears, throw switches, and turn the heat on.

Time was extraordinarily kind in allowing him so long a stretch in which to deal with what he knew best. No president since Franklin D. Roosevelt had such little critical trouble overseas in his first 14 months.

It couldn't last, and it didn't. Trouble finally piled up on him when the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam attacked U.S. bases and shocked Americans into a vivid realization of what they were up against.

Anyone paying attention to the news these past two years knew the American-backed war against the Communists was going to pot and that the guerrillas were taking over more and more of a country the United States was helping defend.

All this news was spread over many months and no single episode, until U.S. bases were hit in South Viet Nam, illustrated so well the developing disaster.

The whole wretched condition of the war became clear with the attacks and Johnson's retaliation by ordering the bombing of some North Vietnamese bases. Johnson was repeatedly urged to talk to the nation about it. He didn't.

It isn't difficult to understand why he is reluctant to talk to the world directly on all this.

It might limit his freedom of maneuver in dealing with the Communists, now or later, and he may have reason, not clear now to outsiders, for thinking that just watchful waiting by itself is good medicine.

But Wednesday, U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, suggested the United States pull out of Viet Nam although he acknowledged, for American face-saving reasons, this could be done only after some kind of settlement.

And then he threw in a strange statement: "I am sure that the great American people, if only they know the true facts will agree with me that further bloodshed is unnecessary."

What facts don't the American people know? He didn't say. Nor did he say anyone was withholding facts from them.

If the United States did try to pull out suddenly — Johnson has no such thought, judging from the stories coming out of Washington — it would be an admitted defeat, costing the United States influence in Asia and elsewhere.

Nor, according to such stories, does Johnson think this is the time to talk negotiations with the Communists.

But Viet Nam, where American lives have been lost and billions of dollars spent if not wasted, is becoming topsy-turvy, with the generals competing for power among themselves and one government after another being overturned.

If this goes on much longer, Johnson will have a hard time convincing Americans this country should stay in Viet Nam to fight a war the Vietnamese are not fighting.

This is his first major foreign affairs dilemma. He knows more about it than the rest of the country. Therfore, and since there has been no climax and no solution, neither his caution nor his silence should be criticized.

Sooner or later there will be the climax and how Johnson emerges from it will affect his leadership here and abroad. It's no wonder he's watching his step.

Neither Ireland nor New Zealand have snakes.

Wallpapers Help Add or Subtract Room Proportion

Room too small or too large? Use wallpaper to help you create a look that seems to add or subtract space.

An airy, light paper seems to add an amazing amount of space in a small room. The scale of the design isn't the important part of this eye-deceiver — a fairly large motif will look fine if it is widely spaced on a light background.

Another good way to add a spacious feeling is to cover one wall with a scenic mural. There are country meadows, seascapes, views of the Orient, quaint pastoral scenes of ancient Greece, Colonial villages with tree-lined streets — an elegant variety to give focus to any room in the home.

To pull the room down in size, choose darker colors in a close, all-over design for the walls, and a deeper tone for the ceiling.

DEAR POLLY—Every now and then a ball-point pen tip becomes clogged with excessive ink and fuzz. The quickest and easiest way to clean such a point is to insert it in the filter portion of a cigarette. Just a few quick turns and it is ready to use.—ROSE ANN

GIRLS—You do not have to waste a fresh cigarette as an already-smoked one works just as well.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Inside our clothes chute I have tacked a strong cord with a clip type clothespin tied to it. When some of the dirty clothes are damp I clip them in the pin and they hang inside the chute, out of sight, until dry.—C. B.

DEAR POLLY—Rub the surface of a typing eraser with a fingernail emery board to keep it clean and your typing neat.

Our new home has a built-in vanity in the bathroom and I decided to store our toothbrushes out of sight. I had an old kitchen cutlery tray (plastic) and found it fit into one vanity drawer. Now each person has his own section of the tray for his toothbrush. This tray is easily washed.—MRS. O. F. C.

DEAR POLLY—I have a good way to decorate a cake without any special tools or skill. It works on fluffy or sugar icing. Recently I made a white cake with white icing to take to a church luncheon. It looked very drab so I tinted some of the icing—two colors in two saucers. I took two pieces of thread that were each longer than the cake was wide and soaked the thread in the icing, then held a piece taut. cut through the icing in a straight line, leaving a thin line of coloring. I kept doing this with the two colors until a plaid design was made. I am sure those with more originality can think of many patterns and designs.—MRS. F. E. D.

GIRLS—Don't you agree that Mrs. F. E. D. has the MOST originality in thinking of the idea?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When cleaning out drawers and cupboards have an old nylon stocking with you. You will be surprised at the amount of rubbish it will hold and the stuffed stocking takes little room in the trash can. Also eliminates all those little loose bits that could be scattered around when the can is emptied.—A READER FROM ENGLAND.

Pork Chops Get Saucy with Soup Plus Seasonings

Like a sauce that makes itself? Then you'll like these pork chops which have a gravy-sauce as soon as they've finished cooking.

There's flavor a-plenty in this sauce, too, which uses half of a can of condensed cream of celery soup. Chili and Worcestershire sauces are added for zip before pouring over browned pork rib or loin chops.

Serving pork chops regularly is a good way to get high quality protein and thiamine into the diet claims Reba Staggs, noted meat authority. Pork is the richest natural source of this important vitamin which contributes to healthy nerves and good digestion.

Saucy Pork Chops

6 pork rib or loin chops, cut ¾-inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ can (10½ ounces or approximately ⅝ cup) condensed cream of celery soup
¼ cup chili sauce
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion, sliced

Brown chops in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Combine soup, chili sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Pour over chops. Top chops with onion slices. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes to 1 hour or until done. 6 servings.

LBJ Runs into Trouble after Comparatively Easy Sailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unhappy side of the presidency finally caught up with Lyndon B. Johnson who had it fairly nice, coping with the predictable, in his first 14 months in the White House.

There had been some annoyances abroad but most of his time, talent, and tenacity were concentrated on problems at home, like winning an election, getting a civil rights bill passed, pushing through a tax cut.

This was where he was an expert, after his long years in Washington. He had an acute sensitivity to politicians, understood the machinery of government, knew when to shift gears, throw switches, and turn the heat on.

Time was extraordinarily kind in allowing him so long a stretch in which to deal with what he knew best. No president since Franklin D. Roosevelt had such little critical trouble overseas in his first 14 months.

It couldn't last, and it didn't. Trouble finally piled up on him when the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam attacked U.S. bases and shocked Americans into a vivid realization of what they were up against.

Anyone paying attention to the news these past two years knew the American-backed war against the Communists was going to pot and that the guerrillas were taking over more and more of a country the United States was helping defend.

All this news was spread over many months and no single episode, until U.S. bases were hit in South Viet Nam, illustrated so well the developing disaster.

The whole wretched condition of the war became clear with the attacks and Johnson's retaliation by ordering the bombing of some North Vietnamese bases. Johnson was repeatedly urged to talk to the nation about it. He didn't.

It isn't difficult to understand why he is reluctant to talk to the world directly on all this.

It might limit his freedom of maneuver in dealing with the Communists, now or later, and he may have reason, not clear now to outsiders, for thinking that just watchful waiting by itself is good medicine.

But Wednesday, U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, suggested the United States pull out of Viet Nam although he acknowledged, for American face-saving reasons, this could be done only after some kind of settlement.

And then he threw in a strange statement: "I am sure that the great American people, if only they know the true facts will agree with me that further bloodshed is unnecessary."

What facts don't the American people know? He didn't say. Nor did he say anyone was withholding facts from them.

If the United States did try to pull out suddenly — Johnson has no such thought, judging from the stories coming out of Washington — it would be an admitted defeat, costing the United States influence in Asia and elsewhere.

Nor, according to such stories, does Johnson think this is the time to talk negotiations with the Communists.

But Viet Nam, where American lives have been lost and billions of dollars spent if not wasted, is becoming topsy-turvy, with the generals competing for power among themselves and one government after another being overturned.

If this goes on much longer, Johnson will have a hard time convincing Americans this country should stay in Viet Nam to fight a war the Vietnamese are not fighting.

This is his first major foreign affairs dilemma. He knows more about it than the rest of the country. Therfore, and since there has been no climax and no solution, neither his caution nor his silence should be criticized.

Sooner or later there will be the climax and how Johnson emerges from it will affect his leadership here and abroad. It's no wonder he's watching his step.

Neither Ireland nor New Zealand have snakes.

Wallpapers Help Add or Subtract Room Proportion

Room too small or too large? Use wallpaper to help you create a look that seems to add or subtract space.

An airy, light paper seems to add an amazing amount of space in a small room. The scale of the design isn't the important part of this eye-deceiver — a fairly large motif will look fine if it is widely spaced on a light background.

Another good way to add a spacious feeling is to cover one wall with a scenic mural. There are country meadows, seascapes, views of the Orient, quaint pastoral scenes of ancient Greece, Colonial villages with tree-lined streets — an elegant variety to give focus to any room in the home.

To pull the room down in size, choose darker colors in a close, all-over design for the walls, and a deeper tone for the ceiling.

Unclog Ball-Point Pens

Polly

DEAR POLLY—Every now and then a ball-point pen tip becomes clogged with excessive ink and fuzz. The quickest and easiest way to clean such a point is to insert it in the filter portion of a cigarette. Just a few quick turns and it is ready to use.—ROSE ANN

GIRLS—You do not have to waste a fresh cigarette as an already-smoked one works just as well.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Inside our clothes chute I have tacked a strong cord with a clip type clothespin tied to it. When some of the dirty clothes are damp I clip them in the pin and they hang inside the chute, out of sight, until dry.—C. B.

DEAR POLLY—Rub the surface of a typing eraser with a fingernail emery board to keep it clean and your typing neat.

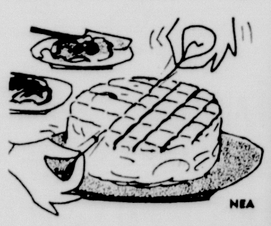
Our new home has a built-in vanity in the bathroom and I decided to store our toothbrushes out of sight. I had an old kitchen cutlery tray (plastic) and found it fit into one vanity drawer. Now each person has his own section of the tray for his toothbrush. This tray is easily washed.—MRS. O. F. C.

DEAR POLLY—I have a good way to decorate a cake without any special tools or skill. It works on fluffy or sugar icing. Recently I made a white cake with white icing to take to a church luncheon. It looked very drab so I tinted some of the icing—two colors in two saucers. I took two pieces of thread that were each longer than the cake was wide and soaked the thread in the icing, then held a piece taut, cut through the icing in a straight line, leaving a thin line of coloring. I kept doing this with the two colors until a plaid design was made. I am sure those with more originality can think of many patterns and designs.—MRS. F. E. D.



GIRLS—Don't you agree that Mrs. F. E. D. has the MOST originality in thinking of the idea?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When cleaning out drawers and cupboards have an old nylon stocking with you. You will be surprised at the amount of rubbish it will hold and the stuffed stocking takes little room in the trash can. Also eliminates all those little loose bits that could be scattered around when the can is emptied.—A READER FROM ENGLAND.

Share your favorite homemaking ideas. . and send them to Polly in care of The Daily Sikeston Standard. You'll receive a bright, new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1965

Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. (Acts 2:38, ASV)

PRAYER: Help us, our Father, to submit ourselves to the Holy Spirit's control. Produce in our daily lives the fruit of the Holy Spirit. Glorify Thyself through us and grant us eternal life; through Jesus Christ our Lord, in whom we put our faith and hope. Amen.

The worst thing that can happen to a man is to start horsing around and then find out his girl is as stubborn as a mule.

Armed Forces

Major Cooper is assigned to the 340th as radar navigator on the chief of standardization crew.

Among his many memorable experiences was a "Round the World" flight of three B-52's in 1955. As it was explained by him, "one of the genuine thrills of my life."

Also included in his 10 year career with the B-52 are three years with the Strategic Air Command, (SAC), Standardization Group. The group was responsible for the insurance of standardization throughout the entire SAC crew force.

Prior to flying B-52 aircraft, Major Cooper flew B-47's at March AFB, Calif., for four years and accrued 1000 hours in flying that aircraft.

Before entering the Air Force, Major Cooper attended the University of Florida for three years, majoring in biology. He and his wife, Gwen, reside on base with their three children.

Only one other crew member of the 340th Bomb Squadron has established the 3000 hour flying record. He is Major Edward J. Cihak.

The famous comment, "What this country needs is a really good five-cent cigar," was made by Thomas Riley Marshall, the 28th vice president of the United States, one day while presiding over the Senate during a particularly tedious debate on the floor. Marshall was elected to the vice presidency along with President Woodrow Wilson in 1913. When he was re-elected during the next term he became the first vice president to succeed himself in office in almost a century.

Spanish Vegetable Platter For Buffet Supper

Here's a Spanish secret for making buffet suppers easy. Separately cook a variety of vegetables (selecting them for contrast of color), marinate each in Salsa Vinagreta, serve at room temperature to accompany a hot casserole. The vegetables can be prepared and set out on the serving table hours ahead, eliminating last minute fussing and they make a colorful assortment. Much easier than tossed salad, for there's no need to worry about wilting.

Salsa Vinagreta

1 cup Spanish olive oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup red wine vinegar
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 garlic clove, crushed
¼ cup minced parsley

Combine ingredients, blending well. Makes 1-½ cups sauce.

A TREE I REMEMBER

A tree I remember -- a long time ago --
Grew on my Grandmother's farm,
At the edge of the field, by the fence row,
And cast a spell on me like a charm
Like a giant mushroom, this magic tree --
Or an umbrella running wild.
I asked my Granny what cculd it be:
She said, "A money tree, my child."
---Julia Henson

During the wartime manpower shortage, our college hired an elderly retired farmer as a groundskeeper. He was such a diligent worker that his supervisor cautioned him to take it easier and rest occasionally. The warnings went unheeded. Finally, worried about the man's health, the supervisor visited his wife to see if she couldn't persuade him to slow down. "I'll try," she said sympathetically, "but I don't think it will do much good. You see, he's always worked for himself, never for someone else. So he's just never learned to work slow." —Robert L. PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1965

Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. (Acts 2:38, ASV)

PRAYER: Help us, our Father, to submit ourselves to the Holy Spirit's control. Produce in our daily lives the fruit of the Holy Spirit. Glorify Thyself through us and grant us eternal life; through Jesus Christ our Lord, in whom we put our faith and hope. Amen.

The worst thing that can happen to a man is to start horsing around and then find out his girl is as stubborn as a mule.

Among his many memorable experiences was a "Round the World" flight of three B-52's in 1955. As it was explained by him, "one of the genuine thrills of my life."

Also included in his 10 year career with the B-52 are three years with the Strategic Air Command, (SAC), Standardization Group. The group was responsible for the insurance of standardization throughout the entire SAC crew force.

Prior to flying B-52 aircraft, Major Cooper flew B-47's at March AFB, Calif., for four years and accrued 1000 hours in flying that aircraft.

Before entering the Air Force, Major Cooper attended the University of Florida for three years, majoring in biology. He and his wife, Gwen, reside on base with their three children.

Only one other crew member of the 340th Bomb Squadron has established the 3000 hour flying record. He is Major Edward J. Cihak.

The famous comment, "What this country needs is a really good five-cent cigar," was made by Thomas Riley Marshall, the 28th vice president of the United States, one day while presiding over the Senate during a particularly tedious debate on the floor. Marshall was elected to the vice presidency along with President Woodrow Wilson in 1913. When he was re-elected during the next term he became the first vice president to succeed himself in office in almost a century.

Spanish Vegetable Platter For Buffet Supper

Here's a Spanish secret for making buffet suppers easy. Separately cook a variety of vegetables (selecting them for contrast of color), marinate each in Salsa Vinagreta, serve at room temperature to accompany a hot casserole. The vegetables can be prepared and set out on the serving table hours ahead, eliminating last minute fussing and they make a colorful assortment. Much easier than tossed salad, for there's no need to worry about wilting.

Salsa Vinagreta

1 cup Spanish olive oil
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup red wine vinegar
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 garlic clove, crushed
¼ cup minced parsley

Combine ingredients, blending well. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

Good vegetable platter combination: artichoke hearts, tender whole beans, zucchini squash, small white potatoes, carrots. Cut tomato into "flower shape" to place in center of platter. Marinate each cooked vegetable separately; drain before placing on platter. Sprinkle mixture chopped sliced olives, capers and minced parsley for garnish over top.

The United States government purchased its first airplane on July 30, 1909.

A TREE I REMEMBER

A tree I remember -- a long time ago --
Grew on my Grandmother's farm,
At the edge of the field, by the fence row,
And cast a spell on me like a charm.
Like a giant mushroom, this magic tree --
Or an umbrella running wild.
I asked my Granny what cculd it be:
She said, "A money tree, my child."

During the wartime manpower shortage, our college hired an elderly retired farmer as a groundskeeper. He was such a diligent worker that his supervisor cautioned him to take it easier and rest occasionally. The warnings went unheeded. Finally, worried about the man's health, the supervisor visited his wife to see if she couldn't persuade him to slow down. "I'll try," she said sympathetically, "but I don't think it will do much good. You see, he's always worked for himself, never for someone else. So he's just never learned to work slow." —Robert L. 'Operation Facelift' Raises Home Value

When it's time to plan remodeling projects, "Operation Facelift" should be one of the first on the list, say building experts. Applying a new "face" to a home's exterior, with the use of siding, does more than add lasting beauty.

By making a house safe against the elements, siding outside provides protection inside, thus guarding the appearance and value of any interior renovations and improvements. Then, too, an exterior remodeling job is an investment for the future and a real enhancement of property values.

"Operation Facelift" might start with the choice of siding [illegible] and there are many, each with its own advantages. Anything from personal preference to local climate could be the deciding factor.

There's the familiar standby, wood — practical, economical, easy to shape to fit any wall. Wood siding is available in many types, to create many architectural effects, and can be painted to carry out any color scheme preferred or stained for a rustic look. It does, however, require maintenance, through painting or varnishing, so the question of upkeep should be considered.

Modern low-maintenance materials include aluminum siding. Among its advantages are: no warping, rotting, rusting or cracking and no danger from termites. In addition, it is available today in a variety of finishes and colors.

Easy to maintain, too, and long-wearing, is asbestos-cement siding. A fireproof, weatherproof substance made from a mixture of asbestos fibers and portland cement, it is resistant to rot, rust, decay, chemical fumes or corrosive salt air, and hardens through exposure.

It's made in a selection of shapes and textures, and in a range of colors from traditional whites to deep hues and soft pastels.

Thin masonry veneers are often used in combination with other types of siding. They include brick, stone and simulated stone. Here, too, color and pattern choice is excellent.

Durable and easy to handle, plywood siding is becoming a popular resurfacing material. Speed of application is one of its advantages, as it comes in large panels.

Reds Aren't Spoiling for All-Out Viet Nam War

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Despite Russian and Red Chinese promises of support to North Viet Nam and shouts against "imperialistic" U. S. bombings, the evidence here is:

1. Peking's Mao Tse-tung isn't prepared to get into another Korea in Viet Nam.

2. Moscow's Brezhnev and Kosygin are not ready to jump into a Cuba-type showdown in Asia.

Moscow statements after the raids were milder than Premier Kosygin's speeches beforehand. Translated out of the peculiar code language used by the Communist powers, Peking's reactions have been equally cautious.

Neither Red China nor Soviet Russia can afford economically or militarily to commit ground forces to action in South Viet Nam.

THE RED CHINESE TODAY can't be certain of the safe-haven arrangement they had during the Korean war of the 1950s. Then they had received assurances that China wouldn't be bombed. Peking has received no such assurances in this war. In fact, hints have been dropped to Mao that in case his Chinese do enter the Viet Nam war with Korea-type "volunteers," he can expect bombing raids on mainland China's industrial and military installations.

The Russians can't risk getting bogged down in Viet Nam, so far from home logistically. Neither can they risk now an open confrontation with the U. S. militarily in view of defense and economic weaknesses at home.

Nevertheless, reports reaching government analysts here indicate the Communists will step up the war in South Viet Nam.

These step-up decisions were made before the Kosygin visit to Asia—and before the U. S.-South Vietnamese attacks on Dong Hoi and Vinh Linh.

SOME TIME BACK, U. S. government analysts had deduced from the composition of the Kosygin delegation to Hanoi that Moscow was getting ready to give North Viet Nam anti-aircraft weapons and possibly fighter planes.

As in Cuba, the Russians may well put in modern ground-to-air (anti-aircraft) missiles and provide Russian troops to train North Vietnamese in missile use.

There is also evidence the Russians have offered the North Vietnamese a variety of technicians, including a limited number of advisers for the Viet Cong.

For additional effect, it is conceivable Brezhnev and Kosygin could cancel out President Johnson's projected visit to the Soviet Union and a possible return visit by one or another of the Soviet leaders.

CAPTURED DOCUMENTS and prisoner interrogations indicate the Red Chinese some months ago committed themselves to stepped-up aid for North Viet Nam.

The number of Chinese advisers serving with the Viet Cong has increased sharply. There are reportedly a growing number of Chinese technical advisers in Hanoi.

But these step-ups will be a far cry from another Korea invasion by Chinese "volunteers" and far less than the Soviet missile crisis in Cuba.

Reds Aren't Spoiling for All-Out Viet Nam War

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Despite Russian and Red Chinese promises of support to North Viet Nam and shouts against "imperialistic" U.S. bombings, the evidence here is:

1. Peking's Mao Tse-tung isn't prepared to get into another Korea in Viet Nam.

2. Moscow's Brezhnev and Kosygin are not ready to jump into a Cuba-type showdown in Asia.

Moscow statements after the raids were milder than Premier Kosygin's speeches beforehand. Translated out of the peculiar code language used by the Communist powers, Peking's reactions have been equally cautious.

Neither Red China nor Soviet Russia can afford economically or militarily to commit ground forces to action in South Viet Nam.

THE RED CHINESE TODAY can't be certain of the safe-haven arrangement they had during the Korean war of the 1950s. Then they had received assurances that China wouldn't be bombed. Peking has received no such assurances in this war. In fact, hints have been dropped to Mao that in case his Chinese do enter the Viet Nam war with Korea-type "volunteers," he can expect bombing raids on mainland China's industrial and military installations.

The Russians can't risk getting bogged down in Viet Nam, so far from home logistically. Neither can they risk now an open confrontation with the U.S. militarily in view of defense and economic weaknesses at home.

Nevertheless, reports reaching government analysts here indicate the Communists will step up the war in South Viet Nam.

These step-up decisions were made before the Kosygin visit to Asia—and before the U.S.-South Vietnamese attacks on Dong Hoi and Vinh Linh.

SOME TIME BACK, U.S. government analysts had deduced from the composition of the Kosygin delegation to Hanoi that Moscow was getting ready to give North Viet Nam anti-aircraft weapons and possibly fighter planes.

As in Cuba, the Russians may well put in modern ground-to-air (anti-aircraft) missiles and provide Russian troops to train North Vietnamese in missile use.

There is also evidence the Russians have offered the North Vietnamese a variety of technicians, including a limited number of advisers for the Viet Cong.

For additional effect, it is conceivable Brezhnev and Kosygin could cancel out President Johnson's projected visit to the Soviet Union and a possible return visit by one or another of the Soviet leaders.

CAPTURED DOCUMENTS and prisoner interrogations indicate the Red Chinese some months ago committed themselves to stepped-up aid for North Viet Nam.

The number of Chinese advisers serving with the Viet Cong has increased sharply. There are reportedly a growing number of Chinese technical advisers in Hanoi.

But these step-ups will be a far cry from another Korea invasion by Chinese "volunteers" and far less than the Soviet missile crisis in Cuba.

Idiotic American Aid Can Cause Trouble Instead Of Good-- We Wind Up Paying Our Blackmailers.

By JENKIN LLOYD JONES

A few months ago units of the Atlantic fleet arrived at Rio de Janeiro. Some genius in our embassy dreamed up a great public relations gimmick. A volunteer crew of American sailors would go up into one of the "favelas," or slum communities that cling to the beautiful Rio mountains. The sailors would paint a few shacks. And a Navy boilermaker would be sent to repair the leaky boiler in a Rio hospital.

No charge, of course. Just good will. Neighborliness.

Well, what the Communists did to this Boy Scout performance was pathetic. "What," they asked the citizens of Rio, "can the Americans be up to? And how stupid do they think we are if they believe that we cannot see that there is a trick in this somewhere?"

And, sure enough, in a short time not only most of Rio, but most of Brazil was asking, "What is the American trick?"

Now, where the embassy went wrong was in its failure to realize that nowhere does such altruism as painting a building or fixing a boiler free exist in the philosophy of the average Brazilian. To do these things a man must be either crazy or devious. And since the American sailors didn't look crazy their deviousness was easy to believe.

It's The Philosophy

We Must Examine

There are plenty of examples of idiotic foreign aid. Like the 20-million-dollar plastics plant we gave Yugoslavia at the dedication of which both Mr. Tito and Mr. Khrushchev made glowing speeches about this example of the triumph of socialism!

Or the three-million-dollar air-conditioned yacht for Emperor Haile Selassie.

But it is a mistake to pick over bits of lint. Even if foreign aid were the greatest discovery since the tinder box, the passing out of about 100 billion American dollars would naturally include boo-boos. It is the philosophy, itself, we should re-examine.

Aided Nations Hate

Role Of Beggar

Our aid program got started reasonably and wisely under the Marshall Plan. It was designed to rebuild the war-wrecked industrial economies of Europe and Japan, without which there would have been chaos, starvation and a probable Communist take-over.

But then the whole world, including nations which had not only sacrificed nothing in the war but which had profited handsomely from it began rattling the cup and our global charity got under way.

Nations hate to look upon themselves as mendicants. They like to imagine that they are giving something in return for what they are getting. And, in the case of American aid, rationalizations were not slow in coming, particularly since Communist propaganda helped all it could. Samples:

Americans are embarrassed by their food surplus.

Americans are trying to control other governments for their own selfish purposes, and aid is the Trojan Horse.

Louder They Yelled,

More We Gave

So Phase Two followed. Foreign politicians, in an effort to prove to their people that they were not subservient to the Americans began to make it a point to be critical of American policies.

This brought on Phase Three. The louder foreign statesmen yelled about the United States, the more foreign aid we rushed to them. You could get more American dollars by insulting Uncle Sam than by pumping his hand in gratitude.

And so we have come to Phase Four--blackmail. A recent issue of U. S. News & World Report asserts that the chief reason why American aid continues to Egypt after Mr. Nasser made no move to stop the burning of our libraries, refused to apoligize for shooting down an American plane, and told our ambassador to jump in the Nile, is because we fear, if aid is cut off, Nasser will attack Israel.

Somebody ought to send the State Department a history of ancient Rome. When the Romans began paying peace tributes the end of the empire was near. For the savage chieftains milked the Roman treasury for all they could get and then invaded anyway.

Foreign aid has some uses. Our wheat can stave off starvation in India for a limited time. Technical assistance can help some backward countries increase their gross national products. But the lavish outshoveling of American wealth to friends and enemies alike in the face of continued American balance of payments deficits, will not only not strengthen us in foreign affairs, but it will wreck the dollar.

It's that simple and it's time for another look.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer

Lesson No. 6

Reading time 3 Min.

Study time 5 Min.

Repetition is a child's main tool in learning. An ant always uses the same entrance and exit to and from its colony. A child always uses the sounds that he knows will work, then he goes about the business of adding new words to what he already knows. Soon, he finds that he can employ, "do we all? — "key" No. 5 — with the first person singular, and produce the first person plural. So, using what he already knows, he simply adds "do we all?" to "Iwant to eat". In Spanish, it is not necessary to say, 'comemos', which is the conjugation of the verb, 'comer' (to eat), in the first person plural. By simply saying, "Quiero comer, y nosotros todos?" (key-AIR-0--co-MARE--e--no-SO-trose--TOE-dose), the child can say, "Do we all want to eat?" More important still, he can add, 'y nosotros todos' (e--no-SO-trose--TOE-dose) to 'voy a comer' (voy--ah--co'MARE) and say, "I am going to eat, are we all?" Or, using the same "key", he can say, "I ate, did we all?" — 'Fui a comer, y nosotros todos?" (foo - EE -- ah -- co-MARE--e -- no-SO-TROSE -- TOE-dose). Simple, you think!

Yes, but remember that nature is the architect, and, in nature, there is no wasted effort — everything follows in order, just as the night follows the day. Soon we will show you how the child finds "keys" that will begin to expand his vocabulary by leagues.

Tomorrow, we will give you "key" No. 6, and then you will be able to express yourself, in Spanish, in the present, past and future tenses, using all persons. From this point forward, you will need only to add the infinitives of new verbs to expand your knowledge at an accelerated rate. For example, the verb 'to build', is 'construir' (cone-stroo-EAR). Associate it with the English verb, 'to construct'. All you need do is use the "keys" that you know with your new verb and you can say, "I want to build". — 'Quiero construcir' (key-AIR-o--con-stroo-EAR). Then add, "do you", "do we all", "do they"; and the one new verb has given you a vast new latitude considering that, with your "keys", you can say, "I want to build", "Iam going to build," "I built".

Tomorrow — "key" No. 6.

Khanh Gloomy Regarding War Prospects in Viet Nam

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh is headed for the United States with some gloomy views about the prospects for the war in South Viet Nam.

Those who know the deposed strongman of Saigon report that he feels the war will be lost — this year — unless the Americans decide to extend it directly to the Communist North, even at the risk of hostilities with Red China.

Khanh, now designated an ambassador-at-large to lay Saigon's case against the North before the U.N. Security Council, is known to believe that the only chance to save Viet Nam from a Communist takeover is to convert the limited war in Indochina to a general war between Red China and the West.

Inside South Viet Nam he probably is far from alone in this viewpoint. Thus, in coming to the United States, he is pictured as seeing his prime role as diplomatic and his goal to bring the United States into open hostilities with North Viet Nam and even Red China.

Khanh has clashed sharply with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor. Those who know the former strongman say he resents Taylor for opposing his assessment of the prospects. He is said to want to see President Johnson in person and lay his case on the line, confident that his views would be supported by many Americans — including military advisers with whom he has had contact in South Viet Nam.

Khanh preferred to deal with Taylor's predecessor, Henry Cabot Lodge, and when Lodge left to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination last year, Khanh was quoted as advising Washington to "send me another Lodge."

For one thing, Khanh is represented by those who know him well as arguing that the Americans bungle, blunder into internal political situations which are none of their business. Such intervention, he is said to feel, often causes Vietnamese leaders to oppose the Americans as a matter of principle, on the basis of sovereignty, whether or not their opposition represents wisdom.

As for the stability the Americans have been seeking so long in South Viet Nam's government, people who have talked with Khanh believe he would insist such stability could come only through cooperation with the predominant Buddhists.

Khanh is known to have complained that the Americans in Saigon insist upon thinking of Viet Nam as a case all to itself, without taking into consideration what the Red Chinese may be planning. He is represented as believing that there is little time left, that this is the year of decision in Southeast Asia.

Khanh is apparently of the opinion that eventually war between China and America is inevitable, if oriental communism is not to engulf all the Orient. This opinion argues that the longer the China - West conflict is delayed, the worse it will be for the West, as China continues to build a nuclear arsenal.

Ease Paint Plans With These Tips

When a can of paint is being stirred by an electric drill with paint mixing attachment, prevent spatter by making a temporary lid of heavy cardboard. Push mixing rod through hole punched in cardboard.

Spinning the handle of a paint brush between the hands after cleaning will remove excess solvent or thinner effectively.

Khanh preferred to deal with Taylor's predecessor, Henry Cabot Lodge, and when Lodge left to campaign for the Republican presidential nomination last year, Khanh was quoted as advising Washington to "send me another Lodge."

For one thing, Khanh is represented by those who know him well as arguing that the Americans bungle, blunder into internal political situations which are none of their business. Such intervention, he is said to feel, often causes Vietnamese leaders to oppose the Americans as a matter of principle, on the basis of sovereignty, whether or not their opposition represents wisdom.

As for the stability the Americans have been seeking so long in South Viet Nam's government, people who have talked with Khanh believe he would insist such stability could come only through cooperation with the predominant Buddhists.

Khanh is known to have complained that the Americans in Saigon insist upon thinking of Viet Nam as a case all to itself, without taking into consideration what the Red Chinese may be planning. He is represented as believing that there is little time left, that this is the year of decision in Southeast Asia.

Khanh is apparently of the opinion that eventually war between China and America is inevitable, if oriental communism is not to engulf all the Orient. This opinion argues that the longer the China - West conflict is delayed, the worse it will be for the West, as China continues to build a nuclear arsenal.

Ease Paint Plans With These Tips

When a can of paint is being stirred by an electric drill with paint mixing attachment, prevent spatter by making a temporary lid of heavy cardboard. Push mixing rod through hole punched in cardboard.

Spinning the handle of a paint brush between the hands after cleaning will remove excess solvent or thinner effectively.

Cost Rican Crater

Costa Rica boasts the world's largest volcanic crater. One mile across and containing a lake of boiling water, it occasionally spouts steam and water 2,000 feet into the air.

STRENGTH FOR THEIR DAYS from The Bible

Now therefore, our God, we thank thee.—(I Chron. 29.13).

If we can gather the courage to say "Thank You, God, for everything!" when we experience a trial or tribulation—and mean it—then we shall have taken the first step toward overcoming the difficulty. Every challenge is an opportunity to prove our faith in God and His goodness.

PRACTICE FOR PANCAKE RACE -- Taking advantage of fair weather, Liberal, Kan., housewives practice for the international pancake race to be held March 2. The race has been an annual Shrove Tuesday event since 1950. Liberal housewives compete with housewives from Olney, England, and the score now stands at 8-7 in favor of Olney. Yesterday in Missouri's Assembly

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House made little headway yesterday as it opened first round debate on a bill to abolish the death penalty in Missouri.

But the House did add a couple of amendments, one corrective and one to preserve the death penalty only for persons who kill law enforcement officers or guards in a prison or jail.

Other amendments were pending as the House broke for lunch. It appeared the debate would consume most of today and perhaps even longer.

As the debate went on the Missouri Supreme Court denied a stay of execution for Lloyd Leo Anderson, convicted of killing a St. Louis drugstore delivery boy and scheduled to die in the gas chamber just after Thursday midnight.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes gave Anderson one five-week stay to see what the legislature's attitude might be on the abolition of the death penalty.

The imminence of Anderson's death troubled some members of the House during the debate but it was not mentioned by anyone. Still members could see that radio station KMOC, St. Louis was broadcasting the arguments.

The closest reference was when Rep. Monty Harlow, R-Greene County, moved that the debate be delayed until next Wednesday. It was defeated 31-118.

The situation apparently resolved to a point that only action by the governor could further delay Anderson's execution.

The Senate passed once again a bill to set up a legislative fiscal officer to act as a watchdog on state spending. Similar bills have been vetoed three times by former governors.

The bill now goes back to the House for acceptance of Senate changes, including one to end the experimental fiscal check Jan. 1, 1970.

The vote on passage was 28-2 with Sens. Michael Kinney, D-St. Louis and Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, the only dissenters.

Under the plan a permanent committee on fiscal affairs would be set up with seven members of the Appropriation Committee of each house plus the president pro tem of the Senate and House speaker.

They would hire a fiscal director and a staff to work between legislative sessions.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, sponsoring the bill, called it a step in the direction of fiscal responsibility and a long needed legislative tool.

It was offered by Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, a lawyer and a member of the State Bar board of governors.

A new insurance bill would grant a witness immunity from prosecution in testifying before the state insurance superintendent or his staff.

Others would provide penalties for insurance companies which continue to receive premiums while insolvent and one to give the superintendent power to audit and financial report from a failing company.

Another would require the state to withhold St. Louis and Kansas City earnings tax from state employes in those areas.

Greg Hulme, of Lilbourn, Is Awarded a Scholarship

LILBOURN — Greg Hulme, 18, son of Reverend and Mrs. Gilbert N. Hulme of Lilbourn and a senior at Lilbourn High School recently received notice that he will receive a Presidential Scholarship for Music in the amount of tuition and fees at the Ouachita Baptist University, Arkadelphia, Ark.

A letter written to young Hulme by Ralph A. Phelps, Jr., president of the University, termed the youngster as outstanding and stated that the scholarship will be renewable annually for four years.

An accomplished pianist, Greg has won numerous honors for his performances. His honors include: a one rating at the District Music Festival, Central Missouri State College, for 1962-63-64; a one rating at the State Music Festival, University of Missouri, Columbia, 1963; a two rating at the same Festival in 1962 and 1964; third place winner of the Missouri State Fair Piano Contest in 1962; and finalist and third place winner in the Coke Ensemble Competition, Conservatory of Music, University of Missouri at Kansas City, 1964.

In addition, Greg was selected for honors by the State Music Department, Jefferson City, after earning an E plus on an examination of applied music in 1963 and 1964. This qualified him to perform in a Master Class Concert at the annual State Piano Teacher's Convention held in Columbia in 1963 and in Jefferson City in 1964.

He has auditioned and won third place in a competition to represent Missouri at the National Piano Teacher's Convention to be held later in Dallas, Texas. Also, he has performed in numerous recitals under the direction of the Conservatory of Music in Kansas City. These were recitals featuring only students from the Center Division of the Conservatory.

Cook Ahead, Plan to Serve With Sauce

This is wise when you're using a meat cut such as tongue that needs slow simmering from three to five hours. Tongue needs no pot-watching. Just cover it with water, cover the cooking utensil tightly and simmer until tender.

After cooking, plunge this variety meat into cold water and slip off the skin. It can then be refrigerated and sliced as directed in this recipe and served with a zesty sauce.

Tongue with Nippy Sauce

- 1½ pounds cooked tongue, sliced ¼ inch thick
- ½ can (10½ ounces) or approximately ⅔ cup condensed tomato soup
- ¼ cup water
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- ⅓ cup sliced stuffed olives

Combine tomato soup, water, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, mustard and olives. Cook just until heated through. Serve sauce with tongue slices. 4 to 6 servings.

Details of a proposed educational television system for Missouri were outlined Wednesday night for a House Committee on Education.

A bill drafted as a result of an interim committee study during the past two years asks for $16 million over a 10-year period to construct an open circuit UHF system reaching all parts of the state.

The measure calls for immediate appointment of a five-member commission to work with the FCC to obtain necessary channels.

Missouri, according to the testimony, is the only state without such an agency.

Explaining the plan was William J. Reagan, director of broadcast engineering at the University of Missouri. He was a member of the interim committee formed at the behest of former Gov. John M. Dalton, who made educational television one of his major programs.

Reagan said the cost and efficiency studies indicate the open circuit system to be best suited to Missouri's needs. It would require construction of 17 broadcasting facilities strategically located throughout the state, and fed by a central production facility located at Columbia or elsewhere.

The facilities would be linked by a microwave network.

Cost would be about $5.5 million a year when the full system is operative, Reagan said, or about $2.21 per pupil.

Good Advice 2/26

Would Provide More Safety For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cabinet committee on presidential safety is expected to recommend shortly that more money, manpower and investigative authority be devoted to the protection of presidents.

The commission, it is understood, will reject proposals that the responsibility for guarding the life of the president by shifted from the Secret Service to the FBI or some other agency.

Informed official sources said the four-man group headed by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon also has reached substantial agreement on other problems of presidential security and will deliver its report to the White House shortly.

The Cabinet committee was named by President Johnson last Sept. 28. The Warren Commission, in its report that day on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, urged that such a body be established to review and oversee presidential protective activities.

In addition to Dillon, whose department embraces the Secret Service, the members are Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency and McGeorge Bundy, presidential assistant for national security affairs.

The White House is expected to make the report public, since the findings will have a significant bearing on the action to be taken by Congress on pending and proposed protective measures.

Government sources have indicated that these will be among the recommendations:

— Legislation making it a federal crime to attempt the assassination of a president or vice president of the United States.

This proposal was embodied in several bills in the last session of Congress. Some officials believe it could be enacted quickly if recommended by the President and the Cabinet committee.

— A substantial manpower build-up for the Secret Service.

—Greatly improved liaison between the Secret Service and the FBI and other federal investigative agencies, without shifting to the FBI any major Secret Service responsibility.

— A massive step-up in the service's protective research section — the unit which seeks to spot potential assassins in advance.

OUR ANCESTORS — by Quincy

t's not a bad poem, Homer—but 'Iliad' is the silliest title I ever did hear of!"

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1965. There are 309 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, George Rogers Clark captured Ft. Vincennes from the British.

On this date

In 1746, revolutionary soldier-statesman Charles Pinckney was born.

In 1836, Samuel Colt patented the six-shooter, or revolving pistol.

In 1783, Denmark recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1901, the United States Steel Corp. was incorporated.

In 1913, the income tax amendment to the Constitution was declared in force.

Ten years ago — A House bill approving an income tax cut across the board was defeated in the Senate.

Five years ago — Israel protested to the U.N. Security Council against what it called warlike threats by the United Arab Republic.

Would Provide More Safety For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cabinet committee on presidential safety is expected to recommend shortly that more money, manpower and investigative authority be devoted to the protection of presidents.

The commission, it is understood, will reject proposals that the responsibility for guarding the life of the president by shifted from the Secret Service to the FBI or some other agency.

Informed official sources said the four-man group headed by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon also has reached substantial agreement on other problems of presidential security and will deliver its report to the White House shortly.

The Cabinet committee was named by President Johnson last Sept. 28. The Warren Commission, in its report that day on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, urged that such a body be established to review and oversee presidential protective activities.

In addition to Dillon, whose department embraces the Secret Service, the members are Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency and McGeorge Bundy, presidential assistant for national security affairs.

The White House is expected to make the report public, since the findings will have a significant bearing on the action to be taken by Congress on pending and proposed protective measures.

Government sources have indicated that these will be among the recommendations:

— Legislation making it a federal crime to attempt the assassination of a president or vice president of the United States.

This proposal was embodied in several bills in the last session of Congress. Some officials believe it could be enacted quickly if recommended by the President and the Cabinet committee.

—Greatly improved liaison between the Secret Service and the FBI and other federal investigative agencies, without shifting to the FBI any major Secret Service responsibility.

— A massive step-up in the service's protective research section — the unit which seeks to spot potential assassins in advance.
